Support curb on federal spending

Area legislators oppose Ford's surtax proposal

By L. T. ROGERS
Assist. City Editor

Valley congressmen today supported a curb on federal spending, rather than imposing a five per cent surtax on middle income families as proposed Tuesday by President Ford.

Rep. Victor Veysey, R-43rd District, who is seeking election in the new 35th Congressional District, expressed strong disagreement with the income tax surcharge and predicted it would not be quickly enacted.

"The middle income taxpayer carries the burden of federal taxation and government has taxed them heavily to provide for lower income groups. I believe it is both unreasonable and unfair to single them out and increase their tax burden at this time."

He said the best approach to tax reform is to continue closing loopholes that permit some high income people to escape income taxes. "The best way to cure federal deficits is to cut spending, not to raise taxes."

The lawmaker said he mostly favored Ford's other recommendations, particularly those proposals designed to stimulate productivity.

"Energy continues to be a perplexing problem and I favor a more determined effort to coordinate research and development to utilize our solar and geothermal resources."

Rep. Del Clawson, R-23rd Dist., said he didn't believe Ford placed the emphasis where it belonged, which is on reduction of federal spending, rather than heaping further burdens on taxpayers.

"I am convinced that we have yet to go the full mile in cutting the federal budget," he stressed. "And therefore I believe the people will justly feel tax increases are yet another federal imposition."

Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-25th Dist. describes Ford's message as a "most impressive speech" with many proposals advanced to curb inflation.

Regarding the proposed surtax, Wiggins said he did not want to take a position until congressional committees had held their meetings and made recommendations.

He noted, however, that it will be necessary to generate revenues for other parts of Ford's proposals.

"This means that you go to the people or cut back on federal spending. I prefer a cutback on spending," he added. And Wiggins said he believes Congress is now in a mood to cut spending.

Rep. John Rousselot, R-24th Dist., said he agreed with Ford that "fiscal discipline" is a necessary weapon in any fight against inflation.

"In my opinion, he is absolutely right in addressing Congress to hold the line on spending. We are the first ones to have to learn how to practice fiscal discipline, and we haven't been doing it."

Rousselot said the greatest problem is in seeking the temporary tax surcharge. "That will hit the middle income families the hardest. They are already doing more than their share. The alternative to that is to just have Congress put a demand on itself to not spend more than the anticipated revenue of $295 billion."

The Senate has already indicated a willingness to restrict itself, and now the House of Representatives must vote on limiting spending to income, he said.

Rousselot said he has co-sponsored a bill that would require an inflationary impact statement on any appropriation bill that comes before the House.

New snags in RTD strike

President asks for heavier taxes, more sacrifices to curb inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's long-awaited solution to inflation turns out to be heavier taxes on the middle class and the wealthy, tax incentives to revive business and exhortations to Americans to pinch pennies and drive less.

Ford told Congress he wants higher tax revenues so he can cut federal deficits. Both would fight inflation by reducing the amount of money spent in the economy.

To business he offered tax incentives to encourage growth.

He offered to help the economy's worst-off victims — the poor and those thrown out of work.

The President avoided predicting what his program would achieve, but he said failure to slow down the rate of inflation would "destroy our country."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon vaguely predicted only that Ford's program, if enacted intact, would bring the current double-digit inflation — now ranging about 14 per cent —down to single-digit rate a year from now.

That could be as high as 9 per cent.

Not unexpectedly, congressmen, facing a bewildered and often frightened electorate in less than a month, were less than wildly enthusiastic about voting to increase voters' taxes.

But many in positions of power promised to give Ford's program consideration when Congress returns after the elections for a lame-duck session. Congress recesses Friday for a month's campaigning.

Appearing before a televised joint session of Congress Tuesday to lay out his program, Ford wore a "WIN" button in his lapel.

He urged Americans to drive at least 5 per cent fewer miles by car pooling, riding buses or bikes "or just plain walking," and he asked housewives —if they could not spare a penny from the food budget —at least to cut down food waste by 5 per cent.

Ford's tone ranged from somber to evangelical, and his warning on inflation's potential threat was stark.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped —destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," Ford said.

The one-shot tax boost Ford proposed for 1975 would amount to an extra $128 in taxes, atop the $2,560 now paid, for an average family of four with $20,000 in income.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50.

Europeans step in to save U.S. bank's failure

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franklin National Bank has been declared bankrupt by the government Tuesday, but six European banks stepped in to bail it out of receivership and promised to honor all deposits. It was the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

The new owners said the more than 100 branches of the bank in the New York area would be open for regular banking business today.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which placed the bank in receivership, said the money of the bank's 620,000 depositors, including 6,000 persons with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

And, said Frank Wille, chairman of the FDIC, "all checks written on the Franklin ... will be honored. The clearance process goes forward as if there was no failure."

Surprise guilty plea in biggest business fraud

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stanley Goldblum, mastermind of one of the biggest business frauds in U.S. history, brought his federal court trial to a surprise halt Tuesday by pleading guilty.

It had been expected that the complex trial, brought on by the $2 billion Equity Funding Corp. scandal, which began only last week, would last six weeks to two months.

Goldblum pleaded guilty to five of the 45 charges against him, including conspiracy, mail and securities fraud and making false statements in registration of securities.

Mechanics pin return on drivers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — New snags have been reported in talks between the striking bus drivers' union and the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

Meanwhile, the leaders of the mechanics' Amalgamated Transit Union said that even if the rank-and-file union members accept the tentative agreement signed with the RTD Tuesday, they would not go back to work until the drivers do.

The proposed settlement with the mechanics involves rates, fringe benefits and working conditions. No formal details on the contract were given.

The strike is in its ninth week and has forced some 400,000 daily riders to seek other means of transportation.

Fruit fly quarantine

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A 70-square-mile section of San Diego, infested by the oriental fruit fly, has been placed under state quarantine to prevent the pest from spreading into other areas.

Spirit willing, but flesh weak; all women fail fire dept. tests

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — All five women trainees for the fire department flunked out, four because they were not strong enough and one for getting hurt.

"Strength is the main problem," said Fire Chief Leonard Bell after the five women were dismissed from the Fire Academy Tuesday.

"We don't say women can't do the job. We just say these women didn't have the strength to do the job the city deserves," he said.

The four who failed the strength requirement were too slow in a test involving climbing up a 65-foot ladder from a fire truck, wearing air tanks on their backs, and pulling up a hose behind them.

Bell noted that two of the four weighed only 117 pounds, and suggested that in the future the preliminary selection process screen both male and female applicants for strength and agility.

The fifth female candidate, Patti Barbee, 28, hurt her neck and back in a training accident and was dismissed when she filed for injury leave.

The failure of any of the female trainees to make the department, out of a class of 28, defused a bitter argument between city officials, trying to comply with anti-discrimination laws, and the wives of firemen, who angrily protested the idea of women living in the firehouses with their husbands.

City officials said it might be a year before any more women would move up high enough on the eligibility list to be accepted for training.

Two men struck by lightning bolts live to tell about it

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Lightning struck twice during a rare thunderstorm on the San Francisco Peninsula, and both men it hit lived to tell about it.

"I really thought I had died. It was like a truck ran over me. It went right through me," Arthur Sanchez, 22, said from his hospital bed Tuesday.

Asked if it was a miracle, Sanchez said, "I didn't used to believe in them. But I've been thinking a lot about it since."

Sanchez, a roofer, was tarring the roof on an apartment house in Sunnyvale when the thunderstorm struck Monday. He heard a loud crack and felt the bolt of lightning hit his back.

"I'm dead," he said he thought. "The world's ending."

Three miles away and 32 minutes later, Lester Tikvica, 51, a fruit grower in Sunnyvale, Calif., was hitching a four-foot steel rod to his tractor when lightning struck him.

"I didn't know what it was. All I know is that I was out instantly. I never heard a crack or felt a thing. I was just gone."

When Tikvica woke up three hours later in a hospital bed, he said, "I felt like I'd been in a car wreck." He said he had "believed in God all along, but this really cinches it."

Doctors said neither man would have survived except for the fact that each was apparently hit by "weak but stunning" lightning bolts.

Norman King returns

New city manager named

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Wrtier

Norman King, deputy city manager of Claremont between January 1969 and October 1973, will return to Claremont Jan. 2, 1975 as city manager, succeeding Keith Mulrooney who is going to Alexandria, Va. to accept a similar position.

The City Council Tuesday night held a six-minute executive session, then accepted with regrets Mulrooney's resignation effective Nov. 15, appointed Deputy City Manager Paul Brotzman acting city manager from Nov. 15 to Jan. 2, and then named King the new city manager.

King quit his post in mid-October 1973 to take a $23,000-a-year post of assistant director for policy development in the new Office of Policy Analysis of the National League of Cities and United States Conference of Mayors in Washington, D.C.

Mayor Bertye Smith, who had called the executive session, explained to the audience that in an executive session the council held last Tuesday, it decided that because of many new city department heads and senior staff members, it was "essential that the city manager we select be familiar with the Claremont community, its needs, problems, goals, attitudes and citizens."

"Additionally," she continued, "the individual should be experienced in city administration — we did not want a trainee — and be someone who had the confidence of the entire council."

Mayor Smith said that in a city the size of Claremont it is crucial that "the city manager and the council members maintain a close working relationship at all times. Mutual respect and joint effort is needed to acomplish."

King, 31, is married. His wife Wendy is a graduate of Scripps College.

King received his B.A. degree in political science cum laude at Claremont Men's College in 1965. He accepted a Coro Foundation internship in public affairs in 1966.

In 1967 King was awarded an M.A. degree in government administration at Wharton Graduate School, University of Pennsylvania.

He served as administrative assistant for the city of Ontario for a year before moving to Claremont as administrative assistant from September 1968 to January 1969.

As deputy city manager, director of finance and city clerk, King staffed the citizen-composed Environmental Resources Task Force, and later as staff assistant to the then-new Environmental Quality Board.

King also served as president of the Municipal Management Assistants of California, and for a year sat on the board of directors of the city manager's department of the League of California Cities.

When King left for Washington in 1973, Mulrooney said that King has a "fine, analytical mind and has been very good at decipering complex situations."

Mayor Smith said that Claremont is indeed fortunate to have such a man as King consent to be the new city manager.

"This is one time that Claremont has gained over Washington, D.C.," she said.

Valley briefs

Two youth found in dune buggy shop

Two youths have been petitioned to juvenile hall in San Bernardino on charges of burglary after West End sheriff's deputies arrested them inside of Funco Dune Buggy Co. at 8857 Ninth St. in Cucamonga early this morning.

Deputies said that a silent burglar alarm was touched off inside the business about 3 a.m. and officers were dispatched to the area to investigate. Sgt. John Von Colln and Deputy A. F. DeCecio spotted the two youths inside of the building and took them into custody.

Cash, pistol taken from liquor store

Two men, both armed with handguns, robbed the Gourmet Liquor Store at 1189 Central Ave. near Upland Tuesday night of a small amount of cash and the owners' .45 caliber automatic pistol.

West End sheriff's deputies reported that the gunmen confronted the owner of the store, Lebio Emio Batian, about midnight and forced him into a freezer. The men removed the money from the register and the .45 caliber automatic from under the counter. Batian managed to unlick the freezer and call deputies.

Batian described both men as Caucasians, 5 feet 9, between 150 and 155 pounds. He said one of the men had dark wavy hair while the other had light red hair and a long mustache. One was wearing a faded red shirt.

Two prowlers found with stolen loot

Two men arrested by Upland police for prowling are being held in West End Jail for questioning in a burglary at the Pacific Flooring Co. at 603 S. Hope St. in Ontario Monday night.

Preciliano Perea, 22, of 517 S. Cucamonga St., Ontario, and Danny Bernal, 21, of 815 S. Caldwell Ave., Ontario, were arrested early this morning by Upland police who saw them prowling in a residential area. Police reported finding several pieces of office equipment and papers from the Pacific Flooring Co. in their car. The firm was burglarized recently.

No new leads in apt. house slaying

Pomona police today reported no new developments in the slaying Monday night of apartment building manager Michael William Jones, 24.

Jones, 1554 Holly Way, was cut down by four or five shots in front of a building he managed at 1082 E. Phillips Blvd. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, the result of bullet wounds in his upper body.

Investigators Tuesday continued interviewing persons in connection with the shooting, but reported they have not learned the reason for Jones' slaying. Two men, seen running from the scene after the shooting, were still being sought, they said.

Motorcycle and car collide; rider hurt

A motorcyclist was injured late Tuesday afternoon in a collision with a car at Garey and Columbia avenues, Pomona.

Michael A. Russo, 26, of 2710 Kendall Ave., La Verne, suffered mouth, knee and shoulder injuries but was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police reported that the driver of the car, Clay Shaver, 61, of 1336 Washington St., Pomona, turned left in front of the motorcycle.

In another Pomona accident, a crossing guard was knocked down earlier Tuesday by a hit-run bike rider, police reported. The victim, Jacqueline Hageman, 45, of 13218 McKinley Ave., Chino, sought medical attention later. She said she was hit from behind by a teen-age boy who was riding on the wrong side of Towne Avenue at Richbrook Drive.

Still no results in search for airplane

A continuing air search over parts of Nevada and Utah for a plane carrying four persons, including a Pomona school teacher, entered its fifth day today without results.

A total of eight Civil Air Patrol aircraft are taking part in the search for a plane missing since Thursday afternoon on a flight between Brackett Field in La Verne and Salt Lake City, Utah.

On board the missing aircraft were Karen Olson, a teacher at Park Avenue School in Pomona, two Inglewood engineers and San Fernando Valley probation officer.

The search has been hampered at times by bad weather but will continue indefinitely.

Resistence to year-round schools increases

Parents and teachers opposing the year-round program at two schools in the Chino Unified School District have grown in numbers, the latest survey of opinion shows.

The survey, released at the Board of Education meeting Tuesday night, also indicates approval of the program is still strong, and there is little change in those percentages.

The latest opinion sampling was taken in September, after Walnut Avenue Elementary School and Magnolia Junior High, the two pilot year-round schools, had completed one year of the program.

Other district schools, except Chino High, began their first year of the program in July.

Increases in those opposing the plan at Walnut and Magnolia are reflected when comparing current results to the survey taken in January 1974 after six months of the program.

Results, tabulated by Applied Technology Center for Education, Fullerton, reveal that 23 per cent of parents at Walnut School now object to the program, an increase of 13 per cent over the January survey.

About 26 per cent of parents at Magnolia now oppose it, an increase of 6 per cent since January.

In general, teachers at Magnolia continue to strongly favor the program, but the Walnut faculty's approval has declined significantly, said John McMurtry, assistant superintendent for education.

Those parents pleased with the program at Walnut were tabulated at 7 per cent, down only 1 per cent from January, and those pleased at Magnolia were 63 per cent, up 2 from January.

Since approval is still strong, but opposition has increased, the survey shows those undecided on the program in January had shifted mostly to the opposition side.

Parents at Walnut who said their children were learning more rose to 32 percent, from 29 per cent in January, but those who said children were learning less also increased, from 3 to 14 per cent.

Those Magnolia parents who claimed children were learning more rose from 26 to 33 per cent, but those "learning less" increased from 9 to 14 per cent.

Asked whether the program disrupted the child or family's activities, Walnut parents were tabulated at 26 per cent affirmative, an increase of 10 per cent over January.

Those saying it had not disrupted vacations or other activities dropped from 76 to 73 per cent.

Thirty-two per cent of Magnolia parents said the program disrupted activities, an increase of 10 per cent over the last survey. Those indicating it had not caused problems dropped from 65 to 64 per cent.

Teachers responding totaled only 60 per cent at Walnut School (18 of 31), and 22 of 25 at Magnolia.

Board President Eva Weiszbrod said the 60 per cent response was not that significant and suggested that Supt. Royce Lapp attempt to obtain a better response in the future.

Favorable ratings at Magnolia were much higher than Walnut, and those teachers opposing the plan at Walnut have increased. Fifty per cent of Walnut teachers in January thought the program made teaching easier, but only 28 per cent agreed with that in the latest survey.

The number saying teaching was harder at Walnut increased from 11 to 61 per cent. Those saying it was easier at Magnolia dropped from 58 to 38 per cent, and teachers finding it harder rose from 21 to 38 per cent.

Board member Al McCombs suggested in the future that parents and teachers be asked whether they would favor returning to the traditional school system. Officials were hoping originally that no more than 25 per cent of the parents would object to the new plan.

Mrs. Weiszbrod said, "If there is a feeling to change back, the housing situation is a whole new ball of wax. We'd have to go on double sessions. I don't think there is any question of going back."

HOUSEBOAT FIRE

Montclair firemen battle a fire, apparently set by an arsonist, that roared through the wheelhouse and deck of an ocean-going 35-foot houseboat parked in front of Nexco Products Co. at 5123 Brooks St. Tuesday night. The fire caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the boat being refitted by its owners for launching in Lake Mead, according to Fire Inspector Larev Smith. The investigation is continuing.

Park finally approved for old school site

Members of the Bonita Unified School District settled a controversy Tuesday night that has been brewing in San Dimas the past year over additional ballfields for the Little League.

The board decided to permit the City of San Dimas to begin developing the condemned San Dimas Elementary School site as a park. This will include construction of an additional ballfield there for use by the Little League when the season opens in April.

The school, declared unsafe several years ago under current earthquake resistance standards, has been sought by San Dimas for a park but the district and the city couldn't agree on a price for the property. The state school officials set the price at $75,000 for the property and the city offered to purchase the land at $53,000.

"Because no one could agree on a price, a friendly condemantion suit has been started that will allow the courts to set the value," School Supt. James Johnson said.

In the meantime, he said, there is no reason why the property could not be improved.

In addition to finding another location for the overcrowded Little League program, the board's action will please residents in homes surrounding the park who have made it clear to the city that they want a park on the former school site.

The city up until this time has been unable to give residents a clear cut response on plans for the school site because of the legal problems of the condemnation suit that is now pending.

The city's proposed purchase of the property was further complicated in August of 1973 when a fire destroyed the auditorium of the old school.

Ethnic makeup, mobility cited

District changing, swifter planning needed--school chief

"I believe this district will change very greatly over the next five years," Bill Plaster, superintendent of Upalnd Schools, told his school board Tuesday night.

Referring to an educational master plan which the administrators of the district are preparing for presentation to the board next month, Plaster said that findings indicate that the board will soon have to provide for major demographic changes in Upland.

The population of the city is becoming more mobile, and the ethnic composition of the community is changing, Plaster asserted. He recommended that a census of the community be taken in order to determine the amount of change that already has occurred.

Plaster said that it would be wise to make provisions for ethnic changes soon in order to avoid racial imbalance in the schools in the future.

"I do not want another South Boston here in Upland," Plaster said, alluding to the controversy currently raging in South Boston as a result of court-ordered busing of school children.

Plaster told the board that good objectives in education would not suffice. Criteria have to be established to judge the schools in their efforts to meet objectives,he added.

Plaster said that he would have a full report on the district's educational master plan ready for presentation at the board's November meeting.

In other business conducted Tuesday night, the school board received a report from Plaster indicating that the opening of the school year has been conducted successfully. There are 5,673 regular students enrolled in Upland elementary and junior high schools. When educationally handicapped and mentally retarded students are added to this enrollment, the total figure is 5,747 students.

The Upland Junior High School English as a Second Language Program gave a demonstration of its techniques before the members of the board. Claudia Koenig, a teacher in the project, which is instructing 15 Spanish-speaking students in English, conducted the demonstration. Three Upland Junior High School students worked through an exercise in English verbs and pronouns. The students were: Gladys Cora, Yvette Cora, and Tony Artiaga.

The board was informed that 40 Mexican children from Upland's sister city Sonora, Caborca, will visit Upland in the middle of November for four days. They will be accompanied by two teachers and will travel by bus.

CHINO VEGAS NIGHT — A Las Vegas Night, sponsored by the Chino Chamber of Commerce and Chino High School Band Boosters, will be held Saturday from 7 p.m. to midnight at Western Hills Country Club.

The event is held annually to raise funds to cover expenses for the Chino Invitational Band Review Oct. 26.

Further information about tickets may be obtained by calling the chamber at 627-6177 or band boosters at 627-5419.

Sun and warmth following rain

After the first rain of the season the weather outlook for the valley for the next few days will be sunny and warmer.

The storm which began Monday left a total of .05 of an inch of rainfall in Pomona but even this small amount was welcomed after a five-month period without rain. The heaviest rainfall from the storm was recorded in Diamond Bar where .18 of an inch of rain was recorded.

Forecaster Bill Hackel at the National Weather Service said skies will be overcast night and morning hours through Thursday but afternoons will be sunny.

Today's high is expected to reach 73 degrees and 77 degrees Thursday. Night-time temperatures will be in the mid 50s.

Man freed with no charges in shooting case

Bradford Dean Collins, 23-year-old Pomona man arrested in connection with the wounding early Sunday of a woman companion, has been released from police custody without charge.

Investigators freed Collins, 1713 S. Waters Ave., after district attorney's deputies declined to issue a complaint in the case. Earlier, police reported that the victim, Mrs. Wanda Tucker, 32, had said she did not wish to prosecute.

Mrs. Tucker was shot in the right chest. The bullet broke a rib and then traveled about, doing internal damage. She was taken to County-USC Medical Center for surgery and her condition there today was termed fair.

Collins told police that the shooting was an accident and that he thought he had unloaded the weapon, a .22-caliber rifle. Officers said the pair had been arguing at the Collins home and Mrs. Tucker was hit by a bullet fired through a bedroom door.

In saying she did not wish to prosecute, the victim said she too believed the incident to have been an accident.

Boys Republic opens Santa Ana residence

Boys Republic of Chino held an open house Tuesday at a new community residence it has opened in Santa Ana.

The residence for 20 boys was opened two months ago at 220 W. 15th St., according to a spokesman for Boys Republic.

The Chino home for boys has purchased and refurbished the property in Santa Ana for about $250,000, the spokesman said.

The half-acre site includes housing for the youngsters and other buildings.

Former valley woman takes pastor's job in Washington

The Rev. Mary Ann Swenson, formerly of 721 W. Harrison Ave., Claremont, has been put in somewhat of a spotlight lately because she accepted the position of minister of the United Methodist Church at Orchards, Wash.

Mrs. Swenson is small, 5 feet tall, and looks like a high school senior, "but she delivers an excellent sermon," was the comment of Mrs. Peggy Skeen, church secretary at the Claremont United Methodist Church at 211 W. Foothill Blvd.

Mrs. Skeen explained that Mrs. Swenson, 27, an ordained minister, worked as a youth minister for about a year and then as an associate minister at the local church while she was studying at the School of Theology for her doctorate.

"Mary Ann related to all ages," she said. "Our church youth responded to her very well."

Mrs. Swenson and her husband, Jeff, a free-lance artist, left for the 130-member Orchards, Wash., church in September after she received a call from the Pacific Northwest Conference of the United Methodist Church.

A parsonage is furnished with the position of minister.

The Orchards church members had complained that they were tired of getting inexperienced ministers just out of theology school.

"They received me a bit reluctantly, but graciously," the petite Mrs. Swenson said.

Mrs. Swenson explained that she feels looking younger than her age is an asset.

"It makes it easier to get in and help people," she said.

Mrs. Swenson said that her new church members were surprised that Pastor Swenson is a woman.

Mrs. Skeen said that Mrs. Swenson will be making several trips back to Claremont while she is completing requirements on her dissertation at the School of Theology.

Murder trial continued again

The trial of a man accused of murder in the death last May of Donald Rufus Truelove in Pomona has been continued for the third time for medical reasons.

The defendant is Isaac Gibson, 50. Court attaches said he has undergone eye surgery at County-USC Medical Center and a new trial date in pending.

Gibson, 590 E. Ninth St., was arrested in connection with the fatal beating of Truelove at 586 E. Ninth St., Pomona. Three others arrested at that time were released without charge.

Investigators blamed a long-standing feud for the incident.

Gibson first was scheduled for trial on July 29.

Bond rate reduction cuts school district's tax rate--temporarily

A cut in the bond interest and redemption rate has brought down the tax rate of the Bonita Unified School District by nearly 10½ cents this year, Supt. James Johnson told the Board of Trustee Tuesday night.

The final rate has been set by the county at $4.7949 per $100 of assessed valuation, compared with $4.9013 last year. Johnson noted that the district's tax rate now has dropped $1.87 over the past two years.

The tax rate is almost identical to earlier estimates. To arrive at revenue figures for budgeting, the school administration had estimated the rate last August at $4.7999 for the fiscal year that ends next June.

But taxpayers may have a short reprieve. The school district is asking for a 61-cent tax increase at the November general elections in order to keep up with inflation.

Johnson explained that the district will get $969 per pupil next year. If the revenue limit increases, that figure will go to $1,029 per pupil.

In other matters, Johnson reported that the last phase of the Lone Hill School is scheduled for completion by Nov. 1.

The $3 million school plant was to be finished last month but a two-month strike delayed opening till November. Johnson said the school already has its students, but they are all in one building, instead of the two, and "things are a bit overcrowded."

Scheduled for occupation next month is the building that includes the shower and locker rooms, home economics classes and shop facilities.

The school houses 890 junior high school students.

School blast, firebombing in books dispute

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Ban-the-textbooks protesters, whose leaders have vowed to "fight until death," today touched off an explosion at one elementary school, firebombed another and closed nearly every coal mine in Kanawha County.

State Police said the blast at the West Branch Elementary School in the Cabin Creek area blew out the front doorway and left a gaping hole in the floor of the one-story brick building. Ceiling plaster and lights also were knocked loose by force of the blast.

Police at first believed dynamite had been used, but said an investigation showed blasting powder of a type used in coal mines caused the explosion.

The firebombing occurred at the Midway Elementary School on Campbell's Creek, across the Kanawha River from Cabin Creek, both located in the heart of the southern West Virginia soft coal fields.

Both incidents occurred before 4 a.m., police said.

About 2,100 miners were idled when they refused to cross picket lines set up by the protesters who have labeled some of the textbooks "obscene, un-American and anti-Christian." The parents have demanded permanent removal of the textbooks from the schools.

The books have been removed for a 30-day review period by a citizens committee.

Quinn Morton, president of the Kanawha County Coal Operators Association, said only one mine was working in the county. He said some mines in neighboring Boone and Fayette counties also were closed.

Morton said 30 carloads of pickets appeared at one mine and blocked the work force from entering.

The violence flared during the third day of the renewed protest against the textbooks after a two-week calm. The protest started originally shortly after classes began early last month for the fall term.

The Rev. Charles C. Quigley, one of the leaders of the protest, had vowed to "continue picketing even if they throw everyone into the county jail.

"These are parents who love their children and will fight until death, if necessary."

Officials of the United Mine Workers (UMW) said they would order the men back to work today.

The miners refused to step over picket lines in the Cabin Creek and Racine areas set up by angry parents demanding the permanent removal from classrooms of texts they labled "obscene, un-American and anti-Christian."

During the height of the antitextbook crusade last month 10,000 miners walked off the job and schools were closed for up to 65,000 students.

In a related development Tuesday, the Rev. Ezra Grailey, fiery leader of the book-banning forces, was given a 60-day jail term and fined $1,500 for allegedly violating a court order against picketing.

Reaction to Ford speech

By United Press International

President Ford drew praise from businessmen, economists, labor leaders and everyday citizens on most of his proposals to wage war on inflation. But many reacted sourly to his suggestion for a 5 per cent income tax surcharge.

"Speaking for the 'man on the street,' Ford's message was not for the 'man on the street,'" said Ray Ransom, a Salt Lake City data technician. "I'm just about ready to trade my take-home pay for what the government withholds."

AFL-CIO President George Meany, speaking in Maimi, said Ford's proposal to apply the surcharge to families earning $15,000 annually and single persons with $7,500 salaries was unacceptable.

At today's prices, he said, those salaries are not high. However, he praised Ford for sweeping "the economic mess out from underneath the rug."

One economist said if the surcharge helps stop inflation, the cost to the American wage earner will be worth it.

Dr. E.W. Wood of the University of Mississippi estimated that a family of four making $20,000 a year would pay about $2.50 a week more in income taxes under the surcharge proposal.

"Inflation is going to raise our tax rates anyway, because it pushes us into higher income tax brackets," Wood said.

"So if an increase in the personal tax rate proves antiinflationary, we will be no worse off and perhaps better off because the tax burden may be more equitably distributed than the inflation burden."

In New York, Tilford Gaines, chief economist for Manufacturers Hanover Trust, said the 5 per cent surtax "is inequitable for people who in today's world are essentially in a lower income bracket."

But Gaines also said the President had no other choice, since "the bulk of all potential tax revenue is between $15,000 and $25,000 in earned income."

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said he favored most proposals made by Ford as a means to stem inflation, but "as to the special surtax, I would prefer that it start at a higher income than $15,000."

Wall Street economist Pierre Rinfret said labor would seek higher wage increases to make up for losses suffered under the proposed 5 per cent tax surcharge.

"In essence, the cost burden will fall on private industry, which will be subject to still higher corporate taxes," he said.

The idea of a surcharge did not bother Karl J. Bray much. Bray, author of a book on how to avoid paying income taxes, said, "I'm not worried about it. I won't pay it."

He currently faces jail on a variety of tax evasion charges.

How surtax works

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A family of four with taxable income of $20,000 in 1975 would pay a surcharge of $128 under President Ford's proposal.

Taxable income is income after deductions and exemptions. The first $10,000 of taxable income for all families would not be subject to the surcharge.

Here's how it would work:

Taxable Income	$20,000.00
Regular tax	4,380.00
Subtract forgiveness feature	1,820.00
Subject to 5 per cent surcharge	2,560.00
Surcharge	128.00
New combined tax	4,508.00

A single person with a taxable income of $10,000 in 1975 would pay a surcharge of $54.78. Taxable income is income after deductions and exemptions. The first $5,450 of income for all single taxpayers would not be subject to the surcharge.

Here's how it would work:

Taxable income	$10,000.00
Regular tax	2,090.00
Subtract forgiveness feature	994.50
Subject to 5 per cent surcharge	1,095.50
Surcharge	54.78
New combined tax	2,144.78

Nobel Prize for economics shared by Swede, Austrian

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Austrian Friedrich von Hayek and Swede Gunnar Myrdal today were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for economics for pioneering work in the theory of money and their successful contributions to central economic theory, the Royal Academy of Sciences announced.

In Oslo, Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan and former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride shared this year's Nobel Peace prize Tuesday night for their contributions "to peace in our times."

According to the Swedish Academy of Sciences both von Hayek and Myrdal carried out "important interdisciplinary research so successfully that their combined contribution should be awarded the Prize for Economic Science."

The specific citation said the award and $123,000 was given to the two men "for their work in the theory of money and economic fluctuations and for their penetrating analysis of the interdependence of economic, social and institutional phenomena."

Von Hayek, 75, of Salzburg, Austria, currently lectures at the Rikkyo University in Tokyo. Myrdal, 75, of Stockholm, is currently working at the City University of New York Graduate School.

In a surprise announcement Tuesday night, the Norwegian Parliament committee presented Sato and MacBride with the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize. "Each in his own way contributed to peace," said the committee announcement. "Their efforts were instrumental in contributing to peace in our times."

The peace announcement came unexpectedly and surprised observers who thought the prize would be withheld this year because of the controversy surrounding last year's award to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, chief North Vietnamese negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

Attack! new tactic for Flournoy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An admittedly angry Republican Houston I. Flournoy today toughened his uphill gubernatorial election campaign against Edmund Brown Jr. in a new strategy of aggression.

Democrat Brown, who has slipped slightly but still maintains a commanding lead in public opinion polls, dismissed the intensified Flournoy assault as a pre-Nov. 5 drive, declaring, "His campaign is in serious trouble."

Flournoy, the two-term state controller seeking to succeed retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan, unveiled the new tactic of aggression Tuesday in a surprise attack on Brown's record and accused him of riding on his father's name.

For the first time in their three debates so far, Brown was put on the defense by Flournoy, who had maintained an almost professorial campaign posture. The debate was the first and only to be broadcast statewide by television and was carried by the public education network.

Flournoy, trailing Brown in the latest California poll by 11 percentage points four weeks before the election but who had gained no new ground, told newsmen after the debate at the Los Angeles convention center he decided it was "time we went after him a little bit."

Brown declared he "presents evidence based on facts" and asserted that Flournoy's "campaign is in serious trouble and I expect him to intensify the attacks in the coming weeks, but it won't change the issues."

Flournoy said after the 90-minute confrontation — the third of six scheduled—he was "darn right angry" at Brown and what he said were his opponent's "distortions" of his record and the way "he keeps getting away" with them.

For his part, a confident Brown told reporters, "I feel good. I think the debate laid out the issues clearly ... I think the people are getting a splendid view of the issues."

At the outset, Flournoy, 45, assailed what he termed his opponent's record of "inefficiency" as secretary of state and challenged his qualifications to hold the post his father held for two terms until 1966.

"If your name were, say, Edmund G. Green Jr., would you be here today?" Flournoy asked Brown in front of an evenly divided audience of about 2,000 persons.

Brown, 36, brushed aside the allegations as "musty charges." He retorted that clear-cut differences between the two included Flournoy's support of Reagan's unsuccessful tax limitation plan; his opposition to the newly adopted "political reform" ballot initiative and his support of a 20 per cent pay raise for the next governor.

$700 million net gain in Ford proposal

2-year tax reduction for business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is proposing higher taxes on all profitmaking business corporations, but a tax cut for firms which invest in expansion or modernization. The net effect would be a two-year tax reduction of $700 million for American business.

The tax increase would come in the form of a surcharge on corporate income taxes which would raise $2.1 billion over the 24-month period which began July 1. Corporations now pay up to 48 per cent of earnings in taxes.

The tax decrease would be realized by virtue of an increase from 7 to 10 per cent in the investment tax credit. For utilities, the credit would go from its present 4 to 10 per cent.

Firms would be allowed to subtract from taxes up to 10 per cent of what they pay for new equipment or to expand or modernize.

President John F. Kennedy found the tax credit extremely effective in stimulating business growth, which economists see as helpful to both cooling off an inflation and heading off a recession.

Growth helps fight inflation by making more goods available in the marketplace, stimulating competition. It fights recession by creating jobs.

Looked at one way, it is a tax subsidy to induce business to invest. Over the 24-month period, it would reduce corporate taxes by an estimated $2.7 billion.

Utilities especially would benefit. The Treasury feels they need help to expand capacity at the same time they are switching to coal or nuclear fuels from oil and buying equipment to reduce air pollution.

In addition, Ford proposed broad liberalizations of the investment tax credit. If a firm is entitled to more in tax credits than it owes in taxes, it would be able to receive a refund on taxes paid equal to the amount of tax credit.

A firm which spends $100,000 on new equipment and owes $5,000 in taxes thus would pay no taxes and have $5,000 to apply to the next year's taxes.

Ford also proposed a new tax break for business, expected to be worth $100 million. He would permit corporations to deduct from taxes dividends paid on preferred stock issued after Dec. 31, 1974. The purpose is to help firms raise money to expand.

Mass transit bill decision delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Rules Committee today put off its decision on the mass transit bill until after the Nov. 5 elections.

The committee agreed without a vote to pospone its decision on whether to send the bill to the House floor for a vote. The House recess is scheduled to run from Oct. 11 to Nov. 12.

The committee voted 6-6 Tuesday to shelve the $11.8 billion compromise measure and a new effort by supporters of the bill to resurrect it today was put off with little debate.

Two hurt in crash still hospitalized

Two persons injured in a traffic accident in La Verne last Wednesday night remained hospitalized today, one still in critical condition.

Michael Cline, 15, of 9245 Mills Ave., Montclair, a passenger, was in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit, under treatment for a skull fracture. His condition has been critical since the accident.

The other victim, driver Karen A Miller, 19, Glendora, was reported in satisfactory condition today at the hospital. She had a broken pelvis.

Police reported the car left Base Line Road at Fruit Street and tumbled into a field when the driver swerved to avoid an animal in the road.

If unemployment rises

Ready to spend $5.25 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan told Congress today the administration is prepared to spend $5.25 billion on unemployment insurance and a jobs program in the "unlikely event" that unemployment reaches 7 per cent this year.

Brennan testified at a hastily called meeting of Senate and House labor subcommittees on President Ford's job related economic proposals, including tax reform, additional unemployment benefits, public service jobs and a community improvement corps.

Organized labor was highly critical of the proposals — particularly a 5 per cent tax surchage on family incomes over $15,000 and a larger return to business than to low income individuals.

Noting that the September unemployment rate rose to 5.8 per cent, Brennan explained that the President's proposed "National Employment Assistance Act of 1974," terminating Dec. 31, 1975, would come into play only when the national unemployment rate averages 6 per cent or more for three months.

The act proposes unemployment pay for workers who have exhausted all other unemployment compensation or who are not eligible for such pay. It also would create work projects under the Community Improvement Program paying a maximum wage of $7,000 a year.

Brennan said the act would authorize $500 million for community projects when the unemployment level reaches 6 per cent for three months; another $750 million should it reach 6.5 per cent; and an additional $1 billion at 7 per cent.

Brennan estimated that some 2.75 million jobless experienced workers would be eligible for special unemployment assistance if the unemployment rate reaches 6 per cent and payments would total $2.1 billion at that level.

"In the unlikely event unemployment should go to 7 per cent for a year," he said, "the total cost would be about $5.25 billion."

Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, issued a statment saying a community improvement program tied to a 6 per cent jobless rate "appears to be far short of what's needed to relieve suffering."

He added that the return for business and the wealthy from a 5 per cent tax surcharge would be greater.

Ford's pardon testimony postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's visit to Capitol Hill to testify about his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon has been postponed one week because a Watergate cover-up jury would not have been locked up by the time of his testimony.

Presiding Judge John J. Sirica said through a spokesman meanwhile that he hoped to have a jury selected and sequestered by Friday in the trial of five of Nixon's closest aides.

Opening statements and initial testimony will not begin before next week.

Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo., chairman of a House Judiciary subcommittee, announced the postponement Tuesday after Sirica sent word a jury could not be sequestered by the time of Ford's scheduled testimony Thursday.

Ford now is scheduled to testify the following Thursday.

In a one-sentence statement Hungate said the postponement was made with White House concurrence and would "afford ample time for selection and sequestration of the Watergate jury."

Sirica continues questioning prospective jurors on the seventh day off the trial. He is doing so in closed court to avoid any more pre-trial publicity involving the conspiracy case of five of Nixon's former aides.

It was believed by many that Ford's testimony would add to the pre-trial publicity. After the jury is sequestered, however, it will not have access to Watergate news stories.

Some of the questions congressmen want to ask Ford are related to the same charges for which the five defendants have been indicted.

They want to know if Ford had advance knowledge that Nixon would be charged with Watergate crimes, whether a deal had been worked out with Nixon before he resigned Aug. 9 and whether any present or former aides were involved in any negotiating for a pardon.

Ford has refused so far to grant similar pardons to others charged in the Watergate scandal.

His offer to become possibly the first President ever to appear before a congressional committee was viewed by some observers as an attempt to undercut the widespread criticism of his pardon action.

Navajo girl in coma from rabies, but she may live

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — A young Navajo girl bitten by a rabid dog was in a coma today at a local hospital but doctors said they were optimistic the child could survive the deadly disease.

The girl, 6-year-old Kathy Rubideaux, of Mission, S.D., was bitten by the rabid dog two weeks ago while visiting relatives on the Navajo Reservation in Window Rock, Ariz.

The girl was admitted to the Bernalillo County Medical Center Monday and was being treated at the facility's pediatric intensive care unit.

Doctors at the hospital performed a tracheotomy to help the child breathe and also cut a hole in her skull to relieve the pressure caused by rabies.

Dr. Michael Hattwick, a member of the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, flew to Albuquerque to assist in the case.

Dr. Hattwick was the physican who treated a young Ohio boy last year when he was inflicted with the disease. The boy was the first known human to survive a case of rabies in the United States.

Hattwick said although the young girl remained unconscious and in critical condition, her condition had stabilized.

"We're not out of the woods with Kathy," said one medical center staff member, "but we are pleased that she has come this far and is stabilized. Most rabies patients do not survive this long."

New Mexico health officials have been battling a rabies epidemic among dogs, bats and other animals in the southern and western parts of the state.

Some three dozen cases of rabies in animals have been reported in the state this year. In recent weeks, however, inflicted animals have been found in areas further north.

Health officials also said at least 10 persons were taking a series of painful antirabies inoculations.

9-year-old complains of inflation--candy price up

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — Nine-year-old Sharon Trujillo took her inflation complaint to the White House—and got a reply.

Sharon wrote former President Richard Nixon after her neighborhood candy store owner raised his price on penny candy to 2 cents and 5 cent candy to 15 cents.

"She complained about the price and the candy store man told her to write the President so she did," said Mrs. Joe Trujillo, the fourth grade student's mother. "When she got the letter she was afraid they were going to fine her for complaining to the President."

Sharon received a letter of apology earlier this week from Assistant Treasury Secretary Edgar R. Fielder. He told Sharon the cost of candy and food had gone up because of production costs.

"Mr. Fielder said he was glad to see Sharon was interested in inflation and that if she had any more questions she should ask her parents or her teacher," Mrs. Trujillo said.

Mrs. Trujillo said she didn't know her daughter wrote the letter.

"The kids are all complaining about the price of candy," the mother said. "Maybe the kids have more courage than the adults. Maybe they've just got the right idea —that we'd get somewhere if we all wrote the President."

State women clerical staff described as poverty cases

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The low pay of some state-employed women clerical workers puts them in a "poverty category," forcing them to ask for Food Stamps or other public assistance, according to a union organizer.

A San Francisco area organizer for Clerical and Allied Service Employes (CASE), Charma Pipersky, said many of the nearly 27,000 clerical workers employed by the state "are becoming the working poor."

The charge was made before the legislature's Joint Committee on Legal Equality, which held a half day hearing on employment of women in state government.

Ms. Pipersky said many—perhaps 15 per cent —of the state's 23,000 female clerical workers were receiving the stamps, were enrolled in MediCal or the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

After tax deductions "they are put in a poverty category," Ms. Pipersky said. "What do they buy food with?"

She said about 40 per cent of all women clerical workers provided the sole financial support for themselves or their family.

But Ronald Kurtz, executive director of the State Personnel Board, said he could not confirm the number of clerical workers receiving public assistance because state law prohibited the release of recipients names.

Kurtz said state salaries were affected by the wages for similar jobs in private industry. "The labor market competitiveness" of each position is used to determine state scale, he said.

Helen Gaines, a clerk with the Department of Corrections in Berkeley and secretary of CASE, which claims 4,000 members, said a highway equipment cleaner for the state could receive a starting salary of $734 monthly, about $200 more than a starting stenographer.

Ms. Gaines said the cleaner's position asked for experience only in washing vehicles, but a stenographer had to type and take shorthand.

After 11 years, Ms. Gaines receives $830 monthly as a clerk supervisor.

Kurtz said the regulations for setting salaries were "very explicit," He suggested the legislature assume the responsibility.

Setting salaries in such competitive jobs as stenography was easier than in the relatively obscure position of highway equipment cleaner, Kurtz said.

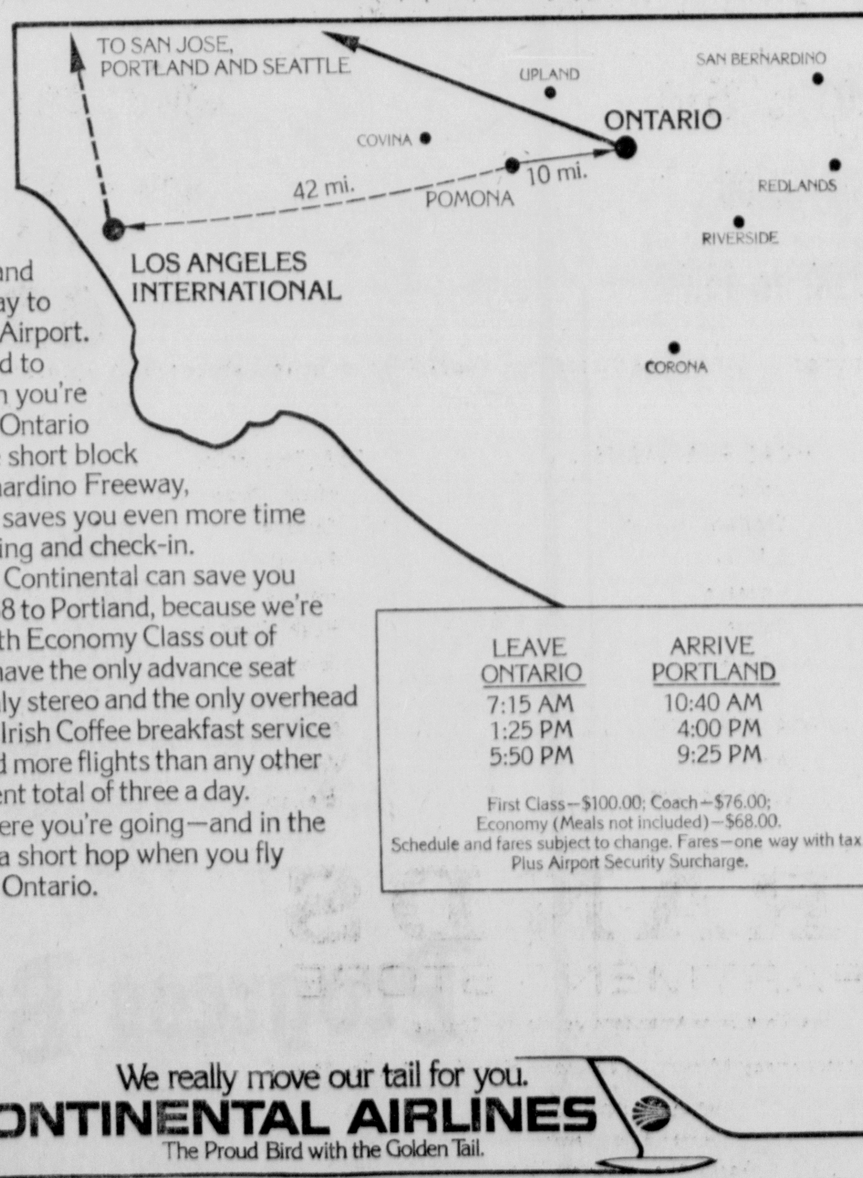
We can save you two hours in the long run to Portland.



Those hours you'd waste back and forth on the freeway to L.A. International Airport. But there's no need to go that route when you're right next door to Ontario International. One short block from the San Bernardino Freeway, this handy airport saves you even more time on baggage handling and check-in.

What's more, Continental can save you $10 to Seattle or $8 to Portland, because we're the only airline with Economy Class out of Ontario. We also have the only advance seat selections. The only stereo and the only overhead storage. The only Irish Coffee breakfast service in First Class. And more flights than any other airline: a convenient total of three a day.

We know where you're going—and in the long run, it's just a short hop when you fly Continental from Ontario.

ADORABLE AMBASSADOR — Shirley Temple Black, newly-appointed U.S. ambassador to Ghana, is embraced by Nicaraguan ambassador to the United Nations Guillermo Lang, whom she met outside the U.N. during visit there recently. The former child star was previously with U.S. mission to the U.N.

Arabs big winners at roulette

NICE, France (UPI) — A group of rich Arab high-rollers with an entourage of beautiful women descended on the casinos of the French Riviera and won $1.9 million in a series of intense, night-long roulette sessions late this summer.

"We've never seen anything like this before," a casino staff member said.

Officials at the Palm Beach Casino at Cannes and the Monte Carlo Casino said several "personalities" from Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf Emirates played heavily in their establishments over the past few months.

Casino directors, however, played down that impression. They said the season's big winner at the Palm Beach Casino was an Italian industrialist who won $2.9 million.

Casino officials maintain a policy of secrecy on the names of their gamblers. They declined to identify any of the high-rollers.

France-Soir said the Arab gamblers —dressed in Western style business suits rather than flowing robes of their native lands —arrived in a fleet of Cadillacs accompanied by their women friends.

Nation's police forces becoming militarized?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are America's police forces becoming militarized?

Yes, according to lawyers handling the defense of several of those accused with crimes stemming from the 1973 occupation of Wounded Knee by members of the American Indian Movement and their supporters.

The Indians' defense team will try to present at their trials what it calls a "military defense," contending there was "massive military intervention" in what the government itself labeled a "civil disorder."

According to the lawyers, the militarization of the police community in general —and the Justice Department in particular —did not begin with the 71-day Wounded Knee seige.

Instead, as the journal "Counter-Spy" contends, they feel Wounded Knee "was simply a field test where the military was allowed to clandestinely control a rather large army composed of specially trained U.S. marshals and FBI agents."

At the rate judges are dismissing Wounded Knee cases, the defense lawyers may never get a chance to present their "military defense," but investigators for "Counter-Spy," the journal of the "Fifth Estate," an organization devoted to creating an alternative intelligence community, have outlined the scenario.

According to Tim Butz, a young investigator involved in studying Wounded Knee, the role of the military at the seige "went beyond the limits described in the Passe Com mitatus Act, the law which prohibits the military from enforcing civil law."

Butz said the military presence at Wounded Knee was more than just an advisory or observer status, adding that it described its role as "being equal to, not subservient to, the Justice Department officials who were responsible for Wounded Knee."

He cited as examples the use of military planes to fly reconnaissance missions, supplying the FBI and marshals with M-16 rifles, Army contribution of 75 sniper rifles with scopes and armored personnel carriers.

Essentially, according to Butz, all of the weapons and munitions, while in the hands of civilian officers, were controlled by Col. Volney Warner, chief of staff of the 82nd Airborne Division, much in the same fashion as Warner had done in Vietnam in the early 1960's.

Equally disturbing to the lawyers and Butz is the growth of the Special Operations Group within the Marshals Service.

Butz said they "represent a standing army responsible only to the attorney general, not the Congress and the people.

"They wear military style uniforms, use military weapons and utilize military tactics under the advice and control of army officers. In addition, members of the SOG attend the Army's Senior Officers Civil Disturbance Orientation Court" at Ft. Gordon.

"By all objective standards, they are an army rather than a police force, an army that has its entire history rooted in 'civil disorder' suppression," Butz said.

Butz believes that the next time a civil disorder such as Wounded Knee occurs, the Army will be even more bold in the role it will play and the control they exercise over civil authority.

He cites Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who in his hearings on domestic intelligence operations of the military warned that armies can never be trusted to check their own power.

Museum shows greats of jazz

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jazz Museum has available for touring to educational institutions, museums, jazz festivals, community organizations, etc., exhibits on Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Billie Holiday, The Be-Bob Era —Bird and Diz, Benny Goodman, The Sax Section (about the greats who played the saxophone), and John Coltrane.

The Goodman exhibit is available for touring beginning in October; the Coltrane exhibit, in November, and the others shortly thereafter. The exhibits consist of photos, posters, films, artwork, sheet music and memorabilia.

Bonanza of fossil finds along Mexican beach

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — A 350-mile stretch of Mexican coast contains a bonanza of fossil finds up to 60 million years old, including indications primitive men may have reached North America as long ago as 100,000 years, according to a scientific report released today.

Some of the fossil beds indicate there was once a seaway across what is now Mexico, connecting the Caribbean to the Pacific Ocean.

A team of American and Mexican researchers has found at least 18 sites along the 350 miles from Santa Rosalia to Cabo San Lucas on the Mexican peninsula of Baja California, according to Dr. Shelton P. Applegate.

Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, made a preliminary report on the sites today to the annual meeting here of the Vertebrate Paleontological Society of America.

Although searchers have found no human fossils, Applegate said, they have discovered what appear to be stone tools in layers of earth 50,000 years old or more.

"There are flakes and chips of flint and obsidian all over the place," he said. "There's reason to believe that some of these beds will eventually turn up solid evidence of man."

Most anthropologists today believe man entered the Western Hemisphere from Asia, over a now-vanished land link across the Bering Sea, about 25,000 years ago.

But a number of researchers have been building evidence that man reached the Americas long before that, possibly 100,000 years ago.

If the artifacts discovered on the Baja coast can be conclusively proved of human origin, and of the same age as the geological strata in which they were found, it would support the scientists who argue for an earlier date for man's discovery of America.

The most scientifically valuable finds were layers of fossils from the Oligocene epoch which began about 38 million years ago and lasted about 12 million years.

At that time, what is now the tip of Baja California was at the bottom of the sea, and so the Oligocene layers are filled with fossils of marine life, including some creatures that may have been unknown until now.

Researchers have found fossils of "a shark species" that appears to be identical to shark fossils found in the Oligocene beds in Mississippi," Applegate said.

"This suggests there probably was a seaway between the North and South American continents then, right across southern Mexico, and so for a shark to swim from Jackson, Miss., to La Paz (on what is now the tip of the Baja Peninsula) would have been no great trip," he said.

Another discovery was the remains, including huge fossil shells, of a tortoise that stood 4 feet high and was 5 feet long.

S.F. records 100th murder

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A bedroom fight between a woman's ex-husband and her ex-boyfriend ended Thursday in San Francisco's 100th homicide of1974, police said.

Police called by Roberta Cassiday found her ex-husband, Nicholas Bogoslovski, 33, stabbed six times in the chest and abdomen. He died later at Mission Emergency Hospital.

A short time later, police found the ex-boyfriend, Lawrence D. Chartier, 30, hiding nearby. He was arrested and booked at city prison on suspicion of murder.

San Francisco's all-time high in murders was 125 in 1969. Last year, the city recorded 103 homicides, but Lt. Charles Ellis of the police department noted the city could well set a record in 1974 if the present pace continues.

Nation's police forces becoming militarized?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Are America's police forces becoming militarized?

Yes, according to lawyers handling the defense of several of those accused with crimes stemming from the 1973 occupation of Wounded Knee by members of the American Indian Movement and their supporters.

The Indians' defense team will try to present at their trials what it calls a "military defense," contending there was "massive military intervention" in what the government itself labeled a "civil disorder."

According to the lawyers, the militarization of the police community in general —and the Justice Department in particular —did not begin with the 71-day Wounded Knee seige.

Instead, as the journal "Counter-Spy" contends, they feel Wounded Knee "was simply a field test where the military was allowed to clandestinely control a rather large army composed of specially trained U.S. marshals and FBI agents."

At the rate judges are dismissing Wounded Knee cases, the defense lawyers may never get a chance to present their "military defense," but investigators for "Counter-Spy," the journal of the "Fifth Estate," an organization devoted to creating an alternative intelligence community, have outlined the scenario.

According to Tim Butz, a young investigator involved in studying Wounded Knee, the role of the military at the seige "went beyond the limits described in the Passe Commitatus Act, the law which prohibits the military from enforcing civil law."

Butz said the military presence at Wounded Knee was more than just an advisory or observer status, adding that it described its role as "being equal to, not subservient to, the Justice Department officials who were responsible for Wounded Knee."

He cited as examples the use of military planes to fly reconnaissance missions, supplying the FBI and marshals with M-16 rifles, Army contribution of 75 sniper rifles with scopes and armored personnel carriers.

Essentially, according to Butz, all of the weapons and munitions, while in the hands of civilian officers, were controlled by Col. Volney Warner, chief of staff of the 82nd Airborne Division, much in the same fashion as Warner had done in Vietnam in the early 1960's.

Equally disturbing to the lawyers and Butz is the growth of the Special Operations Group within the Marshals Service.

Butz said they "represent a standing army responsible only to the attorney general, not the Congress and the people.

"They wear military style uniforms, use military weapons and utilize military tactics under the advice and control of army officers. In addition, members of the SOG attend the Army's Senior Officers Civil Disturbance Orientation Court" at Ft. Gordon.

"By all objective standards, they are an army rather than a police force, an army that has its entire history rooted in 'civil disorder' suppression," Butz said.

Butz believes that the next time a civil disorder such as Wounded Knee occurs, the Army will be even more bold in the role it will play and the control they exercise over civil authority.

He cites Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who in his hearings on domestic intelligence operations of the military warned that armies can never be trusted to check their own power.

Museum shows greats of jazz

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jazz Museum has available for touring to educational institutions, museums, jazz festivals, community organizations, etc., exhibits on Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Billie Holiday, The Be-Bob Era —Bird and Diz, Benny Goodman, The Sax Section (about the greats who played the saxophone), and John Coltrane.

The Goodman exhibit is available for touring beginning in October; the Coltrane exhibit, in November, and the others shortly thereafter. The exhibits consist of photos, posters, films, artwork, sheet music and memorabilia.

Bonanza of fossil finds along Mexican beach

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — A 350-mile stretch of Mexican coast contains a bonanza of fossil finds up to 60 million years old, including indications primitive men may have reached North America as long ago as 100,000 years, according to a scientific report released today.

Some of the fossil beds indicate there was once a seaway across what is now Mexico, connecting the Caribbean to the Pacific Ocean.

A team of American and Mexican researchers has found at least 18 sites along the 350 miles from Santa Rosalia to Cabo San Lucas on the Mexican peninsula of Baja California, according to Dr. Shelton P. Applegate.

Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, made a preliminary report on the sites today to the annual meeting here of the Vertebrate Paleontological Society of America.

Although searchers have found no human fossils, Applegate said, they have discovered what appear to be stone tools in layers of earth 50,000 years old or more.

"There are flakes and chips of flint and obsidian all over the place," he said. "There's reason to believe that some of these beds will eventually turn up solid evidence of man."

Most anthropologists today believe man entered the Western Hemisphere from Asia, over a now-vanished land link across the Bering Sea, about 25,000 years ago.

But a number of researchers have been building evidence that man reached the Americas long before that, possibly 100,000 years ago.

If the artifacts discovered on the Baja coast can be conclusively proved of human origin, and of the same age as the geological strata in which they were found, it would support the scientists who argue for an earlier date for man's discovery of America.

The most scientifically valuable finds were layers of fossils from the Oligocene epoch which began about 38 million years ago and lasted about 12 million years.

At that time, what is now the tip of Baja California was at the bottom of the sea, and so the Oligocene layers are filled with fossils of marine life, including some creatures that may have been unknown until now.

Researchers have found fossils of "a shark species" that appears to be identical to shark fossils found in the Oligocene beds in Mississippi," Applegate said.

"This suggests there probably was a seaway between the North and South American continents then, right across southern Mexico, and so for a shark to swim from Jackson, Miss., to La Paz (on what is now the tip of the Baja Peninsula) would have been no great trip," he said.

Another discovery was the remains, including huge fossil shells, of a tortoise that stood 4 feet high and was 5 feet long.

S.F. records 100th murder

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A bedroom fight between a woman's ex-husband and her ex-boyfriend ended Thursday in San Francisco's 100th homicide of1974, police said.

Police called by Roberta Cassiday found her ex-husband, Nicholas Bogoslovski, 33, stabbed six times in the chest and abdomen. He died later at Mission Emergency Hospital.

A short time later, police found the ex-boyfriend, Lawrence D. Chartier, 30, hiding nearby. He was arrested and booked at city prison on suspicion of murder.

San Francisco's all-time high in murders was 125 in 1969. Last year, the city recorded 103 homicides, but Lt. Charles Ellis of the police department noted the city could well set a record in 1974 if the present pace continues.

CASE BY CASE — That is the approach to be taken on clemency for Vietnam dissenters, according to Charles E. Goodell, chairman of the nine-member review board established by President Ford in his amnesty program. His was once a familiar face on the Washington scene as a maverick Republican senator from New York.

'Odd that God would call on me'

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (UPI) — The marks of Ernest Hewitt's life are upon him —a bent nose from his years as prize fighter and bouncer, the delicate hands of a crochet expert and a gentle satisfaction in his eyes from 20 years as a Methodist minister.

"It's an oddity that God would call me," he said. "A man with my background. The things I've been and done. Sometimes I can't believe it myself, how I got away with it."

One life led to the other, and he is now the Rev. Ernest Hewitt, pastor of the little St. Paul United Methodist Church, membership 168, "including about 30 children."

"It's a minimum salary church and most of my people are elderly," the Rev. Hewitt said.

"Of course they have never done much, but we're getting them around. We have a nice little brick building, and it's paid for. It's got heating and cooling."

He learned needlepoint as a child, but did not do it much until he became a boxer.

"You see, I was the welterweight boxing champion of the U.S. Navy along in there," he said.

"I was wound up pretty tight, you know, and my reflexes were razor sharp, and my trainer wanted me to do something to relax me and sort of quiet me down."

He was a contender as a civilian for the world welterweight title, fighting under the name "Spider" Hewitt. He put in a considerable amount of time barnstorming as "Willie Fool."

He fought 168 professional fights, winning 68 by knockouts and losing only seven times, never by a knockout.

His face at 61 years old does not reflect the loser —no cauliflower ears, no thick eyebrows, no scars, only the offset nose.

He said he quit when promoters started asking him to carry an opponent, maybe for six rounds, before ending the fight, or to "go to the tank" sometimes —take a dive.

He joined the Navy and came out with a disability discharge near the end of World War II, trained as a machinist's mate. He had boxed for 12 years when he hung up his gloves in 1942.

"You carry the marks of that kind of life," he said. "Bartender, bouncer, shipbuilder, house painter, fighter.

"Of course I have lots of things left to look back on, a lot of writeups to read about my fights. And I had lots of fun."

It was in the late 1940s that the Rev. Hewitt, living with his wife and two children in Florida, encountered personal problems which turned him to God.

"When I did let go and let God take hold of things, I got the right answer," he said.

After the flood: envy for the dead

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The most extensive psychological study ever made for legal action has netted the survivors of a Buffalo Creek, W.Va., flood a whopping $13.5 million, but psychiatrists say the money can't provide what's needed most —peace of mind.

Big money won't replace the little, but essential, natural pleasures of life taken from the emotionally depressed residents of the remote coal mining area, according to doctors.

"The ginseng root can show you what has happened to the spirit of the people," says Dr. James L. Titchener. "Ginseng is an herb found in the hills there and the people of Buffalo Creek used to love to get out and look for it.

"But it's not that way any more. And as for hunting and fishing, activities this always made life attractive there, well, the people aren't interested in them any more.

"The residents have locked themselves up. They stay at home. Watch helevision. Drink more. Smoke more. Go visiting less. There's complete disinterest in life. There's actually envy for the dead."

To understand what the doctor is talking about one must look back to a dreary Saturday morning in February 1972.

A coal mine dam broke and 130 million gallons of water and sludge cascaded into the 20 mile long Buffalo Creek Valley. The death toll was 125.

A $65 million damage suit was filed by 654 survivors, including 250 children, against owners of the Buffalo Mining Co. This summer a $13.5 million out of court settlement — largest ever granted for psychological damages — was reached.

Psychiatric interviews provided leverage for the settlement. Because each survivor had sued separately, the judge ordered individual interviews.

So, Titchener, professor of psychiatry at the University of Cincinnati, assembled 60 fellow health workers to literally probe the mental health of a community.

The findings showed nothing short of an entire way of life being wiped out.

Reports were dotted with the likes of "serious psychological impairment ... anxiety ... depression ... personality change ... disorganization of thinking ... guilt ... shame ... loss of ambition."

"People are ashamed that they are alive while 125 of their friends are not," says Titchener. "Because they survived, they think others see them as cowards. Believe me, there is plenty of envy for the dead in Buffalo Creek.

"People are defending against experiencing anything else bad. It's the law of averages, they figure. The less you get involved, the less chance of being hurt. But defenses like these interfere with adjustment back to normal life.

"And worst of all, time is not healing the wounds. It's getting worse instead of better."

What can be done?

"The best thing would be regular psychiatric treatment, but I doubt if many will seek it out," answers Titchener. "Organizing the law suit helped somewhat because it represented one type of positive, outward ambition.

"I'd like to see some group spend the money to set up a treatment center in the area. That might be a worthwhile project for an organization like the United Mine Workers (UMW).

"But it's too late for the best remedy. There should have been an educational program right from the beginning to let the survivors know what might happen to them psychologically.

"They were not prepared for the things they are now going through. Buffalo Creek is a vivid example of what is needed at the next place a disaster strikes —an immediate program to tell the survivors what they're going to be up against."

China's joining in rice research with western scientists predicted

LOS BANOS, the Philippines (UPI) — Director Nyle C. Brady of the International Rice Research Institute, which developed "miracle rice," has just returned from China, where his hosts told him they did it first.

Brady said in a recent interview at the institute that he was not inclined to argue the point. He thinks it is more important that China, which grows more rice than any other nation in the world, will probably accept his invitation to cooperate in research with the institute's scientists.

"I have received no official response but it is likely they will participate in some way," said Brady. "I'm an optimist."

Part of a 12-member American delegation of agricultural scientists, Brady said he was favorably impressed with rice production and research during his three-week tour of China which included visits to communes.

He said his hosts told him China developed high-yielding dwarf varieties of rice in 1956 and released them in the early 1960s, several years before the institute released the first variety of the so-called "miracle rice" in 1966.

He said he had asked the Chinese to make their varieties available to world rice researchers to be tested elsewhere.

"China has a wealth of germ plasm material and we want it in our germ plasm bank," Brady said.

China produces about 100 million tons of rice a year, about one third of the production of the entire world. It is the second largest rice exporter after the United States.

Brady and the other scientists at the Philippines institute believe that China's rice experts have an important contribution to make at a time when the population explosion makes increased rice production a necessity.

Despite the development of new and better varieties over recent years, the one third of the world's people who depend on rice for more than half of their food still do not have enough of it.

Brady said he is confident the Chinese soon will exchange their knowledge with other rice experts.

"I would hope that within a year we will be exchanging materials and scientists," he said. "I think the Chinese will be wise enough to see that it is to their advantage as well as to the advantage of the rest of the world."

U.S. firms eye capital abroad

NEW YORK (UPI) — During the present stock market stagnation American companies can find equity capital abroad, but they probably will have to scramble for it, a Pennsylvania manufacturer said recently.

Curiously, Chairman Donald E. Meads of Certain-Teed Products Corp., Valley Forge, Pa., did not have to scramble for French capital that now has a stake in Certain-Teed that could reach 39 to 44 per cent.

Saint Gobain-Pont-a-Mousson, the French conglomerate that is a big factor in the world's glass industry, has had an interest in Certain-Teed for some years and was considering enlarging its interest simply by purchasing stock on the open market earlier this year.

Certain-Teed, a company with a solid core business in building products, had just changed its management after an unfortunate adventure in the real estate and land development business. The company had had to set up a $27 million dollar reserve to cover possible losses of its 71 per cent owned real estate subsidiary corporation.

Meads, a Dartmouth and Harvard Business School graduate who earned his spurs with the Rockefellers' International Basic Economy Corp. and INA, the Philadelphia financial and insurance group, seized on Saint Gobain's interest to get a fresh infusion of capital for Certain-Teed. He persuaded the French firm to stop buying Certain-Teed stock on the open market and instead to buy 400,000 shares of common from Certain-Teed's treasury and one million shares of a new series of $20 convertible preferred stock—a total of $23 million in equity capital. This, in turn, helped Meads to arrange $85 million in new long-term debt from three American insurance companies.

The deal gives Saint Gobain an enhanced outlet to the American market for many products. It brings Certain-Teed, a company that was not notably research conscious in the past, access to Saint Gobain's world renowned technological resources and new products.

But Meads warns that other American companies hopeful of obtaining European capital may have to look hard for it. The Europeans are interested in the American market all right, he says, but the amount of capital available in Europe is limited and the Europeans always want a very substantial value for their money. They are not as willing to gamble as Americans have been traditionally. Nevertheless, Meads feels more American firms will seek and find equity capital in Europe.

And how do Meads, the American shareholders and Certain-Teed's creditors feel about the potential peril of outright French control of the company? He conceded that Saint Gobain ultimately could control Certain-Teed on 39 per cent of the stock despite certain U.S. government restrictions. "But the French have no incentive to interfere in our operations so long as our management does a good job," he said, "although they have every reason to give us any help they can."

Asked about the possibility of large Arab equity investments in American industry, Meads said he could't see that happening quickly.

Oil recovery device effective

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A new oil recovery device that has proved its effectiveness in many applications worldwide will go on duty in Japanese waters late this year.

A pair of "Clean Sweeps" mounted on 27 foot long catamaran hulls designed and built by Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. have been sold to the Japan Maritime Safety Agency.

They are designed to sweep spilled oil from harbors, estuaries, bays and offshore locations. The trailer transportable craft can recover up to 200 gallons of oil a minute.

Unemployment hangs on despite boom potential

By KARL C. LILLY

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (UPI) — This area along the banks of the Ohio River has all the ingredients for booming economic growth.

Flat available land, a rarity in West Virginia, abounds.

Transportation access is good, with the region's river shipment tonnage ranking higher than any inland port in the nation, its airport vastly modernized and enlarged, and main lines of two successful railroads snaking around it.

The education climate is sound, with one of the state's two universities, and local financial institutions are large enough to attract potential business investments.

The tax structure equals, possibly betters, that of most regions.

Importantly, especially with the advent of the energy crisis and new emphasis on coal production, it rests in the heart of vast soft coal reserves.

But with all that going for it, metropolitan Huntington, including Ashland, Ky., and Ironton, Ohio, traditionally has an unemployment rate above the national average.

Persistent Unemployment

"We've had a nagging persistence of unemployment in this region," said State Sen. Robert Nelson, a national lobbyist for the United Mine Workers union.

"If it's bad where you have a fairly concentrated industry or market, it must be really rough in other sections of the state," Nelson says.

Much of the blame, according to Nelson and others, falls on failure to recognize the problem.

"The attitude and initiative to really sell the region and develop it is sadly lacking," Nelson says. "The blame goes back to the Chamber of Commerce, local government, public figures and to some labor organizations."

"We have to overcome our inferiority complex and not always let others solve our problems for us," said Bob Meyers, president of the Kyova Interstate Planning Commission, a group formed to promote growth in the Tri-State region.

"We must reject the attitude of the past 20 years —holding the status quo," Meyers says.

Meyers' commission was responsible for the latest study of the region's potential. Prepared in 1972, the picture painted by the study is not a rosy one.

"In all candor the opportunities to further development in the region's economy by existing industries is clouded and limited by trends toward automation and mechanization," the report stated.

New jobs limited

The study said new jobs could come in future years in the manufacturing and service industries, but only in limited numbers.

New government unemployment figures offer some encouragement. The percentage of jobless workers in the metropolitan area in July, 1973, was 7.8 per cent.

It dropped to 6.3 per cent in a year's time but wages paid manufacturing employes climbed only 7 per cent while the cost of living rose 11.5 per cent.

One group hoping to shore up the growth is Huntington's "Committee of 2,000."

"We will promote Huntington as a place where you can find more workers than you need ... where there is a good availability of manufacturing oriented labor," said Bob Worden, director of the committee.

Emphasis will be placed on the area's "under-utilized land," Worden said. "We have more of that than you normally find. I know of redevelopment, flood free industrial sites on the Ohio River ranging in size from two acres to 1,000 acres."

The area has little coal mining, but it profits from supplier industries such as mine equipment shops, rail yards and river docks, plus retail shopping for miners from outlying towns.

New coal mines

The Chessie System says it knows of 55 new coal mines planned along its railroad tracks. The state predicts 25 new mines in West Virginia by 1976, two of them near here.

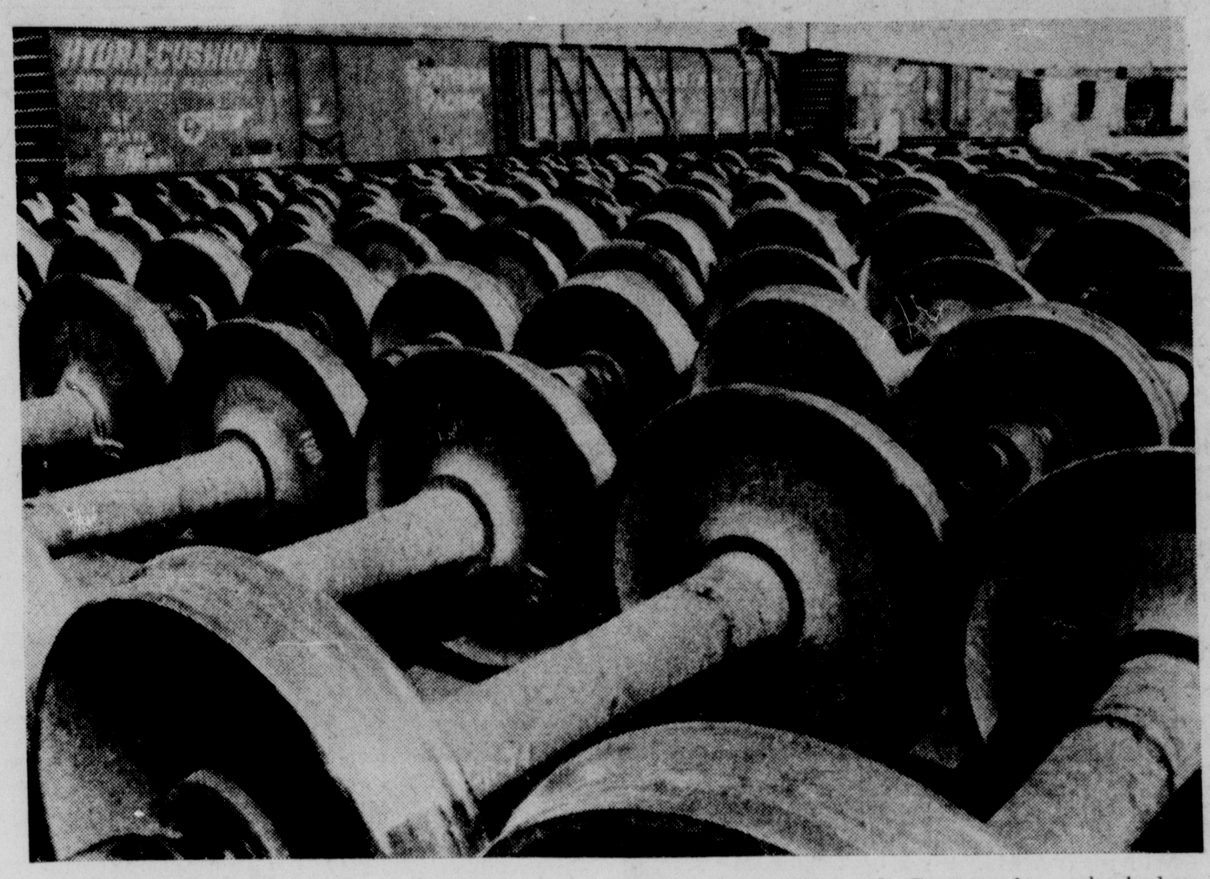
But looming ahead this winter is the threat of an extended contract strike by the coal miners' union.

And mine equipment firms are hard pressed to get the supplies they need, because of material shortages. One has a nine-month backlog of orders.

Joe Shy, business manager for the local Building and Trades Laborers Union, AFL-CIO, said the "loafing list" in his local "is still a very serious problem, and I don't see any end to it right now."

Shy blames high interest rates for the lack of area building. It not only hurts big business growth, he said, but prevents workers from buying their own homes.

"It seems like everytime we get something that looks favorable, something happens to it because of the tight money," he said.



WHEELS — Row after row of newly machined railroad wheels stand ready outside Southern Pacific's Sacramento repair yards. Company has embarked on a year-long program to refurbish 3,581 box cars.

Alternative energy sources preferred

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — About two-thirds of the nearly 7,000 persons to view a film on energy at Expo '74 in the past two months favor development of alternative energy sources such as the sun and wind to replace the nation's reliance on oil and coal.

The film titled "It Will Run Out On Us" has been presented at the fair by the Montana Commission for the Humanities in conjunction with the Expo Environmental Symposium series.

After viewing the film, persons were asked to vote on how they want to see the nation's energy resources developed.

Of about 7,000 to view the film the past two months, about 4,000 said they wanted alternative energy resources developed, but only in ways that do not damage the environment.

A group of about 800 persons said they felt energy consumption should be reduced by people everywhere adopting simpler ways of living. About 200 said as far as they were concerned, coal and oil resources should be developed as fast as possible to meet the growing demand.

Bridge

Twin squeeze is automatic

By Oswald & James Jacoby

You can have a lot of fun with today's hand if you cover up the East and West cards. Now try to make your spade slam after East wins the first trick with the king of hearts and returns the five of clubs.

You win in dummy and can afford to play one round of trumps. Both opponents follow. Now, there is a very simple way to proceed. Play a second trump and go after diamonds. If the suit breaks 3-2 you will have a million tricks. A second line will be to try to ruff both your losing hearts. That will fail if West started with just two hearts and the jack of spades.

	♠ 10 8 3
	♥ 6
	♣ A J 6
WEST (D)		EAST
♠ J 4		♠ 2
♥ J 7		♥ A K 10 9 8 4 3
♦ 9		♦ Q J 10 2
♣ K Q 10 9 8 4 3 2		♣ 5
	SOUTH
	♠ A K Q 9 7 6 5
	♥ Q 5 2
	♦ 5 4
	♣ 7

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
3♣	3♦	3♥	4♠
Pass	6♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead—J♥

Is there a third way? There sure is! You can draw the defense's last rump; ruff a heart; ruff a club back to your hand and run off all your trumps.

If West has a diamond stopper he will be squeezed out of it since he will have to hang on to the queen of clubs. If East has the diamond stopper he will also be squeezed since he must hang on to the ace of hearts.

This play is known as an automatic double squeeze. Only West can guard against the jack of clubs; only East can guard against the queen of hearts. Therefore, neither one can protect diamonds.

Man clinging to car falls, killed

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A 27-year-old man who was clinging to the side of a car moving at a high rate of speed fell and was killed Sunday when the left rear wheel ran over his neck and shoulder.

Elias Lujan of San Bernardino was dead at the scene.

The driver, Robert Flores, 23, of Colton was booked on suspicion of manslaughter.

California Highway Patrol officers said the pair began fighting in a barroom parking lot and that Flores got into his car and drove off with Lujan clinging to it.

Republicans sing economic blues in Michigan

By PAUL VAIAN

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) Gov. William G. Milliken let the other Republicans up for reelection do most of the stewing over Watergate. He was too busy fretting over the issue he knew would make him or break him in November—the economy.

The economy has always been the bread and butter of Democrats in labor-oriented Michigan, and soaring inflation and rising unemployment make Milliken's prospects for reelection touch-and-go.

Milliken, 52, is running for a second full term against Sander M. Levin, the former state senator he defeated by 44,000 votes in 1970 during a 67-day strike against General Motors Corp.

"I was saying three or four months ago that Milliken would win very comfortably," said James Brickley, who decided to resign as lieuterant governor rather than seek another term in office with Milliken.

"Now, with the economy the way it is, I guess I have to say it's going to be another close one. But I still can't see Milliken losing."

Few political observers will go that far out on a limb in predicting the outcome of the race for governor—including the candidates.

Congressional Races

There also are at least four congressional races that promise to be close, three of them involving incumbent republicans — Marvin Esch, Garry Brown and Robert Huber.

Democrats, who now hold 10 of Michigan's 19 districts, also hope to pick up the 6th District seat in Lansing vacated by Republican Charles Chamberlain and hold onto two congressional seats won in special elections this year, including the 5th District seat occupied by President Ford for 25 years.

That seat was won by Richard Vander Veen last spring, despite a personal appearance on behalf of his opponent by then President Richard M. Nixon. The stunning upset was attributed by political observers to voter backlash over Watergate.

Vander Veen faces republican Paul G. Goebel Jr., a Grand Rapids insurance agent, in a hotly contested race that already has drawn several national political leaders to the district.

Among them was Sen. Howard Baker, -Tenn., who told district Republicans that Ford has a personal interest in wanting Goebel to win his old district seat.

If the Democrats manage to retain the two special seats and claim all four close races, they will boost their congressional representation to a lopsided 145.

Tight Election

"I think everything keys off the governor's race, and it's going to be a very tight election," Michigan GOP Chairman William McLaughlin said.

Michigan's unemployment rate has been nearly twice that of the national average all year long, hitting a high of 10.2 per cent in June. Inflation has cut deeply into car sales—main source of state incomes.

Milliken blames the state's economic woes primarily on the last winter's energy crisis. He estimates Michigan lost 200,000 jobs as a direct result of the Arab oil embargo.

Levin counters that unemployment has been high since Milliken took office nearly six years ago, and says the governor is wrong to try to "put the blame on the federal government or somebody else outside the state."

Democrats have displayed a rare unity in their effort to wrest Michigan state government from Republican rule for the first time in 12 years. Despite a three-man primary for the gubernatorial nomination, the Democrats thus far have managed to avoid the divisiveness that has been their bugaboo in years past.

"What's happening in Michigan is that party loyalties are starting to assert themselves," says Jack Casey, head of the advertising firm running the Levin campaign.

"If this becomes a Democrate-Republican referendum, we win easy."

But ticket-splitting also is a tradition in Michigan. That is how Milliken got elected in the same year that Democratic Sen. Philip A. Hart overwhelmingly defeated Lenore Romney, the wife of the man Milliken succeeded as governor.

To keep ticket-splitting at a minimum, Levin must appease the diverse factions of his party —no easy task just two years after George C. Wallace made Michigan the scene of his most impressive presidential primary victory.

A third party candidate, Democratic defecter Zolton A. Ferency, already has accused Levin of selling out to the conservative wing of his party on such issues tax reform and amnesty for draft evaders.

"I get the impression that Sandy's stronger at this point than in 1970," said Douglas A. Fraser, a United Auto Workers vice president and an influential Democratic leader.

"There's more positive reaction to his campaign because he's better known," Fraser said. "On the other hand, I'm afraid the same is true of Milliken."

Little change in California voter poll

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Despite the busy campaigning by Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Republican Houston Flournoy, California voters have not changed their mind much about the gubernatorial race since May, the California Poll said today.

It reported that 47 per cent say they now lean toward Brown and 36 per cent toward Flournoy with 1 per cent supporting other candidates and 16 per cent undecided.

The figures for May were 47-39 with 14 per cent undecided.

Pollster Mervin D. Field noted that despite face to face TV debates and considerable press reportage of their statements and positions, "this activity does not appear to have had great effect as yet in changing the basic support each candidate had at the start of the campaign."

Field said each candidate gets support of about 75 per cent of his party. "This kind of standoff favors Brown because Democrats outnumber Republicans on the registration rolls by almost two million people," he added.

Field said that for Flournoy to win, he must retain more than 75 per cent of the GOP vote and capture the support of 20-25 per cent of the Democrats, which is about what he did in winning the 1966 and 1970 races for controller.

Despite the little change in the candidates standings over the past few months, Field said that "events between now and Nov. 5 could sig- lineups. In a two-person race, lineups. In a twoperson race, any shift of sentiment has a compounding effect. For example, if only one Brown voter out of 17 were to shift allegiance from Brown to Flournoy, the present gap separating the candidates would evaporate and the race would be dead even.

" ... Furthermore, there are still many undecided voters, and their decisions could also have an important effect."

Novel way to remind a smoker

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Cancer Societys Illinois Division has come up with a way for nonsmokers to remind smokers that others have a right to breathe smoke-free air.

The society is offering a small black and gold pin or tie tack, available for 50 cents, with the initials "PDS."

When acquaintances ask what it means, the nonsmoker can tell them: "Please Don't Smoke."

The Illinois Division says it detects "a growing sentiment among nonsmokers, who constitute a majority of citizens, that their right to breathe clean air is greater than the smoker's right to pollute it."

For economic recovery

Less regulations: Morton

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — New federal financial regulations won't solve the current economic crisis because the problem was brought on in the first place by the burden of too many government restrictions on business, Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton said Monday.

The source of the nation's economic troubles "is too damn much government," Morton said.

"The tendency of government is, when you have gotten into a great deal of trouble by overregulation, to try to regulate your way out of it.

"Then you really have a mess—so look forward to it," he said.

Morton addressed a session of the American Mining Congress, a gathering of 20,000 U.S. and foreign mining industry executives, officials and experts.

Profits have become "a dirty word," Morton complained. "We have not let capital growth within industry do any more than barely reproduce itself, much less expand, at a time when increases are the order of the day," he said.

"We borrowed our way into the future, instead of bootstrapping our way with adequate cash flows and adequate capital growth."

He blamed the federal bureaucracy's strangling effect on the economy on ambitious politicians, too much power in the hands of labor leaders and the development of a feeling of dependency in Americans who expect the government to take care of them.

Industry must educate Americans about free enterprise, and the basic laws that govern it, such as supply and demand, he said.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., who succeeded President Ford as House minority leader, told the gathering that trying to solve all environmental complaints at once is unrealistic and leads to massive economic problems.

"It is simply a matter of recognizing reality," Rhodes said.

The industrial revolution has been creating pollution problems for more than 200 years and it will take time to clean them up, he said.

"We cannot shut down America in a vain attempt to restore overnight the panorama that greeted the pioneers," Rhodes said.

"I think we went overboard. The sudden and all-encompassing concern for the environment by Congress has created a plethora of problems.

"I think it's time Congress grants an amnesty to business" to "make government a helper instead of a tyrant as far as business goes," he said.

If the tax is needed to curb inflation "I think he (Ford) will get this on," Rhodes said.

Massachusetts vote

Watergate case spells trouble for incumbents

By RICHARD GAINES

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts voters apparently think the answer to their woes in this year of Watergate is to sweep out the old and sweep in the new.

The tide of opposition to incumbents swept two powerful Democratic party regulars from office in the primary.

Now it seriously threatens liberal Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

If the election were held today, it generally is believed the strong feeling against the "ins" would bring the victory to reformer Michael S. Dukakis, a former Democratic state legislator who has been out of government since 1970.

The feeling persists despite a determined effort by Sargent to disassociate himself from the Nixon and Ford administrations. Not only is such a strategy good politics in Massachusetts—the only state to vote for McGovern in 1972—but it is the sincere political philosophy of the maverick Sargent.

Watergate was a problem all incumbents were prepared to confront. But no one could envision the depth of public revulsion caused by President Ford's surprise pardon of Richard Nixon two days before the Sept. 10 primary.

"The pardon killed us," moans one key Sargent strategist. "It just killed us."

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn, an old-line Democratic stalwart who was buried by Dukakis in the gubernatorial primary, also believes the Nixon pardon cost him dearly.

The pardon apparently had the same effect in a young reformer's upset of the aging Democratic secretary of state, whose office had been the focus of intense journalistic investigation for two years.

Sargent's strong opposition to Nixon "is keeping us alive," said campaign manager Steve Crosby, "but that's about all."

Various polls, including one commissioned and published by The Boston Globe, show Dukakis leading Sargent by margins ranging from 12 to 18 per cent. Those polls caused Sarget to challenge Dukakis to a series of six one-hour televised debates — a turnaround from the norm. Dukakis, a former television moderator, quickly accepted.

As his first salvo in the first debate a week ago, Sargent acknowledged that the tide seems running strong against incumbents.

"A lot of good men, who fought hard against many of the national policies people are angry about, have already been swept out of office in this tide for new faces," Sargent said.

Though Dukakis has not campaigned on Watergate, the 40-year-old author of the nation's first no-fault auto insurance law has been critical of "a patronage system which has been the monkey on the back of state government...undermining the confidence of the people in their government."

But despite Sargent's troubles, which include an 8 per cent unemployment rate, the 58-year-old veteran is likely to lead the GOP ticket on election day. That fact bodes ill for a state GOP already unable to sustain his vetos in either house of the legislature.

The Democrats, beyond an expected sweep of the six statewide offices including attorney general, have a chance to increase their 9-3 control of the Congressional delegation by knocking off first-termer Paul W. Cronin, a former Nixon backer.

Democrat Robert F. Drinan, a member of the House Judiciary Committee and the first congressman to introduce an impeachment resolution, faces opposition from an independent and a Republican.

But Drinan, a Roman Catholic priest who recently became embroiled in a controversy with his superiors—including the head of the Boston archdiocese —over his political career, seems assured of re-election.

Signs of economy obvious in theaters, drive-ins

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — There haven't been any movies dealing with inflation but the signs of today's economy are apparent in theaters and driveins.

They appear in the form of higher ticket and refreshment prices, and in more subtle ways such as the size of the crowds (which are larger) and the drink cups (which are smaller).

Joy Houck Jr., who supervises a chain of 47 movie houses in Louisiana and Texas, says it's traditional that motion pictures attract larger audiences whenever the economy takes a downturn.

"The depression was Hollywood's golden era because that was the cheapest form of entertainment. It seemed that when we had the recession a while back around 1970 our business improved," Houck says.

"It seems that anytime the economy sort of tightens up, people turn away from other forms of entertainment such as boating or other things that take a substantial cash outlay, and they'll choose motion pictures instead.

"It's still the cheapest form of outside entertainment."

But Houck feels inflation also causes higher operating costs which are not offset by the increased attendance.

"It costs more to rent pictures. It's getting absurd with the major distributors. They want money so far in advance; they're asking for money three months, six months in advance on guarantees and bidding," Houck says. "There was a drought and everything happened to the popcorn. Popcorn costs went up 100 per cent in just a few months, and it's the same with all our concessions. Chocolate prices are sky high.

"So the first thing you do is start cutting the size. They used to be 14 ounce drinks and we cut it to 11 ounces, which is in effect boosting the price but you still get a drink for the same price. Popcorn, you cut the boxes down."

Houck says coconut oil for his popcorn machines increased in price from $22 to $47 for a 50 pound drum. But he draws the line at cutting quality along with quantity.

"We could go to a cheaper corn. We could stop using this coconut oil, which is the finest oil made. But we have people tell us they come to our pictures for our popcorn."

And he feels the same about the movies he features.

"You can't put just anything into your theaters any longer. People are turning back to wanting good entertainment. There's a rise in the demand for G-rated pictures."

"As long as we have entertainment people want, they'll come see it."

Foundation: spending beyond their means?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many large private foundations may have to trim their spending from now on but few as drastically as the 50 per cent slash being considered by the huge Ford Foundation.

With its assets down from $3 billion to $2 billion in market value in the last year alone, the Ford Foundation, the nation's largest, said it could not continue its present rate of spending. It has consistently given away more than it has earned in investment income.

A study made for the magazine Institutional Investor by researcher Lana Math earlier this year showed that 24 of the 50 biggest private foundations were dipping into their capital assets as the Ford Foundation had done to make grants.

Some were spending twice as much as their investment income on grants. In the 12-month period covered by Mrs. Math's study, Ford had made grants of $187.4 million against investment income of $114.6 million.

The reason so many of the foundations were living beyond their means, so to speak, is found in the federal tax laws. The laws seek to prevent a former practice of some wealthy families who set up foundations as perpetual tax shelters, making only token grants to education, science or charity. Under the law now a foundation must pay out all its investment income or a sum equivalent to 5.5 per cent of its assets, whichever is larger, each year in order to keep its tax exemption.

Since many of the foundations have comparatively small investment incomes for a variety of reasons, they have been compelled to dip into capital to make sufficient grants to meet the requirements of the law.

"For this reason," said a spokesman for Foundation Center, "the big decline of the securities markets is temporarily helpful to some foundations. As the market value of their portfolios declines, the amounts they are obligated to pay out under the law also drops, so they may be better able to live within their income."

The Tax Reform Law of 1969 also gives foundations whose assets are concentrated heavily in a single stock of the founder's company ten years to diversify these assets. The purpose again is to keep foundations from exercising undue control over business.

But this provision of the law has forced some foundations to sell off valuable income producing stocks and they have not been able to replace them with securities of equal potential in many cases.

Streaker's guilty of disruption

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Opel, 33, who startled an audience of movie stars and millions of television viewers by streaking the Academy Awards this year, was found innocent this week of indecent exposure for doing the same thing to a City Council meeting.

But a municipal court jury found Opel guilty on charges of disrupting a public meeting. Opel appeared in the buff during a heated council debate over allowing nudity on public beaches, strolling up to Police Chief Ed Davis and asking "Is this lewd?"

He was not arrested following his unclothed dash across the stage at the Oscar ceremonies, which provoked a rebuke from presenter David Niven that Opel was "showing his shortcomings."

Interest exemption

House panel moves to bolster savings, loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seeking to bolster the ailing housing industry, the House Ways and Means Committee cleared Tuesday legislation to exempt the first $500 of savings account interest from taxation.

The action sparked heated debate about whether it would primarily help well-to-do individuals, and whether it actually would accomplish its stated purpose of helping the home-building housing industry.

The Treasury Department strongly opposed the bill, as did the AFL-CIO and committee liberals. Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, R-Pa., ranking committee Republican, said following the 15-6 vote that President Ford would have no similar recommendation in his inflation-fighting plan.

A Treasury Department spokesman said the bill would reduce federal tax revenues by more than $1.8 billion a year while increasing available mortgage money only $3.5 billion on a one-time basis, and "we don't think that is good economics."

But Rep. Donald Brotzman, R-Colo., who sponsored the bill, said it actually would raise treasury revenue by increasing activity and employment in the housing industry.

The bill would exempt from taxation the first $500 —$1,000 on a joint return —of interest earned on savings accounts in savings and loan institutions, commercial banks, credit unions and mutual savings banks.

A similar proposal was earlier defeated by the committee, but the committee reversed itself after chairman Wilbur Mills swung his support to it.

Approval came during a sometimes boisterous committee session which saw the committee approve the bill, vote to reconsider it and then reverse its vote to reconsider.

Some members of the committee privately called the legislation the "re-elect Brotzman bill," and suggested it would never come up for House debate. The bill could not reach the floor before Congress returns from its election recess on Nov. 11.

The AFL-CIO said in a statement released shortly after the vote that the bill would be mainly a break for high-income families with large savings and high tax brackets.

"Not only will it (the bill) not ensure any more funds for mortgage loans, but it will drive up interest rates and cost the federal treasury up to $2 billion in lost revenue, most of it going to the wealthy in the form of a new tax shelter," the AFL-CIO said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

State road deaths show 21% decrease

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California traffic fatalities dropped 21.6 per cent during the first nine months of this year from the same period last year, according to the Highway Patrol.

The patrol Monday said the nine-month fatality total was 2,893, compared to 3,698 in the comparable period in 1973. It also said fatalities in September totaled 391, down 63 from the same month last year.

Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski earlier said he expected the deaths to reach last year's level by November or December despite the lower 55 mile-per-hour speed limit.

Deaths dropped off significantly early last winter after the legislature adopted the lower speed limit and California was hit by gasoline shortages.

But Pudinski said Californians were spending more time behind the wheel and fewer were obeying the reduced speed limit.

For cheerleaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. told the Senate he has a new chant for cheerleaders at the Harvard-Yale football game this year:

"Pull up your socks.

"Hitch up your pants.

"Get in there and fight

"For your federal grants."

Byrd, an independent, said recently the two Ivy League schools are currently receiving more than $1.5 million in federal grants for social studies research.

He said he thought it inappropriate for the federal government to be spending sums such as Yale's $65,000 to study the prehistory of Taiwan and Harvard's $28,600 for a study of prehistoric urban-rural relationships while the nation is "feeling the cruel pinch" of inflation.

Quake rattles L.A., Ventura counties

CAMARILLO, Calif. (UPI) — A moderate earthquake shook the coastline north of Los Angeles Monday evening, but apparently did no serious damage.

The tremor rattled southern Ventura County and sparsely inhabited beaches in northern Los Angeles County at 5:56 p.m. The seismology laboratory at Caltech said it registered 4.0 on the Richter Scale.

The tremor rattled windows and shook buildings, the Ventura County sheriff's office here said, but there were no reports of injury or serious property damage. The quake was centered between Point Mugu and Point Dume.

Mrs. Ford making excellent recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford continues to make an excellent recovery from her breast surgery, according to her doctors.

Dr. William Fouty, chief surgeon at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., said Monday the First Lady "is up much of the time now and moving about the suite as she pleases."

She got a telephone call Monday night from her husband, who was aboard Air Force One flying back from a speaking trip to Burlington, Vt.

Ford asked the pilots to place the call because he had not had time to talk to his wife during the day.

The medical center has said Mrs. Ford would be released Wednesday or Thursday.

U.S. sales of arms to Chile, Peru surge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chile and Peru have both gone on an arms buying spree in the United States, according to Pentagon statistics.

The order for F5 jet fighters, revealed in Santiago during the weekend, is only the latest in a series of weapons purchases by the two countries.

Chile is run by a right-wing military junta, Peru by a left-wing military government. But they also have an historic border rivalry dating back to the last century which has fueled the latest arms race.

The 18 F5Es and 32 A37B attack planes which the Chilean junta has now ordered were actually offered while the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende was still in office.

In June, 1973 —three months before Allende's overthrow — then Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced that President Nixon had authorized F5 sales to Chile, Brazil, Colombia, Argentina and Venezuela. Negotiations for the A37 sale began even a year earlier, Washington sources said. They said so far only Chile and Brazil of the five have ordered the F5.

Pentagon statistics showed that through the late 1960s, Peru ordered $1 million to $4 million in arms each year from the United States. Suddenly in fiscal year 1973 Peru ordered $24 million worth and in fiscal year 1974, which ended June 30, it ordered $44 million more.

Chile had been buying $1 million to $7 million in U.S. arms a year until fiscal 1973 — the last year of Allende —when that country ordered $15 million worth. In fiscal 1974 —the first year of the junta —arms orders soared to $68 million and Chile ranked as the No. 1 Latin American buyer of U.S. arms.

The Peruvians have been buying everywhere, State Department officials said —tanks from Russia, armored cars from Argentina, and ships from Italy, Holland and Britain. One official estimated the Peruvian military has from $200 million to $500 million to spend on arms each year.

During the 1960s the United States sought to prevent a new arms race in Latin America. Most air forces there were equipped with aging Korean War vintage F86s, and before any country could begin looking for a modern replacement, Congress placed a $75 million annual ceiling on arms sales to Latin America.

In 1967 Peru came shopping for modern jets and Washington said no. Peru then went to France and bought modern Mirage fighters. That set off a new arms race and five major Latin nations have since bought 300 Mirages —an investment of more than half a billion dollars.

During exercise

Marijuana speeds up pain in heart cases

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — A few puffs on a marijuana cigarette will cut in half the length of time a heart patient can exercise without feeling sharp chest pains, a cardiological researcher says.

This is about twice as great as the harmful effect of tobacco cigarettes, said Dr. Wilbert S. Aronow.

Aronow is associate professor of medicine and chief of cardiovascular research at the University of California at Irvine, and chief of cardiology attending Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

His previous studies, published in medical journals, dealt with the effect of smoking on men with heart trouble who performed exercise.

Smoking a filtered, lownicotine cigarette decreased by 13 per cent the time the test subject could exercise without feeling angina pectoris, the sharp chest pains coronary patients feel under strain.

The average cigarette decreased the exercise time by about 24 per cent, Aronow said, but 10 puffs on a marijuana cigarette reduced the amount of exercise before pain set in by 48 per cent.

The main villain in both cases is carbon monoxide, present in both tobacco and marijuana cigarettes, Aronow said.

It is known that nicotine is also harmful, causing an increase in pulse and blood pressure.

But his latest experiments show that the main active ingredient in marijuana, THC, has an effect on the cardiovascular system like that of nicotine, but the THC produces a stronger effect.

It is not accurate to equate one marijuana cigarette with one tobacco cigarette, Aronow said, because of the great disparity in the amount smoked by heavy users. Where a heavy smoker of tobacco cigarettes may smoke 20 to 25 in a day, a marijuana smoker will use only three or four "joints" in the same period, the researcher said.

Cutbacks loom if school tax loses

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

Pomona school district cannot afford to operate 31 schools next year — the current number — if its tax override proposal on the Nov. 5 ballot fails, according to Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz.

Wentz made the statement at school board meeting Tuesday night following a report by a chairman of a citizens committee promoting the proposal and a charge by board member Don Donnelly that, "It is our obligation to get this message out and let the community know what the cuts will be if the election fails."

In Proposition QQ on the ballot, the district is proposing a $1.44 per $100 of assessed valuation increase in its general purpose tax rate.

Following Wentz' statement, Dr. James Bell, a board member, read from a district-printed information sheet, which will be distributed throughout Pomona and Diamond Bar by the citizens committee, that failure of the override would mean a cutback of 60 to 80 administrators and teachers, 40 to 60 non-teaching employes, an increase in class size and cuts in maintenance and security programs at the schools.

This year the district's $25 million budget reflects a $2.6 million deficit — spending over income — and literally wipes out district reserves.

Nelson D. Scherer, who with Michael A. Wharton chairs the Citizens Committee for Quality Schools which is working in support of the ballot proposal, said a steering committee of 40 would be ready to move, probably within the next couple of weeks, in a campaign which will involve 300 to 400 residents walking precincts in the district soliciting support. Scherer said 1,000 signs would be distributed in Pomona and Diamond Bar. One he placed in the board room read "Yes on QQ — Quality Schools for Quality Communities."

The committee is working on a $1,000 budget, Scherer explained. All the money has been contributed and the largest contribution was $50, he said.

Scherer said he recognized that to succeed in getting Proposition QQ passed "will be an uphill battle all the way."

Raymond T. Lahar, president of Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) commended the committee for its zeal and dedication, and said APT had taken a position of support on the proposition "to indicate our common commitment for better schools for Pomona."

However, Lahar warned, the override must not be viewed as a referendum on salaries. "The board must delineate where cuts are to be made."

"I don't want to see this become a premature bargaining point," said board chairman Ken Pine. "Why do I have this feeling we're being snookered?" asked Bell, his hands upraised.

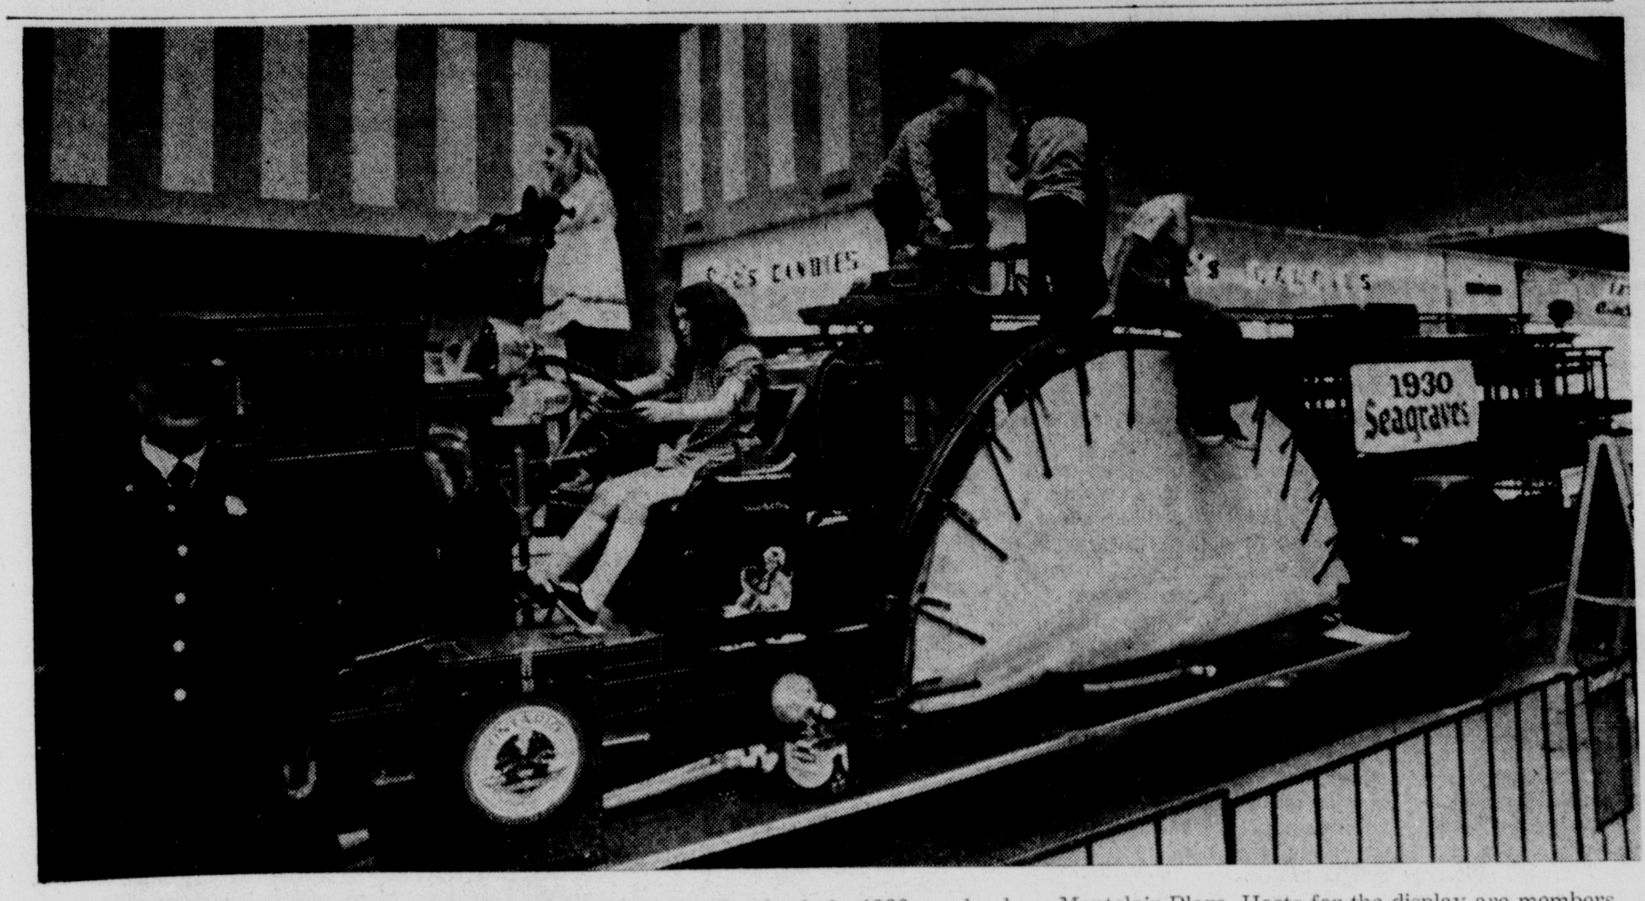
Board member Philip S. Wessels pointed out that the citizens committee, not the school board, was running the supportive campaign.

"I'm aware of the gravity of your position," answered Lahar, "But if the proposition fails and you have not told the committee what is in store they will say you did not tell the truth."

Pine said that specific cuts could not be pointed out now because "we just don't know, and this is not a scare tactic. I'm just being very realistic. Inflation takes its toll on everything. It does not stop at education. But if cuts have to be made, and I dread the day, it would start with school plants and go all the way down."

Scherer said he knew that "glossing it over and trying to hide it is not the answer," but, he said, "we know you can't give definite answers, and this is the approach we have taken in the community.

"Probably what you can do best for the committee," Scherer told the school board, "is to convey to the community that this is serious business we're talking about. That the money would not be used for frills, but to maintain quality education in Pomona."



THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Barbara Satterfield takes the wheel of a 1930s model fire truck to give friends a pretend ride in the retired truck that is part of a special exhibit on display tonight and Thursday during shopping hours at the Montclair Plaza. Fire departments combine exhibit, briefing at plaza

The Ontario, Montclair, Alta Loma and Cucamonga fire departments are hosting a special exhibit of equipment and informational material at the Montclair Plaza today and Thursday in observance of National Fire Prevention Week.

Inspector Larry Smith of the Montclair Fire Department reported that the four West End departments will continue the special exhibit during the regular shopping hours of the Montclair Plaza.

Among the features are an old 1930 Seagraves fire truck owned by Ontario; a 1974 America-La France pumper from Cucamonga; a 1961 Crown pumper from Montclair; a graveyard with tips on fire prevention written on tombstones; Blaze, the Dalmation mascot from the Montclair department and fire prevention movies and brochures.

Personnel from all departments will be at the plaza from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. today and Thursday to answer questions. A special invitation is issued to school children and their parents.

Mountain Springs Estates must pay for clean roads

The City of La Verne cannot legally sweep the privately owned streets of Mountain Springs Estates for a token $1 a year.

Instead, residents of the fashionable La Verne Heights neighborhood may have to pay the going rate of $20 per hour each time the sweeper goes through if they want to keep their streets clean.

That was the opinion of Acting City Atty. Terry Brutocao Monday night, after the City Council asked him to look into the legality of using the sweeper on the private streets.

The city was willing to do the sweeping for $1 a year to accommodate the 75 residents who belong to the city but whose streets are not part of the city's system.

But Brutocao said such an arrangement would be construed as a "gift of public funds." He said an adequate charge should be made which covers all costs, both direct and indirect, to avoid criticism.

The council forwarded the opinion to the Mountain Springs Homeowners Association.

In other matters, the council:

—Ratified the appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burger to the City Beautiful Committee, and accepted the resignation of John Kowite. It also accepted the resignation from the Parks and Recreation Commission of Bill Williams, who is moving to Idaho.

—Approved the application of the Award Construction Co. to prezone five acres of land on the northwest corner of Emerald Avenue from agricultural to planned residential 4½ units to the acre after a public hearing when no one objected.

—Accepted the recommendation of the Planning Commission to change zoning from agricultural to planned residential, three units to the acre, on the north side of Bowdoin Street, east of the Emerald Wash. The change was requested by Award Construction Co. for five acres of land.

—Gave a vote of confidence to the Mexican American Urban Coalition program which has undertaken an educational project at La Verne College for children.The council indicated it would appropriate $3,500 to the project if an application is presented at the next meeting, showing how the money would be used.

'Nothing to hide'

School board doesn't duck requested grand jury probe of hiring

Chino school officials resolved Tuesday night to cooperate with any grand jury investigation of district hiring practices.

Despite objections raised by board member Al McCombs, trustees approved a resolution stating they would extend "full cooperation to any properly authorized investigative body concerned with the personnel selection policy."

The board and Supt. Royce Lapp made it clear the action should not be considered a favorable response to the request by Associated Chino Teachers (ACT) for the grand jury probe.

The ACT, largest teacher group in Chino, made the request by letter Monday to the San Bernardino Grand Jury to investigate what ACT terms unfair hiring practices.

Helen Orr, ACT president, has said "winning candidates" often are determined for jobs before openings are even formally announced.

Miss Orr also states "favored" persons are placed in positions for which they might not hold appropriate credentials. The ACT has declined to disclose names of teachers involved or identify positions.

Board members indicated Tuesday they do not agree with the necessity for a grand jury probe but they said the district has "nothing to hide" and they would cooperate with an investigation.

Lapp stated he still feels accusations listed in several letters distributed by the ACT are unfair.

In a response to Miss Orr's letters, he said "I was shocked to see your organization stoop to this kind of unprofessional approach. I had assumed this kind of smear by innuendo was beneath your dignity."

Lapp challenged teachers to present evidence to him of appointments determined before openings were announced.

The resolution approved by trustees is not an exception to policy, he declared. "It only states we have nothing to hide, and we are following specified guidelines in seeking the best qualified persons for jobs."

McCombs, however, declared the resolution is an "overreaction" to the teachers' letters. "It suggests we didn't have this policy of cooperation before.

The teachers' letters should not be "dignified" by the resolution, he added, because of "innuendo" contained in them.

McCombs' motion to strike the resolution and substitute a motion reaffirming prsent district policy died for lack of a second.

Trustee Charles Smith disagreed with McCombs, saying he didn't interpret the resolution the same way. "I don't agree with the request for an investigation but I'm not afraid of the grand jury coming in here."

Augustine Tapia, another board member, said "the district has not violated any policy" and "we will cooperate with the grand jury."

The resolution was approved unanimously, 4-0. Board member Pete VanderPoel was absent from the meeting.

Armed man gets cash and locks clerk in cooler

A man robbed the Stop and Go Market at 656 N. Mountain Ave. in Upland of a small amount of cash Tuesday.

Police said that a Caucasian with blond hair and a goatee and armed with a machete-type knife confronted the store clerk about 1 a.m. and ordered him to turn over the cash from the register. The robber escaped on foot. The robber was further described as 6 feet 1, 190 pounds, 21 or 22, with an oblong tatoo on his right forearm. He was wearing a white T-shirt.

Police said the robber locked the clerk in the freezer before fleeing.

Man cleared of 2 slayings in youth gang rivalry case

A young Montebello-area man has been acquitted of two murder charges after a six-day trial before a Pomona Superior Court jury.

The defendant, Raymond Guzman, 21, was accused of murder in the deaths Easter Sunday of Rudy Guzman Jr., 17, (no relation), and Robert Luis Arizmendi, 18, both of whom died of gunshot wounds outside a trailer park 2662 Padero Road in El Monte.

Also shot in the incident was Roger Montoya, 19, who survived by playing dead.

The shooting was the result of rivalry between the El Monte Flores Gang and the White Fence Gang, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Harold Hofman. Guzman, a member of the White Fence Gang, was accused of walking up to a car containing the three victims and shooting them when they told him who they were.

Montoya, the survivor, told the court he could not identify the shooter, and the jury ruled Guzman innocent after deliberating the case about 3½ days.

Hofman said that had the trial resulted in a conviction, he would have sought the death penalty on the theory that a double homicide qualified the case under the state's new capital punishment law.

The trial was in the court of Pomona Superior Court Judge Charles N. Vogel.

START OF PRADO PARK

State Sen. Ruben S. Ayala and San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend, center, stand in front of a large construction sign which was unveiled Tuesday along Euclid Avenue south of Pine Avenue, Chino area, to signify the start of work for the Prado Regional Park. The park, set for completion in July, 1976, will occupy 286 acres now mostly leased from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The park's main attraction will be a 56-acre lake for boating and fishing. About 100 persons attended the dedication ceremony held near the park's future entrance. The park's cost is estimated at $4.3 million.

3 school board candidates will appear in forum

Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) will host a forum for Pomona school board candidates next Tuesday at 4 p.m. at 300 Pomona Mall West.

The date of the forum has been changed from Thursday.

Voters in the district wishing to become acquainted with the candidates may attend. Following their talks, candidates will be questioned.

Mrs. Frances M. Livingston, Dr. Mary Montes and Gene Whitlock are the three candidates competing for the school board seat in the Nov. 5 election.

Golf club restaurant, hit by fire, reopening this weekend

Work is now under way to restore the fire damaged San Dimas Canyon Golf Course Restaurant and it will be open for business by the weekend, according to San Dimas city officials.

The Los Angeles County Fire Department is conducting an investigation into the cause of a fire that apparently started shortly after midnight Saturday. The fire was discovered by two men who were walking past the building.

The fire heavily damaged a storeroom and also did extensive heat and smoke damage to the restaurant. Damage is estimated at $15,000.

City Manager Robert Poff said the fire will in no way hamper plans to build a new clubhouse. The city originally had planned to revamp the present clubhouse and add on to it. But when bids for the project came in there were about $40,000 more than the City Council had anticipated.

The council at a recent meeting decided to shelve the orginal plans and tear down the present clubhouse and construct a new one on the site. This was decided after contractors advised that it would be more economical to start over than try to remodel the old building. The new plan does exclude the proposed underground storage garage for the golf carts.

Poff said he is hopeful that the costs can be kept at the $200,000 price range. He added that the new clubhouse will not be constructed until late next year.

Supervisors act to control RTD

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, who control more taxpayer money than most state legislatures, took steps recently to acquire complete control over a quasi-public agency that feeds heavily at the public trough through a tax subsidy.

The supervisors, displeased with the way the board of directors of the Rapid Transit District is running the bus system and, in particular, the ineffectiveness of the RTD board in ending the two-month-old bus strike, voted to cut the RTD board membership in half.

The supervisors ordered the county counsel to prepare proposed state legislation to trim the RTD board from 11 members to five, all of whom would be appointed by the supervisors.

As it is presently constituted, the transit agency board has five members appointed by the supervisors, two named by the mayor of Los Angeles, and four representing the major travel "corridors" in the county.

Obviously, the supervisors have lost confidence in the administration responsible for running the only countywide public transportation system.

Thus it appears somewhat incongruous when, on the one hand, the supervisors voted unanimously to make the RTD board subservient to them, and, on the other hand, the supervisors, by a majority vote, endorsed Proposition A on the November ballot. The proposition calls for a one cent sales tax increase to provide millions for expansion of the existing bus system and construction of a 145-mile high speed transit system.

With a five-member RTD board, all appointed by the supervisors, it's not difficult to determine who would be in the driver's seat.

We're not sure that even after they had gained control that the supervisors could do any better job of running the bus system.

But we do believe that it would be a dangerous precedent to provide the supervisors or the RTD board, or both, all those millions in taxpayer money without a definite plan for spending that money.

Pomonan gets action from Veysey

In this day of disbelief in our government and public reaction to the theory that most all politicians are standing accused of not carrying on their duties properly, it is a relief to report on the action—and I mean complete action—with a follow through.

There is one politician who must be complimented for being involved with his constituents of the newly apportioned 35th district here in Pomona. His name is Victor Veysey, our Republican congressman.

After fighting six months to obtain supplemental security income for my disabled wife to no avail, being passed from office to office with no results, I happened to receive a letter of introduction from Rep. Veysey's office, saying he would welcome meeting all persons involved in such governmental problems.

I consulted his office and in only two weeks received our sought after help — our check. Not stopping there, Rep. Veysey's office called my wife to ascertain whether she had been helped.

Such courtesy and help should not go unnoticed. You may be sure that I will support this man whenever it is my opportunity to do so. We need competent, courteous men of action like this in our government.—William C. Kelch, Pomona.

Teaching children to read

I would like to make a brief comment on one aspect of today's educational system. I feel that teachers of the earlier elementary school grades such as kindergarten, first grade, and second grade are doing a very poor job of teaching children how to read.

This may be an old topic of discussion, but I feel it to be an important one. Children with reading difficulties should be given more individualized instruction; after all, reading is the most important fundamental skill and the greatest learning tool. Children simply cannot advance unless they have this "stepping-stone."

I know of a young third grade girl who can hardly read; the words she does know are words she has memorized. Reading is not a memory game; it is a system that must be imbedded in the minds of all. No one can go through life knowing just ten or eleven words; after all, what would become of the newspaper industry?—D.C., Claremont. Letter signed but name withheld by request.

Just in jest

In an effort to curb inflation, prominent politicians and government officials are urging the President to start "Jawboning" industrialists and business men who insist on raising prices on their products and wares. It's a noble suggestion with which, in theory, I most certainly agree; but I do have this warning for those who are proposing it: —Let that politician or government expert who is without sin cast the first jawbone. — To illustrate my point, in 1951 we could mail a post card for one cent. Today it costs 8 cents. And one could go on and on so far as government price raising is concerned. — From all of which I can only come to one conclusion. The guiding rule by which most politicians operate is, "Don't do as I do, do as I say."

Arabs learn from U.S. generosity

WASHINGTON — The United States is currently sending emissaries around the globe to preach the cause of brotherhood in the marketplace, and there probably has never been a better example of missionaries abroad who haven't a church at home.

The idea of the inventors of dogmatic capitalism purring gently for "shared commodities" reminds one of the remark attributed to Jacques Du Lorens: "Beware of him those days when he receives communion."

The nation, after all, wrote the rules for modern international trade—and all the rules are hardnosed. If you got it, flaunt it. No one has ever accused Yankee businessmen of being soft on morality.

Undeniably, there is urgent reason for the U.S. movement toward multilateral reasonableness. The Bank of England reports that the oil exporting countries have amassed a cash surplus of $25 billion so far this year, this while several industrial nations face bankruptcy and most third world peoples court disaster. According to a diplomat from India, inflation there has so upset the norm that: "Some of our city people now gather animal chips to burn as fuel."

Yet the United States, unhappily, simply has little credence in the debate over sweet moderation. President Ford said the other day that no sovereign people can allow "their policies to be dictated, or their fate decided by artificial rigging and distortion of commodity prices" in other nations. This is a nice thought but considering the source is highly suspect. Ambrose Bierce once wrote that the "hardest tumble one can make is to fall over his own bluff." The world knows that a U.S. preaching trade justice is a U.S. asking others to do as it says, not does.

Moreover, Ford would do well to keep the nation out of any principled talk against commodity influencing. The country has for decades used its goods to muscle in on the policies of other societies. U.S. food, as illustration, has long been used to buy favors from or thwart actions of foreign countries. As recently as last summer American diplomats told the Bangladesh government that unless it stopped exporting certain goods to Cuba it would be ineligible to receive easy payment loans for American food. Reluctantly, Bangladesh obeyed.

Even America's mercy food, certainly as important as oil in the present discussion of international ethics, has often been packaged with suggestive strings. Until recently almost one-half of the nation's Food For Peace shipments went to Southeast Asia, hardly an area of famine. Now much of it goes to Chile and Egypt, also nations far from the verge of starvation.

This isn't to say that political ramifications are tied to every potato we give away, but candid officials who oversee such programs admit: "When people overseas see our wheatsacks on the dock they must wonder what part of the national soul was used as the purchase price."

In sum, the traditional American view of itself as bighearted is not shared by many other citizens of the world. And the statistics, too, dent the image. According to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the United States gives less than a quarter of one percent (.23) of its Gross National Product in aid to other nations, and ranks only 14th among member nations in such generosity. Tiny Sweden gives twice the proportional amount as the U.S. Portugal gives three times the amount.

And so it is that our nation, suddenly religious, will likely get nowhere urging the oil producers to use the compassion we have often ignored. As a high level Iranian in Washington puts it: "Look to yourself. Does Ford Motor Company use compassion in selling its automobiles? Does General Electric think of the poor people when it sets its prices for refrigerators? No. And no. But now you denounce us for doing only what you've been doing for generations."

So much for hypocrisy. As someone once said: "Affection lights a candle to our defects and though it may gratify us, it disgusts all others."

Study raps Nixon for oil price rise

WASHINGTON — A confidential congressional study blames the Nixon administration for permitting the oil companies to gouge almost $9 billion out of motorists and other consumers in the last year.

Four dubious and perhaps illegal White House decisions were responsible for the $9 billion loss, according to a study ordered by consumer watchdog Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif. In addition, the report reveals that Congress itself directly caused a $2.6 billion ripoff.

These five pro-industry edicts not only gobbled up the consumers' pocket money at the pump, but they also served to boost inflationery pressure and allowed the major oil companies to increase their profits by an average of 71 per cent, right in the middle of the oil crisis.

Here are the five rapacious rulings as detailed in the Library of Congress Economics Division study prepared for Moss, chairman of the House Commerce and Finance subcommittee:

—The Cost of Living Council allowed the oil companies to increase "old oil" from existing wells from $4.25 to $5.25 even though "this is oil that cost, roughly, less than $1 to produce." The consumer was stuck with $1.9 billion in excess oil bills. The Administration had claimed the Treasury Dept. had documents to justify the increase. But now, Treasury Secretary William Simon has privately conceded to Moss that no "Treasury or Federal Energy Office papers were presented" at the Cost of Living meeting where the decision was made.

—Originally, the Cost of Living Council froze oil prices at $4.25 per barrel in 1972, a price some 30 per cent higher than previous levels. Then, in August 1973, the council freed prices on newly discovered oil to encourage exploration. This allowed the price to zoom to $10.50 a barrel even though costs to the oil firms were seldom more than $2 per barrel. The consumer costs: $3.25 billion.

—For every barrel of new oil produced, the council let Big Oil take the price lid off one barrel of old oil. This was also designed to encourage exploration. This questionable boondoggle cost consumers $2.23 billion.

—The Federal Engery Office let retailers raise their profit margin from 7.25 cents per gallon to 11 cents per gallon because of gasoline shortages. But now the pumps are full and the motorists' wallets are still being tapped by the high margins. The cost to oil and gasoline users: $2.89 billion.

—Congress is to blame, the Moss study notes, for exempting oil wells producing less than 10 barrels a day from price controls. While this may have kept some marginal wells in production, it cost the consumers $2.64 billion.

The Moss report concludes by noting a "ripple effect" caused when oil prices "have dragged coal and intrastate natural gas prices up with them."

Since everything from peanuts to power plants are produced or fueled by oil, coal or natural gas, this has meant thay every price rise can, in part, be tied to the oil price hikes. The cozened consumer, therefore, has been tapped twice: Once with the $11.5 billion loss and once with the higher general prices this rise has brought on.

Justice one of victims of My Lai

People may argue about whether or not Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was a cold-blooded mass murderer, though there is no question that he gunned down scores of Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai, placing them forever beyond the reach of communism or anything else.

People may argue about whether or not he was the victim of pretrial publicity, though we seem to be reaching the point in this country where we will be afraid to charge anybody with any crime lest the mere announcement of the charge be construed as prejudicial to the defendant.

The real cause for concern, however, is not the extent of Calley's personal guilt or innocence, nor even the "massive adverse pretrial publicity" which was the first and most important of three factors cited by Federal District Judge J. Robert Elliott in Columbus, Ga., in throwing out Calley's court-martial conviction. Nor is it the third point in the reversal order—that the Army failed to be specific in its charges against Calley.

It is the second point—the judge's finding that Calley was denied a fair trial because of the Army's refusal to subpoena witnesses his defense lawyers requested. Among them, Melvin R. Laird, then Secretary of Defense, and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam at the time of My Lai massacre.

In his lengthy criticism of the Army and its handling of the court-martial, Judge Elliott noted that precedents established at the Nuremberg war crimes trials after World War II had "set the stage for an argument that the petitioner's (Calley's) superiors could well have been worried about their own possible criminal responsibility as a result of the My Lai incident."

If so doing, Judge Elliott has suggested that it was not only Calley but the American people who were denied justice. He is not the first to do so, but he is the first man who has been in a position to do something about it.

And he has done the only that that could be done, and that is to free Calley.

Calley was guilty, of wanton disregard for human life, if nothing else. But how many others above him, and how far above him, were also guilty?

The sad thing is that many Americans may not even want to know.

All we can say is that the war itself was guilty. Not war in general, though all wars have their horrors, but this war in particular. It was a dirty, ill-conceived war in which My Lai —which was far from being the only atrocity committed against the Vietnamese by either side—was an inevitable consequence of the nature of the fighting itself.

Justice has not been done. But perhaps the freeing of William Calley will write an end to an ugly chapter in this country's history.

Liberal birds at roost

LISBON — The armed forces, on full alert since an alleged right-wing coup attempt over the weekend, arrested another 59 persons in a round-up of suspects accused of planning the downfall of the left-wing government, military sources said Wednesday. —News report.

Ah, the blessings of democracy, after all these years of right-wing repression . . .

Yes, indeed, it's been a busy fortnight for the chickens hatched by liberal moralizers in the foreign policy field. For the birds coming home to roost, you see, are in the form of left-wing dictatorships, not only in Lisbon but Athens, the cradle of democracy itself.

From Greece comes word that the government of Constantine Caramanlis has officially placed former Premier George Papadopolous under house arrest. All in the spirit, we can assume, of the new democracy Greece is supposedly enjoying since the fall of the repressive right-wing junta liberal moralizers used to inveigh against on the U.S. Senate floor.

A pause here for a brief refresher course on the trickly semantics of what might be called the Frank Church school of international moralizing:

"Military-backed dictatorship" is the pejorative description applied by Sen. Church and other liberal foreign policy analysts to totalitarian governments of the right. And only the right.

You won't for example, read or hear members of the Church school charge that Fidel Castro heads a "repressive military-backed dictatorship"; though in fact he does, much like the present rulers of Chile, whom the Idaho Senator does condemn with great moral passion.

But Chile's current government is right, while Castro is left. Which explains why Church is concerned about the extent of this county's influence in undoing the Allende regime but has shown no interest in examining U.S. influence of a different kind which helped bring the blessing of Marxist "democracy" to the Cuban people.

On the contrary, the liberal moralizers, even as they inveigh against Chilean dictatorship, are simultaneously incubating a campaign that would lead to U.S. economic support of Castro's dictatorship.

So, too, following the same double standard, Sen. Church and his allies have yet to be heard speaking out against Caramanlis's actions in Greece or the recent repression in Portugal.

To be sure, the report that the new Greek regime has taken undemocratic steps to silence its political opposition on the right is hardly surprising. Papadopoulos did much the same to his leftist opposition when he ran things in Athens—as the moralizers were quick and often to note.

Sadly but surely, the record of Greece—as well as Portugal, Cuba, Chile, Vietnam, Korea and the majority of countries throughout the world—is one of political repression, both left and right, since the memory of historians runneth not to the contrary.

Indeed, the idea that Americans could and should "make the world safe for democracy," either through military intervention, foreign aid or self-righteous moralizing, is the liberals' unique contribution to American foreign policy during this century. Ironically, even the CIA influence in other countries, which Church and the American left now condemn, is a product of the same internationalist fallacy.

Yet the question remains: why are our liberal foreign policy critics so one-sided in their capacity for indignation against political repression in other countries? Let us hear, just once, some criticism of left-wing "military-backed dictatorships," and perhaps the notion might subside that the acolytes of the Frank Church school operate on an ideological double-standard in their moral judgements.

Meanwhile, in Libson and Athens, two repressive regimes of the right, friendly to this country, have been replaced by two repressive regimes of the left. The chickens have home come to roost, and those cackling sounds we're hearing, I'm afraid, can only emanate from Moscow and Peking.

Requirements explained on smog control devices

Could you tell us why a charge for the exempt sticker is made on cars that need not be equipped with the newest smog control device?

Why is it so high?

We were delighted when we found out that our two cars already were equipped with proper smog control devices.

Then we learned there would be a charge for a little sticker for the windshield. — Mrs. R.B., Pomona.

You are talking about requirements for 1966-70 vehicles.

The cost of the sticker itself is estimated at around 50 cents.

But when you get the sticker, your car has to be checked out by a mechanic and there is paper work to be done.

People at the State California Air Resources Board say that the charge for an "exempt" car should be from $3 to $5.

Only certain models built by General Motors in 1970 meet the new requirements for air pollution control and are exempt from the smog control requirement device.

If you bought your car from a private owner who had it equipped with an accredited device, there must be additional testing to make certain the device is doing the job.

The charge in this case should be from $8 to $10.

As we said before, answering an earlier qeustion: If a car owner's license plate number ends with 1, he was supposed to have met the NOx smog control device requirement last month.

If the plate number ends with 2, the device must be installed by Oct. 31. The procdure continues through 9 in May 1975 and ends in June 1975.

Cars built in 1955 through 1965 are covered in another program with exhaust emission control dependent on change of ownership.

I'm writing in regard to a problem my son has.

He opened a joint checking account with his wife. Both are new to checking accounts and how they work.

My son has paid his bills and kept track of those bills but unbeknown to him his wife wrote many checks and kept no record of the amounts. The bank does not notify them when their account is overdrawn. It just keep charging $4 each time.

It will not close the bank account or make any attempt to alleviate the problem. — Y.H.

You are asking us to treat the symptom instead of the disease.

The problem you describe is really your son's and his wife's and should be resolved between them.

It won't be solved until your daughter-in-law understands that she is creating grave problems for herslef and her husband by irresponsibility.

If their account happens to be one which can be closed by one signer, your son could close it and open a new account in his name alone until his wife learns to balance a bank book.

I will appreciate your assistance in getting my refund of $100.80 from the Ohio Public Employes Retirement System.

I feel that three months is long enough to let the system have my money interest free.

When I quit my job with the Stark County auditor, I was told to allow six weeks for receipt of the retirement system refund. — A.S., Pomona.

Two and a half weeks after we wrote to the retirement system office, we were notified that the refund was sent two days after our letter was mailed.

Officials of the system claimed that the retirement law of Ohio requires that three months must elapse after service terminates before a refund of contributions can be made.

ANN LANDERS

Overweight dads may manufacture widows besides unexplained sweats

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 30 years old, 5'9" and weighs 240 pounds. Statistics shows that in about ten years he will have his first heart attack or stroke. Already he is uninsurable at his present weight.

Last week he had two "unexplainable" cold sweats and last night he suffered his second "unexplainable" nosebleed in three weeks.

We have three children, the baby is less than a year old. The future looks dismal because I fear our two youngest will be fatherless during their teen years, when their need for a dad is the greatest. I am not asking for any answers from Ann Landers. I've been reading your column long enough to know what you tell people who ask what to do about a husband who eats too much, drinks too much or is hooked on cigarets or dope. You tell them, "It's a do-it-yourself project and nobody can make someone else do or stop doing anything."

I am asking you to please publish my letter so some overweight daddies out there will see themselves as their wives see them. Maybe then they will understand that we don't want to be naggers, we just hate to see them kill themselves. — We Really Love Them

Dear Love: I can hear those scissors snipping away all across the country. This column is going to be placed on more dinner plates and pillows and taped to more bathroom mirrors than any I've printed in a long, long time.

Dear Ann Landers: I come from a family of very superstitious people. Almost every hour of the day or night our house sounds like it has been invaded by woodpeckers. Everybody is knocking on wood. How did this superstition get started? — Just Wondering

Dear Just: Knocking on wood goes back to the Druids of ancient England who believed the trees were inhabited by gods. When asking a favor, the Druid priests would knock on the bark of a tree. If the "tree-god in residence" was in the mood to grant a favor he would knock back. Today it's still a common way of trying to make a dream come true.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in my early 40s. After 23 years of a marriage I find myself thrust upon the world in a society I can't even remember. I'm a single woman searching for a mate.

I've had two dates in the last several months and both of them wanted to check into a motel. I said "NO" and haven't heard from either man since.

I've been called "frigid," "old-fashioned," "hungup" and "too reilgious." I've been told I'm saving myself for nothing and that I'm out of my mind.

My children are grown and the thought of going through life without a husband is very depressing. I'm a person who is only whole when I'm half.

Am I being unrealistic, Ann? Statistically, do I stand a chance of remarriage? I have a good figure and am fairly attractive. Can you give me a little hope? Are there any men in their 40s left who want a woman in her 40s? Or are they all chasing young girls, trying to recapture their own youth? — Lonesome

Dear L: Look for a man in his 50s or early 60s. Men in their 40s are looking for women in their 30s.

But don't give up — or in. Your high standards will protect you against getting mixed up with bums and sex maniacs. Those two clowns who offered you a night in a motel on the first date were no bargains. Be glad you didn't waste your time on them.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers's completly new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. AT WIT'S END

Kids' reasoning doesn't make cents

By ERMA BOMBECK

While sitting at the breakfast table yesterday, a shiny object in the carpet caught my eye.

"What is that?" I asked my son.

He kicked it with his foot. "A penny," he said and kept walking.

My daughter came through and I said, "There's a penny in the carpet," and she said, "So who's the heavy tipper?"

When my younger son came by I said, "Hey, reach down and pick up that penny."

"That's not my job," he said, "Let the sweeper do it."

"So this is what we have come to," I said, addresssing the group.

"Are you going to tell us the story of how Granddad lived on a farm and was so poor they couldn't afford Christmas and when he reached in his stocking, all he found was a bright, new, shiny penny and he was choked up all year? Because if you are, I have to go to my locker before class."

Ignoring him I continued, "When your grandfather was a little boy and lived on a farm they were so poor they couldn't afford Christmas but they hung their stockings up anyway . . ."

"And when he got up there was a bright, shiny, new penny, right?" interrupted my daughter.

"And when he got up Christmas morning," I continued slowly, "His stocking was empty until he saw something sticking in the toe. Do you have any idea what it was?"

"A BRIGHT, SHINY, NEW PENNY!" they yelled in unison.

"It was a bright, shiny, new penny," I said simply, "and it brought tears to his eyes."

"That surprises you?" mumbled my daughter, "I'd have been hysterical."

"Have you all become so crass about money that you no longer believe that a man is never so tall as when he stoops to pick up a penny?"

"Where did you read that?"

"On a T-shirt at the beach," I said.

"But a penny doesn't buy anything anymore," they wailed.

"A penny is 1-10 of a dime," I counseled wisely, "A hundred of them will make a whole dollar. Why a penny used to take away the tears of a small child, bring you good luck for a year, decorate your loafers, and be the beginning of all your dreams."

My son looked at at his watch, "Hey, Mom, if you want to borrow a couple of bucks till the end of the week, why didn't you say so."

I was still sitting at the table when my husband walked in and threw down the coin, "A penny for your thoughts," he said.

"That's an insulting offer," I said, "At today's prices, they'll cost you $2.34."

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Tests needed for spotting disease

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is hypoglycemia, but I do not understand it. How can a doctor suspect it from a routine office test? What blood level is considered too low?

When I am at my worst I become semi-comatose and before the condition I feel faint, weak and a bit as if I were drunk. I am aware that I invariably have terrible leg and feet cramps if I indulge in high carbohydrate foods in the evening. I don't smoke and do not have a weight problem. I am a compulsive overeater and arrest this compulsion by belonging to a life-saving fellowship called "Overeaters Anonymous" which is similar to Alcoholics Anonymous.

DEAR READER — Hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) is a complex problem. Many of the symptoms it causes are from the outpouring of adrenaline. Whenever the body is threatened our adrenal gland pours out adrenaline, our so-called "fight or flight" hormone. It causes the body to release stored glucose so its energy can be immediately available. So, when the blood sugar falls, pouring out adrenaline is one way the body protects itself.

There are a lot of other situations in life to cause your adrenaline to start pumping out. Anxiety of any sort can do this, fright or any emergency. A hairy ride in heavy traffic can do it.

Adrenaline causes increased and forceful heart beats. It causes sweating, tremors, and other symptoms identified with low blood glucose. But, anything that causes an excess release of adrenaline can cause the same symptoms. It is not too surprising then that anxious people, for psychological reasons, often have the same symptoms a person has with hypoglycemia. This is why so many people with basic anxiety problems and who do not really have hypoglycemia get wrongly diagnosed as being victims of hypoglycemia. It is a waste basket term for the frequent anxiety situations of modern society. Often an obese person is fat from overeating because of underlying anxiety, not from real hypoglycemia.

Your symptoms are consistent with hypoglycemia but the only way to find out is to measure the blood glucose level when you are having these symptoms, preferably during a spontaneous attack. A casual blood glucose test in the doctor's office may not tell you much. In between attacks the level may be entirely normal. The blood glucose level is controlled by many factors. For more information on this write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. and ask for the booklet on Hypoglycemia (Low Blood Sugar). Send 50 cents to cover costs.

And, a word about alcohol to all those who have the hypoglycemia-type problems. Leave it alone. Alcohol prevents your liver from using the enzymes. Alcohol prevents the normal enzymes in your liver from being able to form glucose from proteins and releasing glucose into your bloodstream. One of the consequences of overindulgence is hypoglycemia. It just makes good sense then to avoid alcohol at all times. You need those normal liver enzyme functions to keep your blood sugar in balance.

Widower likely to marry again

Odds are a widower of 40 is just as likely to marry again as is a bachelor of 30 to marry ever . . . "Strabismus" is the name of your affliction if you happen to be cross-eyed . . . Bear in mind that it was James Monroe who was the last U.S. president to wear knee trousers . . . Medical men say only about 5 per cent of the human body differs between the male and the female . . . One out of every 10 moonlighters also works for the Post Office.

Q. "Louie, old boy, have you ever fainted?"

A. Could admit I've been walked out, locked out, and knocked out. But as for your personal query, certainly not. Men don't faint. Men black out. Women faint.

LIFE EXPECTANCY

Average life expetancy is known to be longest among whites in the West North Central States of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas. That has been reported. Less widely known, however, is where the average life expectancy is longest among blacks. Washington, Oregon and California merit that distinction.

The presidency of the United States has been held for more than 24 years by men not elected to that office.

Client asks who first got us all to stand up whenever the National Anthem is played. Credit old Daniel Webster with that. When the great Jenny Lind sang it in Castle Garden, he jumped to his feet in enthusiasm, and then everybody around him did likewise.

LOVE AND WAR

Our Love and War man is opposed to the romantic slang of late. When a cool conversationalist says he "digs" his girlfriend, or "gets into her head," or "talks heavy" with her, that's bad. Our L. and W. man prefers such elderly expressions as "like," "love," and "crazy about." He does not intend to change his mind in this matter. That's it.

Astrographs

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's just my own personal observation, but I don't think God ever meant for man to do his banking, order food, or mail a letter from the driver's seat of the car.

If He had drive-ins in mind, He would have made our arms seven feet long and put curb feelers on our hips.

I have noted only two cars that have swung precariously up to the position where they can comfortably do business. One was a car from demolition derby and the other was a rental. Neither had anything to lose.

Drive-in banks intimidate me the most, possibly because I am "on camera" and quite self-conscious about having the tellers gather and exclaim, "Watch this one, Dorothy, she's the one who fell apart when her fender was ripped off last week."

Consequently, I have become something of a conservative. I pull a good six feet from the window and when the drawer slides out, I find that by opening my car door and forcing my head through my shoulder seat belt, pushing on the brake pedal with my right foot and bending my knee against the gear shift for leverage, I can slide my deposit slip into the drawer providing (a) I discontinue breathing for awhile, and (b) there are no high winds to circulate my deposit in the parking lot.

The mailboxes are something else. I never pull up to one of them that I don't visualize a meeting of the postal department in Washington figuring our how to position the boxes.

"No, no, Chester," says the designer, "you have placed the boxes on the driver's side of the car. We mustn't pamper them. Put them on the passenger side so the driver will have to put the car in park, straddle the stick shift in the console, cup his throat over the window and just try to sail the letter into this six-inch slot."

"Then the slot should be just above the pick-up times that have become blurred and unreadable?" asked Chester.

"Higher, Chester, much higher," smiled his boss.

Yelling an order for five into a clown's mouth is something else again. Especially when you are alone. I feel like such a fool shouting until the varicose veins in my neck surface.

As my husband observed, "You don't have to go to drive-ins, you know. You can always use your feet."

Better to grow longer arms.

About this and that

Vending machines are not new. As early as 215 B.C. worshipers in temples could get holy water by dropping in five drachmas. In 1615, coin-operated tobacco boxes appeared in English pubs. After a coin was inserted, the lid opened and the patron helped himself to a pipeful of tobacco.

Area man retires from Navy service

A Navy chief who possibly is the most "senior" chief petty officer on active duty in the Navy today has been retired.

Chief Personnelman Alexander C. Kean left the service Oct. 1 after 29 years as a chief and 33 years of Navy service.

Kean first put on the chief's hat and sewed on his new stripes the day after Adolph Hitler's suicide in 1945.

Kean appeared at various leading universities throughout the East after World War II as a member of the Navy's career appraisal team. He also served in New York City in the Navy's Enlisted Personnell Classification Office, and at reserve training centers at Hartford and Cromwell, Conn.

He also served as a job analyst at the Recruit Training Command at Great Lakes, Ill.

Later he served at San Diego in the 11th Naval District Commandant's headquarters and at reserve centers at Pomona and Santa Ana.

He recently was treated to a surprise dinner dance in honor of his retirement when several hundred friends and shipmates joined him for the occasion.

The affair was staged by his wife, June, his five daughters and four grandchildren.

Kean received the Navy Achievement Medal from Lt Cmdr. William W. Wesenberg, commanding officer of the Pasadena Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Center.

Kean lives in Montclair.

Wide disparity

Uniformity sought in criminal sentencing

By RICHARD STARNES

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A year-long experiment carried out by 50 federal judges has revealed tremendous disparity in sentences meted out by different judges in identical criminal cases.

The marked differences in sentencing "evidences a clear need for reform," Chief Judge Irving R. Kaufman of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals said. The sentencing experiment was initiated by Judge Kaufman and carried out in the second circuit.

Previous attempts to document suspected disparity in sentencing have proved indecisive because no two defendants are identical, nor are the circumstances of any two crimes identical in all particulars. In the second circuit experiment, however, judges handed down hypothetical sentences in each of 30 identical cases.

Although each of the 30 cases was an actual case involving a real defendant, each case was disguised in one or more details so judges involved in the experiment would not be influenced by the actual sentence handed down by the judge who originally heard the case.

The experiment revealed "glaring disparity" in sentencing, Judge Kaufman said. He added that "a system in which the length of an offender's sentence is determined by the random factor of assignment to a particular judge does not advance the ends of justice."

The experiment, supervised by the Federal Judicial Center, analyzed 1,442 sentences. It found wide variation in fines, prison sentences and probation meted out by different judges for the same offense.

In one case a union official convicted on nine counts of loansharking and income tax evasion — a man with three prior convictions, and six other arrests — received sentences ranging from a high of 20 years' imprisonment and a $65,000 fine to a low of three years in prison and no fine. The median sentence was 10 years and $50,000. Other judges handed down sentences ranging from 15 years and $50,000 to five years' imprisonment in the same case.

In another case, a 26-year-old man with no prior record received sentences ranging from 7½ years in prison to four years' probation for conviction on two counts of theft from interstate shipment. In his case the median sentence was three years' imprisonment.

A heroin addict with a record of two previous convictions pleaded guilty to possession of barbiturates and received sentences ranging from five years' imprisonment to two years' probation.

Another defendant who pleaded guilty to illegal entry into the United States drew sentences ranging from three years' imprisonment to two years' unsupervised probation. One judge agreed to suspend any sentence if the man left the country.

Results of the sentencing experiment are being weighed by a 16-member committee of jurists. Among possible soltuions to the problem of sentencing disparity is establishment of procedure to permit changes in sentence by appeals courts.

Another possibility being explored is to permit defense attorneys to bargain with sentencing judges over the punishment to be meted out to their clients.

New offshore oil slick traced to natural seep

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Oil washed up on beaches here Thursday, but the source of the slick was a centuries-old natural seep. Coast Guard officials said the oil was not from offshore oil drilling platforms.

Pea-sized balls of crude oil began washing ashore along a 12-mile stretch of Santa Barbara and Ventura county beaches Wednesday night, said Lt. Terrence O'Connell, Coast Guard group commander.

He said coast guardmen on foot patrols from Emma Woods State Beach to Carpinteria had determined the oil came from natural seepage.

The seepage has been going on for centuries, and was referred to writings by early white residents, and apparently was observed by Indians for ages before that.

The Coast Guard blamed the beach fouling on the weather. Wind, waves and tide usually keep the seepage offshore and disperse it seaward, O'Connell said, but calm seas in recent days allowed the oil to accumulate, and a wind change pushed it ashore.

This was the biggest slick attributed to natural seepage. A 5-mile long slick hit the same general area of beach in June of 1973.

Larry Bright of the state Division of Oil and Gas said he had found gobs of oil up to four inches in diameter on the beaches.

The Santa Barbara channel was the scene of a massive fouling of beaches in January, 1969, by oil that came from a drilling platform blowout, bringing on a confrontation between oil companies and environmentalists that led to a federal ban on drilling in the channel.

Two truck-trailer rigs, cargo stolen

BELLFLOWER (UPI) — Two truck-trailer rigs and their cargo of steel pipes were stolen from a Lakewood Pipe company over the weekend.

A driver reporting for work discovered the theft, estimated at a $140,000 loss.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation thinks that food prices are going to stay high until food production increases significantly in the rest of the world.

"The day of cheap food is over unless we have a drastic change in production worldwide and I don't see that we're going to have a great increase," William J. Kuhfuss said here Wednesday.

Kuhfuss, who heads the country's largest general farm organization with more than 3.2 million member families, said food costs are directly related to the cost of labor, oil, high taxes and interest.

He cited government spending as the prime cause of inflation and said he had told President Ford at the recent economic summit meetings that farmers wanted to see a balanced budget and "fiscal responsibility" more than any single program or policy.

Chagas disease in Venezuela

CARACAS (UPI) — The director of tropical diseases at the Central University says nearly 10 per cent of the population of Venezuela suffers from Chagas disease. This ailment causes malfunctioning and weakening of the heart tissue.

The disease is most often transmitted by insects which live in the walls of mud and straw huts, still used in many parts of the interior.

Oregon taking first step in organic food labeling

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Health food labels that proclaim a product is "organically grown" should be as close to the truth as is possible in today's contaminated world, Oregon state agriculture officials believe.

In recent years a debate has raged over whether any food can be truly described as organic —free of pesticides, synthetic fertilizers or other chemicals —but Oregon officials are having a try at defining what is and what is not an organic food.

Oregon is the first state in the nation to adopt regulations defining organic food and as of last week, only those foods that meet state specifications can be labeled organic.

The regulations are the result of complaints not of health food store customers, but from store operators who said some of their competitors were stretching the truth. Foods that were grown in the normal manner, with chemical aids, were being sold as organic, thus giving the unethical operator a larger available supply and lower costs, the complaints said.

Other states have considered defining organic foods, but have run into the argument that it is impossible for a food product to be raised in this world without having some degree of chemical contamination.

Agriculture Department officials say a health food producer may use only organic methods to raise his crop, but a previous owner of the land may have used chemicals that linger in the soil, or chemicals applied to nearby fields could drift over to cause minute contimination of otherwise chemical-free foods.

"We realized it is virtually impossible to produce food without any trace of synthetic chemicals nowadays," explains state Agriculture Director Irvin Mann, "so we dealt with the problem by establishing a synthetic pesticide tolerance in organically grown foods."

That standard says that if a food contains no more than 10 per cent of the pesticide residue allowed by the federal Food and Drug Administration in regular foods then it can be labeled organically grown or organically processed.

The regulations also state that the growing and processing of the organic food must not involve the use of any synthetic chemicals.

Eliminated from the organic category are all animal products or animal byproducts.

The reasoning is that animals are so mobile that it is impossible to guarantee that they never come in contact with synthetic chemicals. A bee, for example, cannot be trusted to only buzz around chemical-free flowers.

The regulations do allow the labeling of meat and the byproducts as "produced in an organic environment" if the animal is maintained in a restricted area where the grasses, feeds and water supplies are free from intentional application of chemicals and no artificial growth stimulants are used.

Violation of the new regulations is a misdemeanor punishable by a $500 fine or six months in jail. Also, the mislabeled food can be confiscated by the Agriculture Department.

Air Force offers new concept in education

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A fledgling community college is trying to prove that a person doesn't have to spend four years on an ivy covered campus to get an education and a degree.

The Community College of the Air Force (CCAF) was formed two years ago and already the 680,000 student records stored in its computer bank at Randolph Air Force Base constitute the largest accredited educational institution in the world.

However, the CCAF's curricula are not limited by time or geography as are those of most educational institutions and every one who enters the Air Force is eligible for the sheepskin, known now as a "career education certificate."

Already the CCAF has been accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, and some universities accept all of the college's credits toward degrees.

The 30,000-member Sergeant's Association is urging Congress to award associate degrees in the program rather than the career education certificates. Both diplomas are equal, but the Air Force version does not contain the valued noun, "degree."

Associate degrees are awarded by many career-oriented institutions for two-year technical studies, such as in nursing.

Presently, 11,800 students are actively pursuing the career education certificates, but anyone who enters the Air Force can obtain a transcript of his educational achievements during his military service —those accomplished either at Air Force schools or civilian institutions.

Col. John L. Phipps, CCAF president, said the students are pursuing their studies in the college's community which consists of 200 Air Force bases around the world, and at neighboring universities where the government pays three-fourths of the tuition costs.

"All they have to invest is recreation time and a little of their money," Phipps said.

The new concept encourages many high school graduates who entered the Air Force with no intention of attending college to pursue an education, he said, and supplies those planning to obtain a degree with credits when they enter a university. Every recruit is awarded four hours physical education credit in CCAF for completing basic training, and graduation from a technical school adds another 25 to 36 hours.

Suddenly, an airman discovers he has perhaps half the 64 hours needed for a certificate and is encouraged to take the 25-30 hours in "related education" courses at a civilian institution to complete requirements for his certificate.

Phipps said there was debate in the Air Force whether opening the door to higher education would encourage or discourage personnel to stay in the service, but his own thought was, "one of the best ways of keeping people in is to provide the best NCO (noncommissioned officer) corps you can" through education.

Lasers: new way to foil criminals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Boston researchers have come to the aid of police crime laboratories by developing a way to use a laser light beam to put nonerasable serial numbers on guns.

The laser would drill a set of holes no larger than a razor blade is thick in a pre-set pattern that would fit into the space normally occupied by one digit of a normal firearm identification number.

Serial numbers sometimes are filed or ground off guns stolen or used in crimes in an attempt to keep police from tracing ownership of the weapons. Crime labs using sophisticated techniques can restore some of the numbers but not all.

B. C. Giessen, of Northeastern University's Institute of Chemical Analysis, Applications and Forensic Science, said the laser drilled identifications holes would be nearly impossible to erase because they would be drilled through metal.

Giessen told a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society that the ideal place to put such an array of holes would be on a part that cannot be removed without destroying the usefulness of the weapon. One such location on a revolver would be the recoil plate, he said.

The laser focuses intense pulses of light to a very narrow beam to melt and boil off the metal it strikes. The resulting holes are about five thousandths of an inch wide.

Giessen, who developed the process with D.E. Polk, said the holes are so small they are difficult to see with the unaided eye. Light surface grinding of the metal would make them virtually invisible. He said the holes also could be painted over or filled with a different material to conceal them.

Another advantage of the laser drilling system is that an identifying mark could not be easily forged because few people would have access to the necessary laser drills. Mechanical drills cannot produce such small holes, Giessen said.

WINDSOR CASTLE—UNLIKE ANY OTHER

Windsor Castle

'A stranded whale upon the beach'

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — In his famous diary for 1665, Samuel Pepys wrote that Windsor Castle "is the most romantique castle that is in the world."

Three centuries later, Philip Ziegler wrote in a London newspaper that Windsor Castle "lies like a stranded whale upon the beach of history—out of place, out of time, yet still magnificent."

Dr. A.L. Rowse, an Elizabethan scholar, would agree with both views of what he calls this "noble assembly, the epitome of monarchy, state and church." His new book, "Windsor Castle in the History of the Nation" (published by Weidenfeld and Nicolson) is a breakneck gallop through nine centuries of the history of a building he clearly loves.

Windsor is the world's largest inhabited castle, a favorite of Queen Elizabeth II. It also may be the world's noisiest castle, with jets screaming low toward nearby London Airport.

But there is more to make Windsor unique.

"The Kings have departed from the palace-monastery of Escorial," Rowse writes. "The Emperors have gone from Hofburg and Schoenbrunn, from Kremlin and Winter Palace; the Louvre and Versailles are museums, the Tuileries no more.

"But Windsor the functions for which it was created: residence of the sovereign, the panoply of monarchy, the visible embodiment of Church."

This unbroken history began when William the Conqueror put up Windsor's first defensive works about 1068. His son, Henry I, was the first to live and hold court there in 1110. Since then, Rowse says, "Windsor has been the scene of many historic decisions: far more so, for example, than the Tower of London."

But Rowse is not so much concerned with dry history as with snippets of sometimes malicious gossip.

He gossips best about those monarchs he most admires—the first Elizabeth and her much-married father, Henry VIII. Henry loved Windsor and is buried there with his favorite queen, Jane Seymour. Rowse's description of his funeral is memorable:

"In the cold February of 1547, his gross carcass was borne down to Windsor in a chariot, the funeral procession stretching four miles. In the chapel a hearse of no less than 13 storeys, with hundreds of candles, was erected for him...Everything about him was outsize."

Elizabeth "was more attached to Windsor than is generally realized," Rowse writes. Shakespeare performed there often and set some of his plays at Windsor.

Rowse locates nearly every famous English figure at Windsor at one time or other—Wellington, Cardinal Wolsey, Dean Swift of "Gulliver's Travels," Lord Byron, Disraeli.

Another of his favorites is George III, who lost the American colonies and spent his last 10 years in madness, a prisoner in the castle he loved.

"There is a curiously attested story that, after his death, the sentries would see his whitebearded figure at the window raising his hand in salute," Rowse writes.

Windsor is essentially a medieval castle, given its basic form by Edward III, who died in 1377. "Its profile is singularly unchanged since the later Middle Ages," Rowse says.

Peacock revolution's impact wanes

By WALTER LOGAN

LONDON (UPI) — The Times of London published a book a few years ago entitled "1,000 Makers of the Twentieth Century" and listed one John Stephen among such illustrious people as Josef Stalin, Winston Churchill, Elvis Presley, Huey Long, Liz Taylor, Albert Einstein, Bobby Jones and the Marx Brothers.

John Stephen, now 37 and terribly rich, is the Scottish lad who put Carnaby Street on the map a decade ago and touched off what became known as "The Peacock Revolution," an upheaval in the men's clothing industry which shook the fashion world out of its doldrums. It also brought the expression "Swinging London."

The revolution has subsided now and clothing manufacturers have retreated into a safe new world where everybody makes semi-fitted jackets with four-inch lapels and the only variation is a cautious approach toward new fabrics, patterns or colors.

Carnaby Street has become more or less a national shrine, a pedestrian mall jammed with tourists who tread its checkerboard tiles and peer into the brightly lighted shop windows where the tinsel and glitter of the early days have given way to Scottish woolens.

Stephen has mellowed considerably himself and was dressed sedately in a gray single breasted suit, white shirt and somber tie when we dropped in at his Mayfair town house the other day for a gin and tonic and a chat and to gawk at the priceless antiques with which he has filled said town house.

We might have gawked at his latest car but it was out somewhere. It is a streamlined $40,000 Rolls-Royce Corniche two-door sports coupe, ice blue, hand made and owner-driven. There is a waiting list of eight years in case anyone would like to pick up one for himself.

The Peacock Revolution made a lot of people rich and bankrupted others who were caught with big stocks of vinyl plastic vests, exotic suits and screaming shirts and ties when the bubble finally burst. But Carnaby Street did ignite a new interest in men's clothes, which is undiminished if more civilized.

Stephen is one of those who struck it rich. Since that memorable day some years back when he arrived in New York, climbed in a white Rolls-Royce and took Carnaby Street to Minneapolis, he has amassed a personal fortune estimated by some at $10 million or so. When he needed a place to live he bought the garden behind a town house—there aren't too many vacant lots in Mayfair — and built his own.

He is so diffident he might as well have driven a Bentley and admits reluctantly to perhaps a million pounds, which is less than $2.4 million, what with the condition of the stock market. But then the money still rolls in from 35 shops in Britain and the sales of his licensing program in South Africa ran to $96 million last year.

He has a factory which turns out shirts and ties —reasonably sedate or at least much less spectacular than those of a decade ago. And he designs suits for many firms including the Rex Trueform Clothing Co., which is the third largest in the world.

He still considers London the men's clothing capital of the world despite recent inroads by famous French designers and says "right now we are going through a more classical period, which we have been doing the past year or so, and using classical worsted material." The suit he was wearing was a two-button classic in a classic worsted.

"The economy is in a very depressed state and it is very difficult to create under those conditions," he said. "But the British are very prone to demean themselves. They get something good and a few weeks later they start to run it down. The Beatles were a revolution, too, but soon the Britons began running them down."

DIETING PRIEST — The Rev. Francis E. Kelly shows dramatically his old waistline compared to his new svelte self. He credits Weight Watchers for steering him out of obesity.

Lost 348 pounds

Priest prayed to shed avoirdupois

NEW YORK (UPI) — On his way to say Mass at Sacred Heart Church the Rev. Francis E. Kelly shuffled rather than strode.

Like Major Hoople in the comic strip he'd "harumph" and ask an altar boy to tie his shoes.

When he drove anywhere the priest from Conemaugh Pa., slid back the front seat of the car until it almost touched the back seat. It was on special tracks. He also flipped up the specially engineered steering wheel before sliding behind it.

Even airplane travel was something special for the priest. He had to go first class and the stewardess would fix him up with two extensions for the seat belt before he could buckle up. Tourist class seats couldn't hold him.

Kelly, 52, knew his weight fluctuated between 400 and 542 pounds. He'd ascertain that by making private trips to the laundry department at Mercy Hospital in nearby Johnstown, Pa.

"The scale went up to a ton," Kelly said in an interview. "Somehow when you weigh over 400 it helps to use a scale that doesn't register its limit."

There was another reason for the laundry scale. Scales for people aren't programmed for the Superfat.

Over a lunch of cottage cheese, two slices of toast, a slice of tomato and tea, Kelly, who stands six-foot-two and now weighs 194 pounds, told how he lost 348 pounds over two years and four months. And he told of the fat versus thin life.

He went from a size 66 suit to a 46. His Roman collar went from a 22 to a 15. He has no idea what his waistline used to be but he did know where his fat self wouldn't fit.

"Any trip was a trial," he said. "I couldn't fit in a booth and chairs with arms were out of the question. That limited restaurants. Do you know few have chairs without arms? Once I drove from Conemaugh to the shrine of St. Anne near Quebec. The nuns who accompanied me had to bring me food to eat in the car most times."

How did he perform his priestly duties?

"I had to lean. When you're that fat you can only stand unassisted for three or four minutes. During Mass my palms would get painful and my arms very tired, supporting me. I had the pulpit reinforced so it wouldn't break."

In the summer of 1971 Kelly went to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre to pray to lose weight.

"I had been on diets for some 35 years, ever since seminary days," he said. "I was president of the men's diet club in Cambria County. I kept gaining.

"Funny thing, I never prayed to lose weight."

His sister, Betty McCowan of Webster, N.Y., told Kelly he had better pray to lose weight or, "You'll be dead." That was when he made the pilgrimage to the Canadian shrine.

He returned to Conemaugh that August. There was a knock on the rectory door.

"It was those 'Weight Watcher' people from Pittsburgh and they wanted to start a local group and rent the parish hall," Kelly recalled.

"We made the arrangements and I told them—don't get me into that. I'm president of the Cambria County Diet Club for Men."

About that time a local undertaker, seeing Kelly huffing and puffing at funerals, made a wager.

"He told me if I got down to a size 46 suit he'd buy me one," Kelly said.

"The undertaker told me later, half jokingly, that he was just trying to make his job easier—in the event my heart gave out."

Fat, the priest's blood pressure was 260 over 140. He was a candidate for a stroke, a heart attack or both.

Kelly's blood pressure now in 130 over 80. Physical examination shows his 35 years as a heavyweight did not damage his heart or musculo-skeletal system by predisposing it to arthritic or other deforming conditions.

"I am a new me," Kelly said. 'If I gain a pound I panic. Actually, if I had to go back to even 300 pounds again I'd prefer to die first."

Recently the priest was promoted to monsignor.

And a few months ago he drove to the St. Anne's shrine.

"I said a mass of thanksgiving," he said.

Brazil editors getting around censors coyly

SAO PAULO (UPI) — An several Brazilian newspaper editors is currently circulating through newsrooms in Brazil to help newsmen decide what will and will not get by the censors.

The list covers a wide range of forbidden items, but basically the censors prohibit publication of news that in any way could be interpreted as critical of Brazil's military regime, or damaging to the nation's national security.

Some of the taboos include:

—Criticism of the country's censorship system itself.

—Any news dealing with Helder Camara, archbishop of Olinda and Recife and one of the most outspoken critics of Brazil's military rulers.

— News of anti-Brazilian demonstrations abroad, such as the one held last year during the Brazil Export Fair in Brussels.

— Reports describing the work of national security forces.

—Reporting armed confrontations between police and terrorists.

— Speculation concerning subversive or terrorist activities or news of trials of subversives.

Congregational church setting for nuptials

At an evening ceremony in Pilgrim Congregational Church, Miss Ellen Bynum became the bride of Michael A. Zsolczai.

MRS. MICHAEL A. ZSOLCZAI

The Rev. Joseph M. Appelgate officiated at the rites which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Bynum and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Zsolczai.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an opalescent silk sata peau gown with imported venise lace. A lace pearl-beaded headpiece held a three-tier fingertip and long veil of French illusion trimmed with venise lace.

She carried a cascade of white phaleaenopsis orchids, bridal pink rose and stephanotis.

Miss Anne Bynum was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Cornwell, Miss Kristin Kooman and Miss Patty Roach.

David Umland was best man. Ushers were Chris Vaughn, Monte Morrow and Gary Sandusky.

A reception on the church patio followed the rites.

ANNALYNNE ZORAD

Wedding in June planned

A June 28 wedding is being planned by Miss Annalynne Zorad and Kent Richard Stewart of La Verne.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Zorad of La Verne, the bride-elect is a Claremont High School graduate. She attends Citrus College and is employed as a secretary at Metsker Construction Company.

Mr. Stewart is the son of Mrs. Jessie Leviellee of Ontario and William Stewart of Los Angeles. He graduated from Chaffey High School and is employed as a retail clerk by Vons Grocery Company.

Battle against inflation demands wives work

NEW YORK (UPI) — To determine the effects of inflation on American households, an employment agency has just completed a national random survey.

The report on the survey by Staff Builders Inc. includes these highlights:

—Three out of four or 75 per cent of the nation's housewives are working wives.

—74 per cent of these working wives say they could not maintain their current standard of living if they stopped working.

—57 per cent said their salaries pay for necessities only; 19 per cent said their salaries pay for luxuries only; 24 per cent said salaries pay for both.

—47 per cent became two income families in the past two years; 40 per cent in the past year.

—44 per cent of working wives responding to the survey have fulltime jobs; 56 per cent hold temporary or parttime jobs.

From the looks of the survey it appears the battle against inflation is a big reason many wives work.

Theater night scheduled by Soroptimists

The Soroptimist Club of Pomona will have 20 residents of Churchman's Center as their guests this evening at a special showing of "Fiddler on the Roof" at Pomona Valley Community Center.

Members of the club will provide transportation and tickets for their guests.

Mrs. Carol Larsen, second vice president of the club, is in charge of arrangements for the event.

Faculty Wives begin season at luncheon

"Inside USC" will be the theme of the USC Faculty Wives club's first social event of the year, a champagne luncheon Oct. 16 from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. John R. Hubbard, wife of USC's president.

A luncheon cohostess is Mrs. Chaytor D. Mason of Pomona.

TODAY'S Women

Filener and Hibbard vows are exchanged

Miss Stephanie D. Hibbard and John C. Filener were united in marriage in an evening ceremony read by the Rev. Herschell Rice in the Pomona First Church of God.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hibbard of Pomona was given in marriage by her father when she recited vows with the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Filener of Crawford, Colo.

The bride chose a gown of lace designed with a scoop neckline, accented with a ruffle trim, and long puffed sleeves. The A-line skirt extended to a chapel train. A lace headpiece held the bride's four-tiered veil which was trimmed in lace.

A cascade of yellow roses, white daisies, baby's breath and fern was carried by the bride.

Carmen Mentlick was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Debbie Hibbard and Anna Boseman.

Kerri Wierich was flower girl.

Cleve Filener was best man while ushering duties were performed by Tom McLeod, Steve Brandt, Mark Hibbard and Mike Case. Candlelighters were Denise Hibbard and Karen Filener.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds who honeymooned in San Diego. Sheri Hibbard handled the guest book and Mrs. Angie Boseman was wedding hostess. Also assisting were Mrs. Linda Rice, Mrs. Loma Stevens and David Hibbard.

Among the guests were the groom's parents and the bride's grandparents, Mrs. Alice Tollefson, Moorhead, Minn., and Dr. and Mrs. William D. Hibbard of Vista.

The couple will reside in Grand Junction, Colo.

Arthritis to be topic of physician

The Orange County Association of Industrial Nurses will meet Oct. 16 at the Holiday Inn, 7000 Beach Blvd., Buena Park, at 7 p.m.

The subject, "Arthritis," will be discussed by Dr. Michael D. Reynolds of Santa Ana, assistant professor and director, Division of Rheumatology at the University of California at Irvine, Department of Medicine, and the Orange County Medical Center.

Bernardt C. Hertz of Orange, director of the Arthritis Foundation of Orange County, will introduce the speaker.

All occupational health nurses are welcome.

Deceit in the home

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife and I have been married for five years. We have a two-year-old daughter. We were quite happy until about eight months ago when I met another woman. I've been having an affair with this woman almost from the moment I met her as we immediately knew we were extremely attracted to each other.

I'd prefer not tell my wife because I don't want to hurt her and I think honesty would be needdlessly cruel. I'm getting some flak from the woman with whom I'm having the affair, however, that's making me feel like a heel. I know I don't want to marry her. What do you think about just keeping all this to myself? I could always tell my girlfriend that I've told my wife.—S.O.

Dear S.O.: Very often, people lie to themselves about why they're sparing another person. The real reason for not telling the secret is frequently because the person really wants to spare himself the consequences of his actions.

It's important to ask yourself if you have fallen out of love with your wife. If you have, it is highly unlikely that this is going to change for the better in the future. You're both young and your wife should be given the opportunity to decide what she wishes to do with the rest of her life.

If she's a normal, healthy woman, it's not likely that she would wish to spend the rest of her life with a husband who prefers other women and who no longer feels he can be faithful.

If your wife were told now, she would probably be hurt or angry, but at least she would be able to make plans for her own future. It's much kinder to tell her now, rather than to wait until she's in her mid-or late-40s. Her chances for finding another partner are much better now than they would be when she is middle aged.

It is unfair to your child to bring her up in a home where there is an undercurrent of deceit and little love and understanding between the parents. Children are extremely sensitive to the feelings of their parents and your child is probably already aware that something isn't quite right.

Parents used to think that by postponing a separation or divorce, they were sparing their children, but this is not the case. Men and women cannot live together over any long period of time and continue to disguise their real feelings. What usually happens when parents try to deny their feelings is that there are many small scenes over seemingly trifling matters and there is a climate of irritation, distrust and discomfort.

Partners who don't share their real feelings may spend many anxious hours, weeks, and years worrying about unrelated matters. They may wonder what it is they're doing wrong or how they've changed, when the truth may be that they've not done anything "wrong" and they may not have changed in any negative way.

If you don't try to be honest with yourself, your wife, and your girlfriend you are robbing yourself of growth and robbing others of the right to make a choice.

Loosely knit or stretch garments should be folded for storage. They may stretch out of shape if permitted to hang for a long time.

Annual French Room sale set this week

The autumn French Room dress sale will be held in the refectory of the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon.

In addition to good clothing for men, women and children, there will be handmade comforters, a bake sale and homemade sandwiches. Coffee will be available without charge.

Proceeds will go to Church World Service, an interdenominational organization which provides aid for hunger and disaster areas all over the world and to the general fund of the Women's Fellowship to help with their philanthropic projects.

The sale is sponsored by the Women's Fellowship with Mrs. Myron Powell and Mrs. Clarence Faust, general chairmen.

Brothers night scheduled

Brothers Night will be observed by Pomona Valley Shrine 22, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Masonic Temple in Pomona.

All officers have invited officers from other shrines to fill their stations and be their guests.

Cochairmen for the evening will be Herbert Lewis and Frank Phillips.

Officer induction scheduled

Officers for the Women's Fellowship of Lincoln Avenue Community Reformed Church will be installed during the morning church service Sunday. The Rev. Donald Brandt will handle the installation.

A workshop for new officers will be held at Bethel Reformed Church in Bellflower on Oct. 18. A coffee hour at 9:30 a.m. will precede the 10 a.m. workshop. Mrs. Ardella Schuler will be the speaker.

Mrs. Pete Bekendam of the First Baptist Church was the speaker at the meeting of the Women's Fellowship this morning. Mrs. Bekendam is planning to organize a Halfway House for Women leaving the prison in Chino.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Cal Bensema.

Staleness

Loss of bright uniform color in dried peas indicates staleness. Such peas take longer to cook than fresh ones, but their eating quality is not affected.

New report

Halt work on new A-plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new report on the future of the nation's nuclear energy policy called for an immediate halt to the construction of nuclear power plants for moral and environmental reasons.

The report was released on Tuesday.

The electric industry's estimates of future power needs are exaggerated, the report said, and the country's experience during the oil embargo shows conservation and the search for other power sources are viable alternatives to nuclear plant hazards.

The report was prepared by the privately financed Center for Science in the Public Interest, and written by William H. Millerd, doctoral student in physics.

"It is clear that the nation's current policy of rapid expansion of the nuclear industry represents a bad decision," the year-long study concluded. "Because the need for a high growth rate in the electrical industry is seriously in question, the unresolved safety and disposal problems indicate as a minimal necessary change in policy, a moratorium on the construction of additional plants ....

"During the moratorium, completion of safety testing programs plus experience with operating plants will hopefully resolve the safety questions," it said. "During this time also, experience with conservation efforts, research and development on alternative technologies and success or failure in the search for a permanent waste disposal method will allow our people to make a decision more in accord with its moral responsibilities."

According to the Atomic Energy Commission, 45 nuclear power plants were licensed to operate as of last June 30; 60 were under construction; 105 far enough into the planning stage that reactors had been ordered, and 21 announced but for which no reactor order had been placed.

Idaho top choice for atom dump

POCATELLO, Idaho. (UPI) — The federal director of waste management for the Atomic Energy Commission has identified Idaho as the preferred site for a proposed $3 billion storage site for radioactive garbage.

Dr. Frank K. Pittman, director of the division of Waste Management and Transportation, appeared this week before the Governor's Commission on Atomic Waste.

The commission, under Dr. William E. Davis, is charged with reviewing the draft environmental statement released by the AEC that names three Pacific Northwest sites for the possible location of atomic wastes.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has asked that the commission submit a report to the AEC by Oct. 28.

The first of the proposed sites, the one Pittman said is preferred because much of the atomic waste already is there and personnel are at the site already, is the National Engineering Laboratory at Idaho Falls.

The second is the Hanford site in Washington and the third the Nevada Testing Station.

The AEC hopes for a quick decision on a site and get the allocation for funding into the 1976 federal budget.

By law, the AEC will have to begin accepting atomic waste from plants as early as 1979. They estimate it will take some four years to build the facilities to handle the waste.

Warn of deadly flu

ATLANTA (UPI) — A new, deadly flu strain, related to the killer 1972 London flu, will hit much of the United States this winter, the National Center for Disease Control reported this week.

Dr. Larry Corey of the Center's viral diseases branch said a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers flu is expected in all parts of the country except the mid-Atlantic and northeast regions.

Port Chalmers, initially isolated last year in New Zealand, is a Type A strain similar to the London flu which swept the U.S. in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak in February 1973. Corey said it is much deadlier than the Type B flu which swept the nation last winter.

Corey refused to speculate on the number of deaths which might result from the Port Chalmers outbreak, but noted there are normally about 540 pneumonia and influenza deaths per week in the United States during the three-month winter flu season.

Corey said Port Chalmers was widespread in Australia and other southern hemisphere countries last summer and several cases of the disease were isolated in Georgia and Mississippi during the summer. He said it is expected to hit the southeast, midwest, southwest and Pacific regions this winter.

The mid-Atlantic and northeast areas are not expected to be hit so hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

The flu season normally runs from November to February with the weather a major factor whether it comes early or late.

Charge geothermal footdragging

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Several large oil and transportation companies are holding vast amounts of geothermally-rich lands in California in what appears to be a slowdown in the development of steam energy, a Senate committee reported this week.

The leasing study indicated 80 per cent of all private lands in geothermal-rich Imperial Valley are presently leased to Union Oil Co., Standard Oil Co. of California, Southern Pacific Land Co., and Magna Power Co.

The report, "Patterns of Geothermal Lease Acquisition in the Imperial Valley," was prepared by the University of California at Riverside.

"The situation of large leaseholds in the hands of a few energy producers and the fact that little development has taken place, makes one wonder just what is going on," said Sen. James R. Mills, chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

India's mass famine

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of Indians are slowly and painfully marching toward death from malnutrition.

"We'll never get a figure but we estimate that between 500,000 and one million people will die between now and March from malnutrition-related diseases," one foreign economist said.

"Dying from malnutrition takes about three months and the immediate cause is usually dysentery, cholera or just a cold that you were too weak to combat.

"The government is aware of the problem but they are fairly fatalistic. They know that a lot more people are going to be born every day than are going to die."

According to foreign economists, India's 1974 food crop will not exceed 100 million tons —13 million tons less than the government had hoped.

Although flooding in high-yield crop areas, fertilizer shortages and a lack of fuel to run irrigation pumps have contributed to poor harvests, drought is by far the biggest culprit.

Agricultural experts say 80 per cent of India is suffering from below-normal rainfall this year. Some call this year's drought India's worst in the past 30 years.

The failure of summer monsoon rains already has brought extreme hardship to seven Indian states. Famine conditions have been reported from the states of Bihar, Gujarat, Orissa, West Bengal, Kerala, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh.

New Delhi newspapers carry daily stories of villagers who commit suicide rather than face hunger. In several states, mothers are said to be selling the children they cannot feed in the marketplaces of small towns.

USSR produces most petroleum

CARACAS (UPI) — The Soviet Union is the world's largest oil producer, according to figures compiled by the Venezuelan Mines Ministry for the first six months of 1974.

Soviet production rose by 10 per cent during the period to total 9,018,000 barrels per day, the ministry said.

The United States is the second largest producer with 8,995,000 barrels per day, a .1 per cent drop from the first half of 1973.

Saudi Arabia occupies third place with 8,336,000 barrels per day, up 11.7 per cent, while Iran is in fourth place with 6,131,000 barrels per day, an increase of 5.4 per cent.

Venezuela is the world's fifth largest producer with 3,113,000 barrels per day over the first six months of the year, down 7.1 percent. Kuwait is sixth with 2,846,000 barrels per day, a drop of 6.1 percent.

Camping--plan for next summer

Nova Scotia worth drive for unparalleled scenery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Campers who are planning ahead for next year should consider a trip to the maritime provinces of Canada.

Both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia offer a seemingly unending show of scenic beauty, the people are friendly and the camping facilities leave almost nothing to be desired.

Nova Scotia may be reached by ferry from the Maine cities of Portland and Bar Harbor and from St. John in New Brunswick. The ferry trip from Saint John to Digby, Nova Scotia, is the shortest and least expensive and is recommended to families with a tight budget.

Round trips by ferry can knock a big hole in the budget, so the most practical way to enjoy a camping tour of the provinces is to go overland in one direction and return by ferry on the way back.

Enter New Brunswick at Calais, Maine, and take Highway One to Saint John, an interesting city with a fine historical heritage which includes camping facilities at Rockwood Park. Follow Highway One and Two to Moncton, and while there ride uphill with your engine in neutral on Magnetic Hill. It is reached by a dirt road and is a major tourist attraction. It is said to be an optical illusion, but the ride is an interesting experience.

From Moncton the camper can enter Nova Scotia at Tidnish and follow the Sunrise Trail which winds along the coast of the Northumberland Strait to New Glasgow and Antigonish. There are several good campgrounds along the Sunrise Trail. Antigonish is the gateway to Cape Breton, where the Cabot Trail gives the camper the most magnificent scenery in Nova Scotia.

There is an excellent campsite only a few miles from Baddeck along this route, which features a view of the Seal Island Bridge and a towering escarpment at the rear of the campground.

Nova Scotia is worth a long trip. The province is protected by the Gulf Stream and the weather is mild. In late August and September, said to be the best months to visit Nova Scotia, the water at the beaches is warm.

And the nights are cool.

Mail does go through . . . (but with great ingenuity)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As if rain, snow, heat, gloom of night, snarling dogs and their snarling masters weren't enough, mailmen have to puzzle now and then over a letter bearing an address that might confound a cryptographer.

A rural carrier at North Windham, Conn., got a letter postmarked Texas with this for an address:

"The White House on the hill that needs painting. A Small Town next to a lot of small towns. Just past the bridge that goes over the little river. Right across the street from the house that was for sale the last time I was home. 06256."

The ZIP code got it to Connecticut instead of the dead letter office. The carrier, who knew his territory, delivered the letter at the proper address three days after it was mailed.

The Postal Service, which gets plenty of citizen complaints that the second half of its title is a misnomer, has happily compiled a dossier of recent successes in delivering obscurely addressed mail.

Some veteran mail sorters and carriers are prized for their uncanny ability to solve address riddles, and are known in the system as "nixie clerks," a nickname of long-forgotten origin.

Deal letter offices have a crew of handpicked nixie clerks, whose job includes doing their best with piles of mail damaged in firees, plane crashes or other mishaps. But the cases cited in the dossier all were solved by resourceful regular sorters and carriers handling routine mail.

Consider this address on a letter that turned up in the post office at Elk Horn, Iowa: "22' 3" 51531."

The last five digits was the proper ZIP code for Eik Horn. Postmaster Melvin C. Boose says it was correctly delivered the same day to a home on one of his rural routes.

How? Someone recalled that a local high school athlete had broad-jumped 22 feet, 3 inches in the Drake Relays. The athlete proved to be the proper addressee.

Some letter writers evidently try to test the skill of postal employes deliberately. Lawrence Guillery, a law student at Louisiana State University, addressed a letter simply "Weetsie 70535." It was delivered promptly to his mother, Weetsie Guillory of Eunice, La., where the foreman of mails happens to be her husband, Murphy.

An envelope inscribed, "To the Most Wonderful Husband in the World," obviously was not intended for mailing. A woman in Clinton, Md., apparently had written an affectionate note to give her husband on Christmas Day, but inadvertently mailed it with a batch of Christmas cards.

Postal employes noticed the handwriting in red and green ink matched that on the cards, so they returned the note using the return address on the cards.

When a computer went berserk it printed out this address on an envelope:

"1001 Virgie Johnson Nia E Charleston WV"

In two days the letter was correctly delivered to Skip Johnson, an environmental writer for the Charleston (W.Va.) Gazette. "There are almost six columns of Johnsons in the Charleston telephone book and we're still wondering how the post office did it," the newspaper told its readers.

Some addresses are thousands of miles wide of the mark but still are delivered correctly, the Postal Service said. One letter addressed to Larry Lawcock had his name misspelled, the wrong street address and the wrong city. Only the ZIP code, 96910, was right.

It was addressed to Houston, Tex. Lawcock lived in Agana, Guam, but he got the letter anyway.

A man in Silver Spring, Md., received a letter from a friend in Switzerland who could not remember the address so he drew a map on the envelope with a question mark indicating the correct street. The Postal Service said it was delivered two days after it was postmarked.

Magazines

Cures for U.S. woes suggested

By United Press International

If magazines offer any clue, disenchantment with government runs wide and deep. Opposition is mounting to bloated payrolls, foreign involvement, how taxes are raised and spent, and the way the economy is being run.

Worried that "runaway government payrolls" might "bankrupt" the nation, Editor Creed C. Black of the Philadelphia Inquirer writes in Reader's Digest that total public employment has hit nearly 14 million. That's 18 per cent of our work force, a big factor causing Federal, state and local governments to devour 21.4 per cent of the gross national product —three times as much as in 1929.

However, Melville J. Ulmer calls in the Atlantic for gradually enrolling up to four million jobless in a national service plan to fight inflation and depression. He also urges selective wage and price controls; suggests a tax boost and wants "special-interest subsidies" torn out of the federal budget.

Also for cutting down, author Sidney Lens in The Progressive opts for "slashing the $90-billion-a-year war budget and the 2,500 military bases it maintains abroad." In his view, the "abundant economy" is turning into a "shortage economy" as America's influence in the world fades. Lens predicts "more and more weak nations can be expected to assert control over their own resources and do what the great powers have done for centuries — charge whatever the market will bear.'

As for The New Yorker, it is "appalled" at U.S. chumminess with foreign dictators. It scores the U.S. role in toppling the former Allende regime and hopes Chileans will overthrow their new military rulers. Striking a different note on Chile, The National Review's James Burnham argues that deposed President Allende's democratic trappings "were only incidental," that he stifled dissent. Burnham warns Communist world leaders see "two, three, many Chiles" of the Allende Marxist type "looming on the near historical horizon," including Portugal.

Did Marilyn Monroe's suicide make you wonder what taking such a step would be like? In the month following her death, sociologist David Phillips writes, the nation's suicide rate jumped 12 per cent. He says in The American Sociological Review that there are suggestible people among us who imitate suicides who make the headlines.

Researchers are also studying suicides, homicides and insanity and their relationship, if any, to the phases of the moon. A study of 2,500 Houston-area homicides in a 14-year period could not turn up evidence to back the full moon and murder theory. Their new study conflicts with earlier Miami and Cleveland area data alleging that slayings peaked when the moon was full.

Writing in Psychology Today, Baylor College of Medicine Researchers Alex Pokorny and Joseph Jachimczyk insist, "Until other and more convincing evidence is presented, we believe that the effect of moon phases on homicide, suicide and mental illness should be viewed as a myth."

2 great classics: omelet and sauce

That fine culinary Bible, "Larousse Gastronomique," in discoursing on the "omelette," notes that the difficulty of its preparation is "more apparent than real." It suggests that for success the flame must be very high, and that the cook use only a frying pan which is absolutely clean and in which nothing else is ever cooked. True omelet devotees do observe this principle. It is also suggested that one not put too much butter or other fat into the pan. And beat the eggs moderately and only at the last moment. The final advice" . . . have confidence in yourself."

Whether he's head-of-the-household or an enteraining bachelor, a man who loves to cook (and has lots of confidence!) will enjoy making Classic Omelets with Ratatouille Sauce. This is a marvelous recipe for a holiday brunch or Sunday night supper.

Ratatouille, another classic French dish, is a delicious combination of freshly cooked vegetables served hot or cold as a meat accompaniment. In the recipe here, the ratatouille is prepared ahead and served warm as both the filling for the omelets and the sauce poured over at serving time. Tabasco brand pepper sauce, a classic liquid seasoning born in America and enjoyed all over the world, adds piquancy to the ratatouille.

A small amount of Tabasco seasons the basic egg mixture for the omelets, too. Tabasco adds proper zest to all egg dishes, giving this nutritious, though somewhat bland, food excellent, appetizing flavor. Depending on how hungry the man and you are, and whether or not you have company, the recipe will satisfy two large appetites or 4 smaller ones.

CLASSIC OMELETS WITH RATATOUILLE SAUCE

3 tablespoon butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 small eggplant, pared and diced (about 4 cups)
1 small zucchini, diced (about 1 cup)
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

OMELETS

4 eggs, beaten
4 teaspoons water
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Prepare sauce in advance. In a large saucepan melt butter. Add onion, green pepper and garlic; cook until tender. Add eggplant, zucchini, tomatores, parsley, salt, basil and Tabasco. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes over medium heat.

Prepare omelets just before serving. In a medium bowl beat eggs, water, salt and Tabasco. In an 8½-inch omelet skillet melt 1 tablespoon butter over low heat; increase heat to moderately high. Pour ½ of egg mixture into pan and stir briskly with flat side of fork until almost set. Allow eggs to set and to brown lightly on bottom.

Place ¼ of Ratatouille Sauce on half of omelet and fold second half over. Using a large spatula lift or slide omelet from pan onto a heated plate. Keep warm. Repeat omelet preparation using remaining 1 tablespoon of butter and remaining egg mixture. Top both omelets with remaining Ratatouille Sauce.

Here are answers for home canners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The shortage of home canning equipment is continuing this fall, and so are the questions from consumers trying to find an answer.

A reader in Alamo, Tex., asks:

"Please tell me why jars used for mayonnaise are not to be used for canning or preserves as your article in our paper tells? I have used these jars often and have never had any breaking or damage."

The advice against using mayonnaise jars came from Mrs. Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer adviser, as well as from other experts. Their concern was that the shortage of regular canning jars and lids might prompt the use of ill fitting substitutes which could result in spoiled food or, at worst, fatal food poisoning.

In checking the matter out further, however, we find that in some cases mayonnaise jars can be used safely. It is just that there is no universal guarantee that they always will work. There are differences in jars and differences in the way the lids for canning fit each jar.

The Ball Glass Co. in Muncie, Ind., told UPI that some of their lids work very well on some mayonnaise jars; but they don't recommend the practice because "the consumer is taking a chance —you never know how it's going to turn out."

Your own past experience wth the jars probably is your best guide.

Ball, incidentally, says it is turning out more jars now, running their plant at full capacity. But, one official said, "once you get behind you just can't catch up."

And even though the jar production may be going up, Ball says it still is short of tin lids, a major part of the home canning shortage this year.

A reader in Willard, Utah, asks this question on the same subject:

"It has been real difficult to get lids for home canning and it made me wonder why the companies that were supplying rubbers that fit on Kerr and Presto lids discontinued making them. I have around 50 of these glass centers with the bands and if I could get the rubbers to fit them it would certainly simplify my canning problems and I am sure that I am not alone, as there must be other people who have this same kind of bottle cap.

"They are much better for pickles, tomatoes or anything that has vinegar or acid in it as the glass lids do not corrode as the tin lids do."

I'm afraid we don't have very good news for you, The Kerr people tell us they stopped making the glass lids around World War II and eventually stopped turning out the matching rubbers as well. They went to the tin lids, one spokesman said, because they "proved so much more satisfactory."

Ball still turns out rubbers to fit its "ideal jar," on which production stopped in 1963; but your letter seems to indicate you don't have that type of glass lid and a Ball expert suggests that their rings probably would not work.

You'd probably have a tough time finding them anyway this year. Ball says it turned out the usual number for consumers who still have the "ideal" jars —particularly in the Northeastern states where the jars have been saved for years; but the shortage of tin lids led to a run on the old rubber rings apparently by a lot of home canners in all parts of the country who dusted off the old style jars when the current shortage unfolded.

If anyone knows of a better answer let us know and we'll pass it on to the woman in Utah.

If you want to read more on the whole home canning subject, a guide is available for 35 cents from the government. It's called "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" and is available by writing to Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Ask for publication No. 226b.

FROSTED WHEAT GERM ROLL

Butter 10x15-inch jelly roll pan and line with waxed paper and butter again. Separate 5 eggs. Beat yolks until light and lemon-colored. Gradually add ½ cup sugar and beat until thick. Mix in ½ cup fine graham cracker crumbs, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add ⅛ teaspoon each salt and cream of tartar. Add ¼ cup sugar gradually, beating until stiff. Fold egg whites into yolk mixture and add 1 cup wheat germ. Pour batter into prepared pan, smoothing evenly. Bake at 350 degrees about 20 minutes until top springs back when touched. Let stand 5 minutes, then turn onto towel dusted with 2 tablespoons powdered sugar. Carefully roll up in towel and cool 20 minutes. Unroll cake and spread with 1 cup cream, whipped. Roll up cake and place seam side down in serving dish. Spread with caramel frosting made by melting ¼ cup butter and stirring in ½ cup packed brown sugar and ¼ cup milk. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and cool to lukewarm. Gradually add 2 cups powdered sugar, beating until smooth. Sprinkle cake with extra wheat germ.

Everybody brought a dish

A new cookbook is born

NEW YORK (UPI) — About once a month the curious neighbors of Theodora Zavin, alerted by delicious odors from her kitchen, figuratively peered through the window curtains as she and her playwright husband, Ben, hurried away from their Greenwich Village apartment carrying an insulated bag.

The secret of their nocturnal journeys was field work for another cook book—the first since her classic, "The Working Wives Cookbook" of 14 years ago.

This one, "The Everybody-Bring-a-Dish Cookbook," (Quadrangle) was a long time germinating. But then Mrs. Zavin, who writes law books as well, and is one of the top executives in the male domain of popular music (senior vice president of BMI), does not lightly commit her taste buds to a project.

Her rationale for the new book:

"It's simply getting too expensive to eat out at a gourmet level, especially when half the time you're getting frozen food which is reheated. All right, you say, eat at home then.

"But one person has to beat her brains out to produce an entire gourmet meal. What most cooks can do is produce one gourmet course. You can't fuss around with a whole meal. But practically any cook can fuss around with one course."

So the Zavins assembled a group of five like-minded couples. The idea was to pick an international theme —Greek, Hawaiian, Mexican etc.—for a monthly dinner and assign one dish to each wife in the group. She found a recipe, prepared it and on the appointed night rushed it to the appointed house or apartment in insulated bags. And there it was eaten.

One night the group created a Dickens Christmas dinner down to an authentic (and potent) punch whose recipe was supplied by the custodian of Dickens House in London.

Another memorable meal, Mrs. Zavin said, was based on the delicacies of colonial Virginia. Research turned up recipes for three southern mint juleps, the Virginia version of brandy and peach brandy being the best.

The book is full of cooking wisdom and recipes for food and drink, some hard won from obscure reference sources. Mrs. Zavin said all are easy to duplicate in whole or part, from a single dish to—with a little help from your friends—a complete gourmet meal.

The book also includes mail order addresses for suppliers of unusual ingredients.

Mrs. Zavin lists as typical a Danish dinner.

From Long Island and New York City the couriers arrived at the home of lawyer Harvey Stuart and his wife with their insulated bags. For predinner drinks, there were aquavit and Danish Bloody Marys.

Then came herring salad, duck with lingonberry sauce, caramelized potatoes, cucumber salad, knob celery salad, rye bread, buttermilk bread, Danish butter and, of course, Danish beer, both dark and light.

"I'm not sure how or why we ended up with two breads and two salads for this meal," said Mrs. Zavin. "They were all so good we couldn't choose between them."

Study shows teens prefer booze to pot

NEW YORK (UPI) — A government researcher says teen-agers overwhelmingly prefer alcohol to marijuana, and at least 5 per cent of the high school population gets drunk once a week.

Dr. Morris E. Chafetz, director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, also said women make up the largest increase among the nation's nine million alcoholics.

Chafetz said one of every three alcoholics is a woman, compared to one in five in past statistics.

According to the study, 93 per cent of the boys in high school and 87 per cent of the girls have had a drink.

"The findings indicate that alcohol now is far and away the drug of choice among youth," Chafetz said.

Healthy beef

Mineral needs of beef cattle on pasture should not be neglected if the animals are to remain healthy and show proper growth and protection from disease.

Q: "My neighbor says table scraps aren't good for dogs. Is that right?"

A: Yes. When compared to scientifically formulated pet foods like Blue Mountain Home Style Stew, table scraps are sadly lacking in the needed protein, vitamins, minerals, amino acids and carbohydrates. Besides, overly rich table scraps can make your dog a finicky eater and eventually lead to obesity, hardening of the arteries and even heart attacks.

Spanish and English families blend wine traditions

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In Spain, there is a saying that three things start on time: church service, bdll fights and a meal with rice.

Since an interview is none of these, everyone relaxed while awaiting the appearance of one of the major participants. For example, Mina Gonzales Humbert was carrying on beautifully while waiting for her husband to arrive. Schooled in the old tradition of Spanish women, her patience and graciousness held sway, but with a 1970s difference. This was obvious when Arthur Humbert, 40ish chairman of the board of Williams & Humbert, Ltd., arrived. For example, there was an exchange of warmth and give-and-take rarely seen among older Spanish couples.

Humbert's family in 1877 founded one of the leading Sherry shipping firms with its base in the historic Jerez de la Frontera region, near where Columbus set sail for what we now call America. She is from one of the older Spanish families in the sherry region. Their marriage was as smooth a blending of English and Spanish sherry families who rule the area as that of the wine in the bodegas.

Humbert lived and worked in Jerez for four years, he explained, as part of his training in the family business. During this time he met his future wife and they now have a son, William Gordon, born in 1972. His birth was just one of several changes Mina experienced in her life in recent years.

Mrs. Humbert explained that she had been trained "as a perfect hostess" in Spain where the running of several homes was expected, but meant "just pushing a button for a servant." Since her marriage to an Englishman, she has become more active in the housekeeping role on their 200-acre estate called Manor Farm in Kimbridge, Hampshire, England; on a farm in Scotland, and at their villa on the Williams & Humbert El Bizzaron vineyeard in Jerez.

Their house on a hilltop is called Four Winds. Built on the site of Roman remains, it almost brought Humbert down with exasperation. He said in mock despair every homebuilder understands, "Don't ask me about the difficulties."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Humbert smiled and mentioned changes in her life. An accomplished horsewoman, she, however, does not share her husband's full enthusiasm about shooting or his falconry. She enjoys hunting with dogs and took up fly fishing, an especially fine sport in Scotland. There is some sport fishing in the mountains of Spain but she found "matching wits against fish in fresh water exciting, especially the salmon, after I graduated from brown trout."

Fish and game always have been popular dishes in England and Spain so Mrs. Humbert felt quite at home when planning menus around them. Among her favorites is pheasant in red wine. In deference to Humbert's ancestry she also sees that kidneys in sherry are served often. Her own favorites for guests and family in Spain are gazpacho (chilled tomato soup) and paella for short lunches. Another favorite is a tortilla which in Spain is a potato and onion omelet served for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Oh, yes. About the rice.

"The Spanish and my brother who is in the rice business," she said, "are as particular about their pasta."

It must be done just right, slightly crunchy and not mushy. In Spain everything is still "manana" except when the rice is at its perfect serving time. Then, it is everyone sit down and eat "pronto."

SOPA DE AJO (GARLIC SOUP)

- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 3 large cloves garlic
- 1½ cups coarse French bread crumbs
- 3 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1-1-16 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Heat peanut oil in heavy saucepan over medium-low heat. Add garlic and saute until softened but not browned, about 3 minutes. Discard garlic. Increase heat to medium. Add bread crumbs; saute until golden brown. Remove saucepan from heat. Add water, salt, paprika and cayenne pepper. Bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer 30 minutes. Proceed according to directions below for desired variation. Serve garnished with chopped parsley if desired. Makes 3 cups.

Whole Egg Garlic Soup: Divide hot soup evenly among 5 individual oven-proof serving bowls. Break 1 raw egg into each serving. Place in oven at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes, or until egg is cooked.

Egg Drop Garlic Soup: Lightly beat 1 egg and while stirring briskly with fork, pour slowly into soup at the end of the simmering time. Immediately remove from heat and serve.

GAZPACHO

- 5 ripe medium tomatoes, cored and cup up
- 1 small green pepper, seeded
- 1 small onion
- 1 slice unpeeled cucumber
- 1 clove garlic
- 3 tablespoons white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 slice white bread, soaked in water and squeezed dry

Place tomatoes, green pepper, onion, cucumber and garlic in blender (or put through sieve.) Cover and whirl until mixture is liquefied. Add vinegar, peanut oil, salt and bread. Cover and whirl until mixture is thoroughly blended. Force mixture through a sieve. Chill thoroughly. If desired, serve diced tomato, green pepper, onion and-or croutons on the side. Makes 5 servings.

KIDNEYS IN SHERRY

- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 pound lamb kidneys, skinned and quartered
- ¼ cup sherry
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Scant ¼ teaspoon pepper

Heat peanut oil in a skillet; add onion and saute until golden. Add lamb kidneys and saute until browned. Add sherry, salt and pepper; stir to combine. Cook about 4 minutes or until tender; stir occasionally. Makes 8 servings.

PEARS IN DRY SACK

- 4 ripe Bartlett or Anjou pears, peeled
- ¼ cup sugar
- sherry

Place pears in saucepan. Add sugar and enough sherry to cover pears. Simmer until pears are fork tender, about 30 minutes. Serve warm or chilled with some of the cooking liquid and cream, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Newsboy loses $9 million in space of a day

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old Paul Shubert went back to his newspaper route Wednesday $9 million poorer than the day before.

Paul, a carrier for the Philadelphia Bulletin, deposited his $4 earnings Tuesday in his Western Savings Bank account.

That night when he opened his bank book he discovered that the bank's computer had credited his account with a $9,000,004 deposit.

"I just kept looking at it for a minute," Paul said. "I couldn't believe it."

After showing the bank book to his mother and giving up his dreams of buying a castle, Paul returned to his bank on Wednesday. He didn't ask for a reward.

"What would they give me a reward for?" he asked. "I just want to keep this bank book."

Seed-labeling laws designed to protect consumers

Reports from across the country indicate that more people tried their hands at gardening in 1974 than has been the base in many a year. So many people, in fact, that manufacturers of home canning equipment are having quite a time keeping up with demands.

There's quite a bit to kow when buying seeds, so before planting a garden, it's a good idea to become familiar with the Federal Seed Act. This law, designed to protect farmers and other seed buying consumers, requires that all agricultural and vegetable seeds moving in interstate commerce be truthfully labeled. Package labels must disclose the kind or kinds of seed; percentages of pure seeds, weed seed and inert matter; germination percentage and test date; statement of disease and insect control treatment (if the seed has been so treated); identification of noxious-weed seeds; the name and address of the shipper.

What should you do when you realize that your seed packet label contains false information? For example, if you've bought and planted a package of red-round radishes and white-long radishes come up. Write your State Department of Agriculture and explain the situation. Be sure to save the package, leftover seeds and plants. A state seed inspector will probably follow-up your case, and it will be helpful for him to see the evidence. If the seeds were sent interstate, the State Department of Agriculture will cooperate with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, which administers the Federal Seed Act. Working together, they will find out why you got the wrong kind of seed. Either a state or federal official will issue a "stop sale order." By acting quickly, you will help other consumers from being similarly misled.

From grove to glass

A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study shows that frozen concentrated orange juice, in addition to being easy to prepare, costs less than half as much as squeezing your own. Let's take a look at how oranges reach your table in such a convenient and cost-saving form. It all starts in the orange groves where raising oranges for processing is big business. Last year, over four-fifths of the $540 million worth of citrus produced in Florida went into frozen concentrated orange juice.

Some orange varieties are sweeter, some have more juice than others. Uniform good quality and taste will be maintained by the careful blending and testing of these many varieties of oranges throughout processing.

In Florida, state law requires that frozen concentrated orange juice meets speicific USDA requirements for flavor and color, as well as additional state requirements. USDA inspection and grading are usually voluntary, but all frozen concentrated orange juice processed in Florida is required by state law to be made under USDA inspection. USDA works closely with the Florida Department of Citrus and with processors to bring you consistently high quality orange juice. Most of that produced in Florida qualifies for U.S. Grade A.

When oranges arrive at the processing plant they are examined by fresh fruit and vegetable inspectors with the Federal-State Inspection Service, who test for degree of sweetness and the ratio of sweetness to acid. The test tells the processor approximately how much juice he can expect from the oranges and serves as the basis for the payment to the grower. Here inspection responsibilities are turned over to a USDA inspector specializing in processed products. It is the inspector's responsibility to insure that the plant is operated under sanitary conditions and that the juice is the desired quality.

The inspector checks the processing of the juice from start to finish. He begins by checking the washing and sorting process to be sure that only good, clean fruit is used to make the juice.

The juice extracting machine makes quick work of the squeezing process. The juice moves on to the blending machine where an inspector checks the juice in each tank for its degree of sweetness and ratio of sweetness to acid. These are the two most important factors in the flavor of the juice. The juice then is blended to obtain the desired flavor.

Specially designed evaporators are used to concentrate the juice. The juice flows or falls in a thin layer under vacuum through a slightly heated atmosphere. Water in the juice vaporizes and evaporation continues until the juice reaches a high concentration of sugar solids.

The concentrate is now ready for canning, but first processor and inspector want to be sure it measures up to the desired standards.

More tests determine what last minute adjustments are necessary to standardize the sweetness, flavor, and color. On the basis of the test results, the prcoessor adds specially prepared fresh juice. This juice contains fruit cells and flavor carrying orange oils saved when the oranges were first squeezed. High quality concentrate may also be added.

In addition to his tests for sweetness and acid content, the inspector checks the concentrated juice for defects, such as small pieces of seed or specks that may occur if the juice is overheated during the evaporation process.

When the inspector is satisfied with the concentrate, he reconstitutes a sample and checks the color and flavor of the juice.

After the containers are filled, the inspector must be sure the cans contain the 6 to 12 ounces listed on the labels. Other tests are made to tell if the juice has been processed properly and will reconstitute without jelling or separating.

It's a lot of work but it is all necessary to bring high quality frozen concentrated orange juice to your breakfast table.

Apple knowledge

Ask anybody what the most popular American fruit is, and the answer probably will be: the apple! Just about everyone seems to enjoy this legendary fruit.

The apple as we know it originated in Central and Southwestern Asia. The earliest annals of Egypt, Babylon and China mention it, as do the Bible and Fourth Century Greek literature. Apple cultivation started in Europe; and, in America, the first apple trees were planted in Massachusetts by the Pilgrims. Early pioneers carried apples with them as they traveled overland. Little did those settlers realize when they planted the "seeds of good luck" in the West, they were starting a nationally significant apple industry that now flourishes.

The apple might well be called the "flexible fruit" because it can be enjoyed so many ways. Fresh, chilled raw apples are delicious eating anytime. One apple (about 1-3rd pound) has only 70 calories. Natural fruit sugars make apples ideal desserts for weight watchers as well as those of us who like to end a meal with something "refreshing."

Because raw apples are popular, it's natural that apple products are too. An endless amount of recipes call for apples in baked goods, preserves, butters, fritters, entrees and even ice cream.

CIDER-POACHED APPLES

4 large apples
1¼ cups apple cider
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Dash salt
¼ cup apple butter (optional)

Cut apples in halves lengthwise and remove cores. Pare apples, if desired. Combine cider, lemon juice, sugar, peel, and salt in large frying-pan. Simmer for 5 minutes, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Place apples cut side down in liquid, cover and cook about 10 to 20 minutes. Remove cover, turn apples and cook until tender, 3 to 5 minutes longer, basting with liquid in pan. Remove apples to serving dish. Boil down the

To lull appetites try picnicburgers

A good picnic provider knows that appetities build with outdoor activity. She expects appetites to be eager after the ball game, after the swim and after the golf outing.

Yet a popular cook pampers her picnickers. Anticipated demand makes her no less discriminating. Aware that even sports-stimulated appetities can be selective, she considers the family's favorite foods when planning the menu. After all, picnics are designed for fun, and the food is important.

No doubt that's why hamburgers appear on the picnic menu so often. It's simply a case of demand creating supply. Their popularity puts them there.

Then too, burgers are an economical grill choice. Ground beef, although juicy, tender and flavorsome, is made from less tender and less demanded cuts. Yet these cuts, in common with more costly ones, contribute valuable high quality protein, important vitamins and minerals that both adults and children need.

Next time the family gathers at the picnic table, surprise them with a special burger designed to both satisfy hearty appetities and simplify outdoor food service. When big and delicious Picnicburgers are provided, there's no need to pass the catsup, the mustard, the pickle relish nor the onion. For all these usual accompanying condiments have been built into the burgers. All are included with the ground beef before the patties are formed.

You'll find Picnicburgers a short cut that makes sense and tastes terrific! French fried potatoes, a favorite burger partner, can be cooked on the grill.

Satellite Relish Kabobs are another service simplifier. To make them, just thread relishes such as olives, cherry tomatoes and sweet or hot peppers on small skewers. A grapefruit makes a handy kabob holder.

PICNICBURGERS

3 pounds ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1-3rd cup sweet pickle relish, drained
1-3rd cup catsup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
8 hamburger buns

Combine ground beef, chopped onion, pickle relish, catsup, mustard, salt and pepper, mixing lightly until ingredients are evenly distributed. Shape into 8 patties 1/2 inch thick. Place on grill 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature for 8 to 10 minutes on first side. Turn and broil 6 to 8 minutes on second side, to degree of doneness desired. Serve on hamburger buns, toasted if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Soybean's popularity on the rise

Beef cattle love them. But in the United States not enough citizens have learned to use them in cooking to enjoy eating them. What are they? Soybeans, that remarkable protein-packed bean.

We produce three quarters of the world's supply and keep half for feeding animals. The rest we export and that consitutes 85 per cent of the world's soybean supply.

Europe is our largest buyer, then Japan. Japan uses soy in sauce, bean cakes and noodles. That takes about a third of their imports. The rest goes to feeding animals.

All this indicates that man prefers red meat fattened on soybeans to eating protein in bean form—even today in the face of inflationary prices.

The meat industry accepts soybeans as a protein challenge. But it does not foresee soybeans taking over the protein market.

David H. Stroud, National Livestock and Meat Board president, says: "The soy bean burger is looming as touch competition on the horizon. It looks and feels like meat. It even may almost smell like meat. That's our challenge. But meat as a source of protein and other nutrients is a more flavorful and desirable product."

Europe wants more meat, too, as its economy adds more affluence to many of its citizens. Therefore, soy protein is important but the protein imported from the United States still will go more and more into feeding cattle, exports say, then into soybean casseroles.

Japan, also, is turning more and more to beef. Japanese still want their traditional soy sauce and bean curd. But more and more they are demanding beef steak and roasts.

Experts report that only about 3 per cent of the world's soybean production currently is used as human food. But that per cent is gradually increasing.

Demetria Taylor, food expert and editor, reports a mild increase in use of soybeans as a direct food. "They taste a lot like other hard beans and peas. Flavored intelligently, they are quite acceptable. I see them as a salvation in these times of skyrocketing meat proces."

Lil Stuckey, one of the most reliable of food advisers, a home economist and author of several cook books, recalls their use during World War II. "We grew them in back yards and taught people how to use them. We fed them to the Army. So soybeans as direct protein food have a reliable history in the United States."

Miss Stuckey worked with other experts on preparation of a list of beef and textured soy granules on preparation of a list of beef and textured soy granules seasoned with spices. Their recipe for stuffed Greek Burgers is very popular with several otherwise beef-oriented families.

"The Proteins for Pennies Cookbook" by John Woods is a new guide to getting more eating pleasure while being thrifty with soybeans. He was raised in Texas where soybeans are a major crop. He recalls that one of his favorite childhood memories was coming home to find a tasty pot of soybeans on the stove. (The book is published by Peter H. Wyden. $6.95.)

"The Proteins for Pennies Cookbook" contains many recipes from his home background. It contains much valuable information about how to cook them, how to sprout them for fresh food and how to combine them with other foods into highly pleasant dishes. He is one man eager to offset the prevailing American preference for beef.

remaining liquid until thickened. Spoon over apples to glaze. Fill core cavity of each apple half with a heaping teaspoonful of apple butter. Serve warm or cold with meats or poultry. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

APPLE BEEF ROLL
Apple Stuffing

3 or 4 apples, pared, cored and finely chopped to measure 3 cups
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons water
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups soft breadcrumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

APPLE STUFFING — In a skillet combine apples and onion with the 3 tablespoons water. Cover and cook at medium heat for 5 minutes. Cool. Stir in egg, breadcrumbs, salt and pepper. Set aside.

Beef Roll

2 pounds ground beef
1 egg
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

BEEF ROLL — In a large bowl, combine ground beef, egg, milk, breadcrumbs, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper; mix well. On a piece of wax paper, pat out meat mixture to 10-inch square. Spread with apple stuffing. Roll up jelly roll fashion and place, seam-side down, in a shallow greased baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Garnish with parsley and slices of lemon.

Bar cookies good for after school

Cake-like bar cookies are ideal for the youngsters as they go back to school. Chances are there will be a few hassles over the cookie jar as Mom and Dad also stock up on energy while enjoying such treats as Walnut Banana Brownies or Walnut Macaroon Drops. Both are chewy items that do not take that long to put together and are perfect for teens to make or for scout projects or for bake sales to help raise money for school or church trips.

WALNUT BANANA BROWNIES

1-3rd cup shortening
1 package (6-ounce) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup mashed banana (2 medium-small bananas)
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Melt shortening and chocolate together over hot water. Meanwhile, resift flour with baking powder and salt set aside. Beat eggs with sugar and vanilla until light. Add chocolate mixture and beat until well blended. Stir in banana. Add flour mixture, then add 3/4 cup walnuts, mixing well. Turn batter into greased 9-inch square pan. Sprinkle with reserved walnuts. Bake at 350 degrees for about 35 minutes, until top springs back when touched lightly in center and tooth pick inserted in center comes out clean and dry. Let stand until cool. Cut into 1 1/2x2-inch bars. Makes 24 bar bookies.

WALNUT MACAROON DROPS

3/4 cup walnuts
3/4 cup granulated sugar
3 unbeaten egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Walnut pieces

Grate walnuts, or, put 1/4 cup at a time into a blender and blend very fine. Combine with sugar, egg whites and salt. Stir over very low heat, using a rubber spatula, about 10 minutes, until mixture is so thick that a clear path is left for a second or two when spatula is drawn across pan. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Grease a cookie sheet and dust with flour. Drop batter by teaspoonfuls onto pan. Top each with a piece of walnut. Let stand at room temperature for 1 hour. Bake at 300 degrees for about 25 minutes, until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet to wire racks at once. As soon as cookies are cool, store in tightly covered container. Makes about 20 macaroons.

Fried chicken scores high for picnics

Fried chicken scores high in taste appeal at any season of the year and it is especially satisfying to appetites whetted by crisp fall air. Chicken is easy to eat outdoors, too, and takes so little preparation you won't have to spend hours in the kitchen before leaving home.

The National Broiler Council suggests packing fried chicken in an insulated container to keep it warm until serving time. If the day is warm and you plan to serve cold fried chicken, cool it in the refrigerator after frying (rather than at room temperature) and then pack it in an insulated container for travel.

For extra crisp fried chicken, dip the pieces in buttermilk, evaporated milk or a slightly beaten egg mixed with 1/4 cup milk before coating with seasoned flour.

And here's an important tip: let the chicken stand for a half hour until the coating dries thoroughly. Then sprinkle the moist spots with more flour before frying.

When removing the chicken from the skillet, drain it well on absorbent paper.

There's an added bonus when you serve nutrition-packed chicken — it won't wreck your food budget. Economical chicken gives you more nutrition at a lower cost per serving than any other meat.

Chicken scores other points too. Ounce for ounce chicken is higher in protein content than any other meat and has fewer calories per serving.

Everyone has a favorite way to fry chicken. Here's a basic method recommended by the National Broiler Council with suggested variations:

BASIC FRIED CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut-up
1/2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Mix together dry ingredients in a plastic or paper bag. Rinse the chicken in cold running water but don't dry it. Drop two or three pieces of chicken at a time into flour mixture and shake until chicken is coated.

Heat shortening or salad oil (about 1/2 inch deep in skillet) over medium high heat or until a drop of water sizzles when added to fat. Place chicken skin side down, in hot fat. Turn pieces to brown evenly; reduce heat to medium-low, cover and cook until tender (about 30 minutes).

VARIATIONS — Add a teaspoon each of dry mustard and thyme to the flour mixture . . . or add a teaspoon of curry powder.

Roast duck is elegant economy dish

Those who turn to poultry as a means of creating varied dishes at less cost often overlook the succulent duck. Roast duck is available frozen whole throughout the year and makes an attractive, tasty entree. Next time you look for something different in the protein line at the supermarket pick up a duck. Roast it with a meat and apple stuffing and serve garnished with additional spiced apple rings.

ROAST DUCK WITH MEAT AND APPLE STUFFING

1/2 pound lean ground beef
1 (4 1/2 to 5 pound) duckling
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 jar (7-ounce) apple-sauce
3/4 teaspoon ground marjoram
2 Generous dash pepper
2 cups day-old bread crumbs
1/4 cup chopped cocktail peanuts
1/4 cup chopped parsley
Spiced apple rings or apple wedges
Parsley

Brown ground beef in heated skillet, crumbling meat with fork as it cooks. Drain; set aside. Rinse cavity of duckling with cold water. Drain and pat dry with paper towels. Sprinkle cavity with 1/4 teaspoon salt. Thoroughly prick duck skin with tines of fork. Beat egg slightly. Blend in applesauce, marjoram, remaining 1 1/4 teaspoons salt and pepper. Mix in beef, bread crumbs, cocktail peanuts and parsley. Spoon mixture into duck cavity. Close cavity with skewer or by sewing. Truss duck. Fold back wings to secure neck skin. Place on rack in roasting pan. Roast at 425 degree for 20 minutes. Remove from oven. Discard fat from roasting pan. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. Roast 1 to 1 1/2 hours longer, pouring off fat occasionally, until done. Duck is done when juice from thigh pierced with tip of a sharp knife runs out clear. Serve garnished with spiced apple rings or apple wedges and parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Beef-eating up

Consumption of beef in America has increased 40 per cent in the past 13 years, according to the 4-H Society.

Homemade bread warms the heart

During the crisp fall and winter weather, nothing warms the kitchen and the appetites better than homemade bread fresh from the oven. It's easy on the budget, and the nutrition-conscious homemaker can be sure her family is getting the vitamins commercial breads sometimes lack and there are no preservatives. For added nutrition and flavor, enrich the bread with gouda cheese imported from Holland. This golden bread is sure to be a favorite for the entire family. And Mother may find that returning to some of "Grandma's Family Traditions" will be satisfying as well as fun!

HOLLAND CHEESE BREAD

½ cup warm water
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 envelope active dry yeast
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
2 teaspoons salt
5 cups (about) sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups shredded imported Holland Gouda

Dissolve 1 teaspoon sugar in ½ cup warm water. Add yeast. Allow to stand 10 minutes then stir well with a fork. Scald milk with butter or margarine.

Pour into a large bowl; add sugar and salt. Stir in 1 cup flour; cool to lukewarm. Stir in yeast mixture. Thoroughly beat in 2 cups flour, the shredded imported Holland Gouda, then the remaining flour as needed. Turn dough onto floured surface and knead 8 or 10 minutes until elastic and smooth. Shape into a smooth ball; place in a 2-quart greased bowl rotating dough to grease surface. Cover with a towel and place in a draft-free area.

Let rise until double (about 1 to 1½ hours). Punch down; divide dough and shape into 2 loaves. Place in 2 greased 1½-quart casserole or loaf pans. Cover with damp cloth and let rise until doubled. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 45 or 50 minutes. Bread will sound hollow when tapped with the knuckles when done. Cool on rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Cheese adds hearty note to souffle

A hearty souffle served with a mixed green salad, homemade muffins and a fruit compote for dessert should lure the family to the table on time. A Potato Onion Souffle includes a Danish Samsoa cheese for an added flavor sip. It is filling and nutritious.

POTATO ONION SOUFFLE

6 large potatoes, peeled and diced
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 large onion, minced
½ cup milk
3 egg yolks
1½ cups (6 ounces) grated Danish Samsoa cheese
Salt and pepper
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. While potatoes are cooking heat butter in a small skillet and saute onion until golden. Mash potatoes, beat in onions and their drippings, milk, egg yolks and 1 cup of the cheese. Stir until blended. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Fold in egg whites and then pile into a greased 2-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until puffed and brown. Makes 6 servings.

There is a sweet side to the rising cost of sugar

NEW YORK (UPI) — The rapidly rising cost of sugar may not be bitter medicine after all.

Many medical authorities say the typical American eats far too much sugar, and in fact, needs no sugar as such in a nutritionally balanced diet.

But few of us are apt to give up sweets altogether. So here are some ideas for making desserts and other sweetened dishes with either less sugar or natural substitutes.

Cook apples in frozen unsweetened apple juice or orange juice concentrate or sweet cider to make applesauce.

Puree naturally sweet fruits such as ripe bananas or prunes and blend into stiffly beaten egg whites to make fruit whips. Little or no sugar will be needed.

Choose the ripest fruit you can find if you plan to serve it raw. Then sweeten, if necessary, with a little corn syrup. It's better than sugar for this purpose anyway because the syrup makes a less watery mixture because it doesn't draw juices from the fruit.

The consumer service department of C P C International, a major manufacturer of corn syrup, says the price is expected to rise but not in proportion to that of sugar.

It can be substituted for sugar entirely in a variety of foods and beverages. To make good cinnamon toast, blend 2 tablespoons of corn syrup with 3 tablespoons of softened butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon of cinnamon. Spread on toast and broil until the spread bubbles.

Corn syrup can be substituted for simple syrup (sugar boiled with water) for use in cold drinks and punches. It can take the place of sugar in baked beans, barbecue sauce, dessert sauces and ham glazes. The consistency of syrup makes it cling better in basting sauces and glazes. Corn syrup also can be substituted for sugar in making the topping for upside down cakes and sticky buns.

It reduces the graininess of frozen desserts such as refrigerator tray ice creams, ice milks, ices and sherbets. One fourth of the sugar called for in such recipes can be replaced by syrup.

To use it as a glaze for cookies and fruit cakes, bring syrup to a boil and boil one minute. Use a natural bristle brush to apply it because the high temperature can melt synthetic bristles. The boiling is needed to assure a dry glaze even in humid weather.

Canned fruits in syrup can be pureed to make frozen desserts with little or no sugar added. Leftover syrup from canned or frozen fruit makes a good substitute for maple, maple blended or corn syrup on French toast, pancakes or waffles.

Making coffee gelatin? Melt marshmallows instead of sugar in the hot coffee before you add gelatin that has been presoftened in a little cold water.

Honey, molasses and corn syrup can be substituted in many recipes calling for sugar, although you will have to adjust the amount of liquid and sweetness to your taste. Used this way, allow in general a cup of corn syrup for each cup of sugar and reduce the liquid content of the recipe by about one fourth. Using honey, allow one cup for each cup and a fourth of sugar and reduce the liquid content by one fourth.

But for best results do not substitute honey, molasses or corn syrup in baking recipes calling for sugar.

Sometimes frozen foods are cheaper

The steady rise in the cost of the food our family needs is threatening family budgets in all income groups. Slowly, many familiar good things to eat are beginning to disappear from our tables. We seem to be living on substitutes. Let's hope we won't be compelled to eat chipped ice sandwiches.

But before such dire times arrive, let's examine some practical ways to stretch food dollars by getting every cent's worth of flavor and nutrition.

One question to be answered is: Could you save money by making many of the foods the family likes from scratch? Or do you save by buying these in convenience form? The answer is yes and no. Take a look at these figures:

A survey shows in vegetables, 7 of 10 ready-to-cook items had a lower cost per serving than their counterparts. Frozen green beans ran 8.1 cents a serving versus 8.9 cents for fresh beans. Frozen cut corn cost 8.5 compared with 15.2 cents for fresh cut corn. Frozen french fries were 4.7 cents against 10 cents for home prepared. Dehydrated mashed potatoes ran 3.7 cents versus 5.5 cents for home prepared potatoes.

Frozen orange juice cost only one-third as much as the same serving of freshly squeezed juice. Of baked goods, coffee cake, Danish, cookies, bread and rolls, 75 per cent of the convenience products had higher costs than those prepared at home.

One drawback, however, to these comparisons is that they were made last year by the USDA Economic Research Service. Since then there have been some changes due to the oil shortage, increases in labor and transportation costs and bad weather.

A working knowledge of the shelf life of the various foods you buy can also help you get the most in good eating. The August 1974 issue of Food Technology explains what shelf life is and how to maintain it.

Food processors pay great attention to adequate storage stability or "shelf life." Major areas involved in a food's shelf life include:

Loss of nutritient value such as vitamin loss or protein breakdown; spoilage by microorganisms, enzymatic action, or insect infestation; loss of aesthetic qualities such as color, flavor, aroma, texture; loss of functional properties such as leavening activity in baking powder, thickening power in sauce mixes, or set in instant puddings.

Food storage has many complexities. As a consumer, find out from experts exactly what you should do to maintain shelf life. For example: Buy only what you need for a reasonable time.

Check products for staleness, off-quality and spoilage. Check the label for special instructions on holding and storing the products. Learn the basic facts about storage of food, including dry products. Use perishable products within one or two days — longer only where experience has shown that the product keeps well. Rotate frozen and canned products so that older packages or cans are used before more recent purchases.

Oyster lovers say goodby to a shrine

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Oysters have played a happy role in my life. From San Francisco to New York, with a few stop-overs in Baltimore for me their unique flavor always has brought gastronomical delight.

But something tragic has happened. One of the most celebrated oyster bars in the world was closed recently — the Grand Central Oyster Bar in New York City which lured many train travelers and commuters passing through Grand Central station to stop for a treat.

For 62 years it served the most noble oyster stew, made before your eyes. From mounds of oysters in the shell, a cook would take out six and shell them. As I remember it from watching and waiting many many times, he then placed three pats of butter in a special oyster cooker before you. He added three shakes of Worcestershire sauce, a dash of cayenne and a shake of celery salt. Then he turned the oysters into this broth. When the edges of the oysters began to curl, he added a little oyster liquor and enough milk to cover. This heated until the stew came just below the boiling point. Then it was turned quickly into a large bowl with a pat of butter in it and lots of paprika. Oyster crackers were served. Then it was time to swoon.

That stew helped make the Grand Central Oyster Bar almost a national shrine of gourments. Nick Petter, 76, had been there since 1919. He says the place never changed. No, not even his fabulous Oyster Pan Roast.

To share my sadness over the closing of the Oyster Bar, I dined recently at Gloucester House in New York with my friend Edmund Lillys, the owner. First he ordered six medium large oysters on the half shell; they were plump, vital and remarkably fresh. We added only a shake of salt. Oyster lovers don't want catsup or cocktail sauce on their oysters.

Then we had the oyster pan roast, made with Petter's recipe. Lillys is an old friend of Petter and is also a noted expert himself about all sea food.

This is a rough idea of the late Oyster Bar recipe: Use 8 medium oysters for each serving. In a deep pan, place a large pat of butter, 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon of chili sauce, ¼ cup of oyster liquor, a few drops of lemon juice, celery salt and a dash or two of paprika. Then add half a cup of cream and the oysters. Cook the whole mixture quickly for about one minute, stirring all the time. When it comes to a boil, pour mixture at once over a piece of dry toast in a large preheated soup plate. When you eat it you will understand why we all mourn the closing of the Grand Central Oyster Bar.

Brown rice coming onto cooking scene

Brown rice has come on the cooking scene with a bang as part of the continued interest in natural foods. It goes well in traditional dishes such as a Moussaka adding its own special texture and flavor and makes an excellent Nutty Brown Rice Salad. Rice served as salad often is overlooked. It can be a main dish or used as a side dish with your favorite fish or poultry recipe.

NUTTY BROWN RICE SALAD

1 cup brown rice
1 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup chopped pecans or mixed nuts
4 green onions, sliced
3 medium oranges, peeled and sectioned

Cook rice according to package directions. Place cooked rice in a bowl; cover and refrigerate. Add mayonnaise; mix well. Chill one hour. Stir in remaining ingredients; chill again before serving. Makes about 6 cups.

MOUSSAKA

1 cup brown rice
1 medium eggplant
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup cooking oil
1 pound ground lamb
2 medium onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup half and half
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook rice according to package directions. Meanwhile, cut eggplant into ½ inch slices crosswise. Sprinkle eggplant slices with ½ teaspoon salt and let stand about 30 minutes. Rinse and pat slices dry. Heat eggplant slices in oil in 12-inch skillet, turning once, about 5 minutes. Add more oil as needed. Remove eggplant slices. In the same skillet, brown meat until crumbly. Add onion and garlic. Cook, stirring frequently, until onion is tender, but not brown. Add tomato sauce, 2 teaspoons salt, oregano and pepper; heat to simmering. Arrange half the cooked rice, meat mixture and eggplant in layers in a shallow 2-quart baking dish (12 x 8 x 2 inch). Repeat layers of rice, meat, and eggplant.

Melt butter in small saucepan. Stir in flour and salt. Add half and half. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in cheese. Spoon over the layered ingredients. Cover. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Uncover. Return to oven and continue baking until mixture is bubbling and top is lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Let stand 10-15 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Judge praises housewife in mate's slaying

LONDON (UPI) — A judge gave a suspended two-year sentence and words of praise to a 40-year-old woman who pleaded guilty to stabbing her husband to death with a scissors.

Grace Maloney pleaded guilty at the Old Bailey criminal court to the manslaughter of her husband, William, 37, when he threatened and beat her after a drinking session.

Judge Leslie Boreham said the evidence showed she suffered violence from her husband over a three-year period.

"You have been a good mother, a good wife and an excellent housekeeper. I cannot think of any more one can say of any woman," he said passing sentence.

"I accept that you have suffered considerably over the years because of your husband's behaviour and you were driven to what you did at the end of your tether," he said.

Deaf mute has last laugh on 2 gal robbers

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — When his women guests ran off with deaf mute Barry Schwartzman's trousers, they overlooked the fact that he could run and write.

So Sheila McKenzie and Patricia Ann Fera are in the Dade County jail today, charged with robbery.

Police said the two women were in Schwartzman's room at the Fountainhead motel Tuesday night when he went into the bathroom. The two women seized his trousers and fled, officers said.

Schwartzman, 35, sans trousers, chased the pair and caught them in the motel parking lot, where they beat him with their platform shoes. The women escaped, police said.

Schwartzman, still sans trousers, then flagged down a passing police car on busy Collins Avenue and scrawled notes describing his plight. Police tracked down the women and arrested them.

The jaguar is a large, fierce cat related to lions and tigers.

With its yellow coat marked with many dark spots, the jaguar looks very much like the leopard of Asia and Africa, but the jaguar is heavier.

Jaguars live in the jungles of Central America and South America. The jaguar can also be found in Mexico, where it is known as "el tigre" (the tiger).

A male jaguar may grow to be nearly 8 feet long, including its 2½ foot tail and may weigh up to 300 pounds.

It is powerful and fast enough to capture such animals as wild pigs, cattle and alligators. It is capable of attacking a man — if it is hungry enough.

The jaguar is a good tree climber and likes to lie on tree branches and leap upon its prey.

It is also an expert at catching turtles and fish, which it scoops out of the water with its paw.

The jaguar's loud, deep roar is like that of the lion and the tiger.

A radio, camera, globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Extra-special way to make an apple pie

Tired of the standard recipes for apple pie? There is no need to get in a pie rut. For a change of pace, try this Apple Pie Au-Natural. It's deliciously different and filled to the brim with tasty nutrition.

Even the pie crust is extra special. It is made from honey-sweetened natural cereal or your favorite granola. The filling is a marvelous combination of apple yogurt and honey-sweetened apple slices. The use of honey as a sweetener blends like a charm with fresh fruit to hold it's elusive flavor. Apple Pie Au-Natural has a place at the breakfast table as well as a dessert. Serve a wedge for breakfast. It's a super way to start the day.

APPLE PIE AU-NATURAL

Crust
- 1-3rd cup melted butter or margarine
- 1½ cups honey-sweetened natural cereal or granola, crushed if necesessary

Combine butter with cereal and toss lightly. Set aside ¼ cup for topping. Press remainder over bottom and up sides of 9-inch pie pan. Heat oven to 375 degrees (moderate). Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Cool completely. Note: Crust may be chilled without baking, if desired.

Apple Topping
- ½ cup mild-flavored honey
- 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 4 or 5 green apples peeled and sliced thinly
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon
- 2 teaspoon cornstarch

Pour honey into wide-bottomed skillet. Add lemon juice and apple slices. Combine salt with spice and cornstarch. Sprinkle over apples. Cover and simmer 5 to 7 minutes, or until apples are barely tender, stirring gently once or twice. Set aside to cool while preparing filling.

Filling
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 1 carton (½ pint) apple yogurt

Combine cream cheese and yogurt thoroughly, using mixer or wire whisk. Pour into cooled pie crust and cover completely with cooled apple slices. Sprinkle with reserved cereal crumbs. Chill thoroughly before serving.

Tuna salad sandwich goes nutty

If the Earl of Sandwich were alive today he would be astounded at the many ways Americans have of making a sandwich. Almost anything goes as a filling and someone in the Mediterranean area has even plopped dainty squid into a hard roll as a special treat. A new variation of the standby tuna salad for a sandwich adds peanuts to the tuna for an added protein kick.

NUTTY TUNA SANDWICH
- 1 can (7 ounce) tuna fish, drained and flaked
- ½ cup chopped salted peanuts
- ¼ cup minced celery
- 1 tablespoon minced scallion
- 1-3rd cup mayonnaise
- 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

In a medium bowl thoroughly combine tuna fish, peanuts, celery, scallion, mayonnaise and Worcestershire sauce. Use as a sandwich filling. Makes sufficient filling for 4 sandwiches.

Dining out

About one third of U.S. meals are now eaten outside the home, according to Franklin A. Jacobs, president of Falcon Products, Inc. this rising trend is continuing and within the next decade 50 per cent of all meals will be eaten by Americans outside the home.

Two family favorites team up to make new favorite

Every family cook knows what makes a recipe qualify for frequent serving to the family. It should be made with familiar foods. Nothing strange or exotic. It should satisfy hearty appetites, and not make too much work for the cook.

That's a good description of a Bologna and Banana Barbecue, easy as anything to make yet with just a little touch of novelty in serving a familiar food, bananas, a little different way. The bologna is bought in one piece (solid, no-waste meat and a family favorite) and baked with a tangy, molasses-rich sauce. Then the bananas are added, basted with the same sauce, and the combination brought to the table, offering a very appetizing aroma, and a fine taste treat.

Have you noticed how attractively bananas are priced at market? Check for yourself what good value they offer as you compare them in actual cents per pound with other fruits in season. The banana, as the Banana Bunch, industry-sponsored center for consumer information, points out, knows no season and is always ready-at-hand in your market. That's because successive crops are planted to assure a steady supply of this much-liked fruit all the year around.

Another grand family dish featuring cooked bananas is Mustard Broiled Chicken and Bananas, a zippy way to serve two fine foods that are usually a very good value for the money at market. Both the chicken and the bananas are brushed with a delicious mustard sauce softened with the herb called tarragon. The finished dish is just delicious. The mild mustard taste is a favorite with each member of the family and the bananas are fun to eat in this new way with the old familiar chicken. Here is a recipe family-designed for acceptance by young and old.

The banana has a different nuance of flavor when cooked that many people learn to appreciate as much as a banana eaten out of hand. For cooking, choose a firm banana. It may be still tinged with green yet develop fine flavor as it cooks.

BOLOGNA AND BANANA BARBECUE

- 2 pounds whole bologna
- Whole cloves
- ¼ cup molasses
- ¼ cup prepared mustard
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 4 firm bananas
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Score bologna and stud with cloves. Place in roasting pan; bake in 425-degree oven 20 minutes. In medium bowl, mix molasses, mustard, vinegar, lemon juice and ginger. Brush on bologna, bake 5 minutes longer. Peel bananas and cut in chunks. Add to roasting pan, and brush with melted butter, then with sauce. Brush remaining sauce over bologna and bake 10 minutes longer.

MUSTARD BROILED CHICKEN AND BANANAS

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in quarters
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1-3rd cup prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 4 firm bananas
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Place on broiler pan skin side down. Place 6 inches from broiler. Broil 15 to 20 minutes, until lightly browned, turn, and broil 10 minutes longer. In small bowl mix mustard, onion, tarragon, lemon juice and oil. Brush on chicken, broil 5 minutes; turn and brush chicken with mustard sauce. Peel bananas, cut in half lengthwise and place on broiler pan with chicken; brush with melted butter, then with mustard sauce and broil 5 minutes.

SPINACH QUICHE

To make the crust for this special quiche, combine 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¾ cup butter until small crumbs form. Add 1 slightly beaten egg and 7 tablespoons water. Mix until dough holds together. On lightly floured board, roll into 17x13-inch rectangle. Place in a jelly roll pan and crimp edges. Preheat oven to 400. Sprinkle 8 ounces shredded Jarlsberg cheese and a package of drained frozen spinach over pastry bottom. Combine 2 cups heavy cream, 2 cups milk, 6 eggs, 1 minced onion, ½ cup flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon each pepper and nutmeg. Mix well and pour over cheese and spinach. Bake 35 or 40 minutes at 400 degrees. Makes 12 servings.

DODGER MESMERIZER

Bruce Kison shows his sidewheeling form against the Dodgers. Kison gave up only two singles in 6⅔ innings and now has a string of 19.2 scoreless innings in post-season play. Bucs won 7-0.

It was all over in first inning

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — A record crowd of 55,953 showed up at Dodger Stadium, Tuesday, expecting to see a ball game.

Instead they saw Wilver Stargell hit a three-run homer, his first ever in post-season competition which includes four playoffs and a World Series.

They saw Bruce Kison, a skinny righthander with a 9-8 record in regular season play, mesmerize Dodger hitters.

They saw Doug Rau serve up two home run balls and depart after being rocked for five runs in two-thirds of the first inning.

And they saw their favorites put on a shabby fielding exhibition which put them in the record books with the most errors, five, in a championship series game.

When the last dreary out of an extremely dull game was recorded on a gloomy, gray day, the Pirates were 7-0 winners. The best-of-five series now stands at 2-1.

The Dodgers got only four scattered hits, two by shortstop Bill Russell, and were laughable when they tried to pick up and throw a baseball.

"This may have been the worst looking game we've played all year," admitted manager Walter Alston in the post-game interview room. "We didn't have any bright spots except Russell and (Al) Downing."

In addition to getting half the Dodger hits, Russell set three playoff fielding records and tied a fourth. The slender shortstop accepted 13 chances and had six putouts, both new records. He tied another mark by making seven assists. He participated in three double plays which gave him an individual record and the Dodgers a team record.

Downing pitched four innings of one-hit ball and walked only one batter.

But Downing came along too late. Four innings too late.

Rennie Stennett opened the game with a single to right. Manny Sanguillen grounded to Dave Lopes. Lopes tried to tag Stennett as he approached and then throw to first for a double play.

But Stennett got by Lopes and only Sanguillen was retired. Rau went to 3-1 on Al Oliver, then 3-2, and finally walked him.

Stargell took one pitch for a ball and then slammed the second into the right field stands.

The dangerous Richie Zisk grounded out and Bob Robertson should have been the third out. Robertson grounded to Steve Garvey but Rau got a late start for first.

Garvey flipped to Rau as he approached the bag, but Rau missed the base. It was Rau's flub all the way. But the official scorer gave the error to Garvey.

Rau's next error was mental rather than physical. He served up a fat pitch to Richie Hebner on a 2-2 count. Hebner jumped on it like a starving man leaping for a hamburger and drove the ball into the right field stands to keep Stargell's ball company.

That was all for Rau and it was really all the ball game that was necessary. Charlie Hough was summoned for 2 1-3 innings of duty.

Hough retired Mario Mendoza for the third out and got through the second. But he was rocked for two runs on four singles and a passed ball in the third inning.

It didn't take long in the post game interview for someone to question the wisdom of starting Rau who has now dropped six of his last seven games.

"Rau has pitched good ball all season long for us," retorted Alston, his temperature, voice and hair on the back of his neck all rising visibly. "Pittsburgh was bound to break loose against someone and today it was Rau."

But the writer persisted and asked if Downing wouldn't have been a better choice in view of how the two had performed.

"We've won with Rau in rotation all year long and I'm not going to change now," scowled Alston. "He had good stuff today but he just couldn't put it where he wanted to. His main problem was the Pittsburgh bats."

They did get in the way of the ball all right.

Meanwhile Kison toyed with the Dodgers until the seventh when his fifth and sixth walks sandwiched around Russell's second single loaded the bases with two out.

Pirates manager Danny Murtaugh, celebrating his 57th birthday, brought in Ramon Hernandez, a lefty. Alston sent up Manny Mota to bat for the left-handed hitting Bill Buckner. Mota hit a soft liner to Stennett. Hernandez retired seven of the last eight Dodger batters. The exception was Tom Paciorek who got a pinch single in the eighth then became the Dodgers' 10th and last runner left on base.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton and Jerry Reuss were to repeat their opening game matchup today.

Stargell didn't think any homers would be hit Tuesday. "The air is too heavy and damp," said the 6-2, 225-pound slugger while taking batting practice. "The ball just won't carry."

Alston still retained enough of a sense of humor to draw a laugh when asked if errors were contagious. "If they are I hope the Pirates catch a few," he quipped.

World Series tickets on sale

World Series tickets for all games scheduled to be played at Dodger Stadium went on sale this morning at 9:30 a.m. at Ticketron outlets and Mutual Theatre Ticket agencies. Tickets will not be available at Dodger Stadium.

If the Dodgers win the National League championship, the World Series will open at Dodger Stadium this weekend with Game No. 1 on Saturday at 1 p.m. and Game No. 2 on Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Tickets will be limited to two per person per game. The tickets are priced at $15 for a box seat, $10 for a reserved seat and $8 for a general admission seat.

Games Nos. 3, 4 and 5 will be played in the home park of the American League champion. If the series goes its full limit of seven games, Game No. 6 will be played at Dodger Stadium on Saturday, Oct. 19, at 1 p.m. and Game No. 7 will be played at Dodger Stadium on Sunday, Oct. 20, at 1:30 p.m.

Bruce Kison money pitcher for Pittsburgh

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — If ever a hurler deserved the reputation of a "money pitcher" Pittsburgh's Bruce Kison is certainly that man.

The Pirate righthander once again flashed his special brand of October magic Tuesday afternoon at Dodger Stadium, as he put his Bucco mates right back into the thick of the National League championship series.

All the young Pirate pitcher did was blank the Dodgers for 6 and 2-3 innings in the Bucs' 7-0 shutout of L.A., allowing only two hits while fanning five.

For Kison, it wasn't anything special. The Pasco, Washington native still has not allowed a run in post-season championship play.

Kison hurled six scoreless frames in the 1971 and 1972 N.L. series, and beat Baltimore with a six and 1-3 one-hit relief job in the 1971 World Series. Thus adding Tuesday's effort on to an already impressive record, Kison in four post-season outings has hurled 20 innings, fanned 14 men, surrendered only six hits, and has yet to allow a run.

Asked about his incredible success in post-season play, the skinny righthander modestly replied, "I've been very fortunate. I don't really know why I've pitched that well. Maybe you should ask the Guy upstairs."

The Dodgers would have liked some help from the Man upstairs themselves Tuesday, as Kison's sinking fastball had them hitting harmless grounders all day. Through five innings, only one Dodger had gotten the ball out of the infield, and that was a flyball out by Joe Ferguson in the fifth.

Kison, who compiled a nondescript 9-8 mark during the regular season, was his own worse enemy with six base on balls allowed. The walks were the reason he was removed from the contest in the seventh in favor of reliever Ramon Hernandez.

"I walked too many," Kison pointed out in the Pirate clubhouse. "I had hoped to go the distance to give our bullpen a rest, but I threw too many pitches and tired that last inning (the seventh).

"Having a seven-run lead made it a lot easier, but I still was concerned about not giving up runs. There was a lot at stake today, our backs were to the wall."

Dodger shortstop Bill Russell, the only L.A. player to garner a hit off of Kison, had this to say about his overpowering performance: "I thought Kison had good stuff out there this afternoon. He was moving the ball in and away from out hitters quite well. It was just almost a perfect game for him in that he mixed his pitches up just enough to keep our hitters offstride."

A's try to wrap it up

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Confident they have won the big one, the Oakland A's send "money man" Jim Hunter to the mound against the Baltimore Orioles today in an effort to clinch their third straight American League pennant.

Having beaten Jim Palmer, 1-0, on Vida Blue's brilliant two-hitter and Sal Bando's homer in Tuesday's vital third game, the two-time world champions need only one victory in the two remaining scheduled games to win the pennant. They would be the first to win three straight pennants since the great New York Yankee teams of the early 1960s.

As close as they are to scoring a triumph which would entitle them to be ranked among the great teams in AL history, the A's were still fussin' and feudin' among themselves.

Angered at being removed from Tuesday's game for a pinch-runner in the seventh inning, first baseman Gene Tenace sharply criticized Manager Alvin Dark for the move and hinted it was made to satisfy Oakland owner Charlie Finley, who introduced Herb Washington as a designated runner to baseball, instead of for sound strategical reasons.

The Orioles, who haven't scored a run in their last 22 innings in this series, are banking on Mike Cuellar, a 22-game winner during the season and 6-3 victor over Hunter in Saturday's opening game, to keep their hopes alive. A left-hander with a wide assortment of curveballs, Cuellar stands 2-1 in playoff competition.

But the A's made no secret of their belief that Blue's magnificent triumph was the key to winning the series.

"We can be just that much looser in the fourth game," explained Bando. "The Orioles will be in a position where they can't afford to make a mistake."

Hunter, a 25-game winner this season and a 20-game winner in each of the last four years, is a quiet right-hander from Hertford, N.C., who is regarded by his teammates as the best money pitcher in baseball.

"He don't say nothin' from the beginning of the season to the end of it," comments Tenace. "He just goes out, does his job and collects his money. He's the one we want going for us when it's a money situation."

Blue, who had a 17-15 record during the season, retired the first 11 Baltimore batters before Bobby Grich singled with two out in the fourth. The only other hit he allowed was Don Baylor's seventh inning single and the Orioles' only two other baserunners reached on errors by second baseman Dick Green.

Green's second error, permitting Paul Blair to reach first base with two out in the ninth, gave the hometown crowd of 30,060 hopes that the Orioles could pull out a victory as they did so often in the stretch run of the AL Eastern Division race. Blue seemed agitated for a few moments—although he later denied it—but got the dangerous Grich to force Blair at second ending the game.

Bando, who is outspoken in his belief that the A's haven't received their fair credit for winning two consecutive World Series, hit a "fast ball down" by Palmer into the left field bleachers with one out in the fourth for the game's only run. It was his second homer in this series and the fifth he has hit in playoff competition.

Palmer, who expressed concern Monday that a pinched nerve in his right elbow might prevent him from starting the game, allowed only four hits in a splendid performance. He was something of an unhappy prophet, however, inasmuch as he said before the game, "It's been that kind of season for me...the better I pitch, the harder it seems it is for me to win."

CIF expansion set this year

Kevin Cloe's column Tuesday on the CIF accepting second place teams beginning next year was found in error. The CIF did vote to accept the expansion of the playoffs, but it will go into effect this year, not beginning next year.

The original proposal was drafted with hopes of beginning it next season, but the committee decided at the meeting to start the new idea right away.

Goodrich leads Lakers with 27

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Guard Gail Goodrich scored a game-high 27 points to provide the Los Angeles Lakers with a 116-113 overtime victory Tuesday night over the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association pre-season game.

Charlie Scott led Phoenix with 20 points before he was ejected from the game with two technical fouls.

Battle of the Cal Polys resembling war

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Valley football's answer to Army vs. Navy, Michigan vs. Michigan State, USC vs. UCLA, Cal vs. Stanford (take your choice) is the annual clash between the Cal Polys — Pomona vs. San Luis Obispo

In other years it was a lopsided affair, dominated by the northern school.

This year's battle —Saturday night at Kellogg Field — could be an exception. At least that's what Bronco head coach Andy Vinci is counting on.

Vinci said as much Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of writers and coaches at the Castaways Restaurant in Pomona.

"It's quite a challenger for us," said the coach who made a name for himself at the University of San Diego. "Poly (Pomona) has never beaten SLO — It's the Army-Navy game, past records or whatever don't mean a thing.

"It should be a very emotional, physical football game, SLO is the type of team that doesn't know how to quit. You can get a lead on them but you're never safe."

Adding fuel to the fire is the fact that SLO was upset last weekend by UC Riverside, 24-10.

SLO has not been too popular among valley coaches for a number of years. With a successful program, it has attracted some of the area's top high school talent away.

A dozen or more players on this year's SLO team are valley products.

"We have fewer kids from this area than they do," Vinci pointed out. "That should stop. We're going to do our best to do it."

Coaches and writers voted Azusa Pacific's Jim Farmer and La Verne's Jeff Button the offensive and defensive four-year college players of the week, while Mt. San Antonio College's Binky Benton and John Sheehan were selected for the two-year college honors.

Farmer gained 156 yards on 25 carries with three touchdowns in APC's 41-14 victory over Pomona-Pitzer last weekend, while Button, a Ganesha High Product, was in on 13 tackles from his middle guard position in La Verne's 13-3 loss to USIU.

Benton, a freshman from Los Altos, rushed for 129 yards and one touchdown on 29 carries in MSAC's 13-13 tie with L.A. Harbor, and Sheehan, formerly of South Hills High, who returned from Alabama this year, was in on 12 tackles, made one fumble recovery and forced two bad snaps by the Harbor center from his middle guard position.

NHL season opens with a new look

By United Press International

The National Hockey League kicks off its most inflated season ever tonight with almost every team that survives the season having a shot at post season play.

The NHL, which has watered down its product by expanding to 18 teams this season with at least two more to come in the years ahead, will also allow for two-thirds of those 18 to participate in the playoffs. All you have to do is finish in the top of three of your division— two of which are comprised of just four teams and two of five.

So if the season has been a bore in years past because of the lengthy "second season" (i.e. the playoffs), tune in later on in May...or will it be July this time?

Meanwhile the 58th NHL season gets underway tonight with both of its newest members, the Washington Capitals and Kansas City Scouts—quite likely the two worst teams ever to take the ice for Clarence Campbell and Co.—both on the road. The Scouts are at Toronto, while Washington opens at New York against the Rangers.

Elsewhere, Chicago is at Detroit; the New York Islanders are at Montreal; Pittsburgh is at Minnesota; St. Louis at California and Atlanta at Vancouver.

On Thursday, the Philadelphia Flyers will begin their defense of the Stanley Cup by entertaining the Los Angeles Kings, while the Boston Bruins, NHL runnerups a year ago, are at Buffalo.

Olympic bout rated even

LOS ANGELES — Venezuelan welterweight champion Nelson Ruiz and Carlos Palomino are rated even in their 10 round main event at the Olympic Thursday night. Ruiz is 19-1-1 with 17 knockouts while Palomino is 10-1-1 with three KO's.

Both fighters end sparring Wednesday. Ruiz will drill at the Main Street gym at 2 p.m. with Palomino sparring at Hoover St. gym at 5 p.m.

Olympic matchmaker Don Chargin has said he will try to sign Thursday's winner against Indian Red Lopez for early December. Lopez, after a several month layoff has returned to the gym and will be back in action soon.

Polomino from Westminster, won the 1972 AAU national welterweight title by beating Sugar Ray Seales.

La Verne looking for offensive hope

Quoting the coaches:

Roland Ortmayer, La Verne College — "We gave up the ball three or four times against USIU (13-3 loss) and that told me we shouldn't have even showed up. Defensively, Ben's (Hines) gang held them on those occasions, but we eventually lost. We play Azusa Pacific at home this week and we'll have to play better ball to stay on the field with them. It could be a good game if we rise to the occasion."

Jerry Sconce, Azusa Pacific — "It was 20-0 at haltime in our game with Pomona-Pitzer last week, but I was worried about (Larry) Cenotto. He's the type of player that gets you to wondering how he's going to beat you. We play Ort's team (La Verne) this week. They lost to San Diego but I don't see how they did it. We'll have a real battle with them It should be a very physical game."

Walt Ambord, Pomona-Pitzer — "It seems every time we play APC we bring out the best in their offense. They executed very well (in Pomona's 41-14 loss). We did feel good about moving the ball as well as we did and Cenotto is to us like Nolan Ryan is to the Angels. He just gets better and better."

John Zinda, Claremont-Mudd — "We're jumping from the pan into the fire (after 42-12 loss to Cal Lutheran). It may have been the worst coaching job I've ever witnessed. Cal Lutheran is good but not unbeatable. I hope we improve against USIU this week. Were going to try a few things and get ready for conference play in two weeks."

Willie Richardson, Chaffey College — "We've been fooled by Palomar the last couple of years (33-13 loss). They lull you to sleep., We had some good points, including a rushig game that came alive. This week we play RCC. They tied Grossmont last week, 9-9 when Grossmont was hurting with injuries. They kept Grossmont in a hole all night thanks to their kicker who must have averaged 50 yards on punts and made three field goals.

Mal Eaton, Mt. San Antonio College — "I've said it before and I'll say it again: We've played four of the better teams in the state so far this year. We tied L.A. Harbor last week and they were a very good team. We're in a position right now where we're kinda frustrated but our kids have never quit. We play L.A. Valley this week, and I think if we once put it together we'll be heard from."

Cordova named Cards' QB in Pac-8 opener with UCLA

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -- It will be Mike Cordova at quarterback for Stanford when the Cardinals take on UCLA Saturday night at the Coliseum in both teams Pac-8 opener.

Coach Jack Christiansen told the Northern California football writers Tuesday that Cordova had won the job against fellow sophs Jerry Waldvogel and Guy Benjamin after each had started at least one game for the winless Cards.

"We will have the other two prepared," Christiansen said, "but we will try to give the starter 60 to 75 per cent of the time in practice. With the kind of reserves we have, I might be willing to make a change a little sooner than I might normally, but which of the other two would go in depends on our game plan and the situation."

Christiansen said that Cordova was chosen "because he's the best quarterback."

Many Cards fans were impressed with the way Waldvogel kept his cool in his college debut against mighty Michigan Saturday as the Wolverines won 27-16.

But Waldvogel said, "I got my best shot. I said before I'd abide by the decision. Both Guy and I are going to be on the sidelines, charting plays, talking on the phones and talking things over with Mike."

Asked what he would have done if he had not gotten the job, the 215-pound Cordova admitted, "it all depends on your ambitions. If I had to play third string all year I would have considered transferring to another school at the end of the season."

The writers named Steve Rivera of California Offensive Player of the Week after he caught eight passes for 158 yards in the Bears' 31-14 stunner at Illinois.

The Bears host Oregon in their Pac-8 opener and Coach Mike White said "with the conference season just beginning, a team like Oregon thinks they're going to the Rose Bowl, just like everybody else in the conference ..."

He never finished the sentence because he then remembered the Bears were on probation and can't go to Pasadena this season.

White said that linebacker Phil Heck hurt his knee against Illinois and is doubtful against the Ducks.

White also praised Oregon halfback Don Reynolds and defensive stalwart Reggie Lewis, whom he called two of the best players in the nation. He said the important thing about the win over Illinois is "that our players have all of a sudden become success-oriented. Our kids have great enthusiasm now. They'll play the rest of the season knowing they can win any game they get into."

WFL still moving in wrong direction

By United Press International

And then there were 10...with nine a distinct possibility by season's end.

The World Football League is making rapid progress—backward—and that means only five games will be played this week instead of the customary six. We have paid our last respects to the Detroit Wheels and Jacksonville Sharks and with that done away with, can the Florida Blazers be far behind?

The "waffle" or "whiffle" if you prefer, resumes play Wednesday night with what remains of its schedule— Portland at Birmingham, the Hawaiians at Philadelphia. Memphis at Charlotte, N.C., and Florida, the latest franchise to be taken over by the league office, at Chicago.

Two other survivors—Shreveport, La., and Southern California—play Thursday night on the west coast.

The league mounted a surprise challenge to the National Football League before play began in the older, established league by signing some top NFL stars for play in 1975. But since then, the latest brainstorm of Gary Davidson has run into a series of disasters, the latest being the folding of the Detroit and Jacksonville franchises.

Under the guidance of young Davidson, the WFL now has assumed the operation of two franchises, the abortive New York club which was transferred to Charlotte, and the Houston team which now masquerades as the entry from Shreveport.

While Davidson's other new league ventures survive in the World Hockey Association and the American Basketball Association, his WFL appears in dire trouble. Attendance figures, hypoed by free admissions in opening games, have slumped steadily, and the pressures of inflation have driven projected first season financial losses to heights never anticipated.

But the league insisted Tuesday that the contracts of players now in uniform, and the agreements reached with such NFL stars as Larry Csonka, Kenny Stabler, Paul Warfield, Craig Morton and Ted Hendricks would still be honored.

Obviously, the league still hopes that with these names joining the ranks in the next two years, survival is still a reality. But now, in its 15th week of operation, the problems continue to mount, and there is little talk of the "world" aspect of the new league.

When play begins tonight, the Charlotte entry will face the Memphis Southmen. Charlotte, on paper, was supposed to be the Boston franchise. It wound up instead in New York, then fled the "Big Apple" two weeks ago. Oh yes, call them the Hornets now.

On Thursday night, Shreveport, mark them down as the Steamers in case you've been caught up in other issues of late, will visit Anaheim to meet the Southern California Sun. Shreveport began as the Houston franchise, where the club was known as the Texans.

The President will be happy. Here we have at least one piece of Americana that is not inflating.

Overton gets major upset

PHOENIX (UPI) — Unseeded Wendy Overton pulled a stunning first-round upset over third-seeded Evonne Goolagong Tuesday night in the $50,000 Virginia Slims-Phoenix Tennis Tournament.

Miss Overton defeated the Australian, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 after fighting back from a 3-0 deficit in the third set.

Top-seeded Billie Jean King, returning to the tour after a two-week layoff, easily ousted Pat Bostrom, 6-3, 6-2.

Another upset Tuesday afternoon saw Tory Fretz eliminate eighth-seeded Valerie Ziegenfuss, 6-3, 6-1.

Hacienda League roundup

Walnut serves its warning to the rest of the league

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

The spirit on the Walnut High campus is at a peak where its football team is concerned.

Ken Gunn's young Mustangs, after losing both preleague contests (Nogales, 24-7, and Rowland, 21-2), played ball control to edge Alta Loma Saturday, 17-14, and gain a victory in its 1974 Hacienda League debut.

"Hey, when you get this many young kids — many having never played football before — and win, it's not hard to get them jacked up," said coach Gunn, Monday night.

As the teams are in preparation for their second league encounters, Saturday night's Walnut—Gladstone matchup, set for 8 p.m. at MSAC, is one of the two featured H.L. games of the week. The other being Friday night's Royal Oak—San Dimas tussle at Bonita High at 8 p.m.

"We made some mistakes (against Alta Loma) but we played much better," said Gunn.

The Mustangs received fine performances from quarterback Scott Stowell (13-of-21 for 137 yards and 1 TD), receiver Bob Flores (three catches for 49 yards and a score), running back Keith McDermott (19 carries for 101 yards) and linebacker Rick Packer, who was in on 16 tackles, intercepted a pass to set up a score and tackled the A.L. QB for a safety.

"I think Scott is getting better and better and I think he'll get better this week. He throws a real good pass," continued the six year Mustang skipper. "Flores' best asset is his concentration. If the pass is thrown well, he'll catch it. And Keith's (McDermott) performance is the first 100-yard game a running back has turned in in the school's history (7 years). Packer was just everywhere, he played a real fine game."

Coach Art Hiett pilots the Gladstone Gladiators (2-1 overall), which split its preleague encounters, losing to John Glenn, 13-12, and ripping Mountain View, 32-6, and blanking San Dimas, 7-0, in last week's closely fought league opener.

"When we first came into the league ('68) they (Gladstone) were good, then didn't do so well for awhile, and in the last few years Art has made them a real good club again," said Gunn.

Quarterback Jim Wirth knows how to move the team and is a fine passer (8-19-2) for 73 yards vs. San Dimas). Running Backs Marty Jancan (20-62 yards) and Steve Norred (9-28) can be troublesome while Frank Gildea is a key player both offensively and defensively. He grabbed four passes for 40 yards last week.

"They're basically a running team but can beat you with the pass as well," continued Gunn. "They'll pass from a shotgun at times. In general, they come well prepared and execute well making few mistakes."

The other crucial matchup is the Royal Oak — San Dimas affair. The Romans, under Len Mussack, has already established as a top defensive team led by linebacker Frank Malicki and a secondary of Jim Gibbons, Chris Rio and Larry Vicino.

This unit has accumulated 10 interceptions so far this season, they had 22 last year, led by Vicino who had four thefts for 101 yards against Ontario last week. He had a fifth interception that was returned for a touchdown called back, which would have tied a CIF record of five in one game held by Walnut's Greg Johnston ('72).

The Romans have also come around as a top offensive unit as well, as shown by their 40-8 rout of the Jaguars last week. Jim Garcia, despite having thrown five interceptions, is a fine QB.

The Romans also have a talented array of running backs in Chris Tribble, Rick Hall and Vince Nixon.

Tribble leads the RB's with 214 yards on 15 carries and three TD's.

With nine returning starters in the defense and a veteran backfield the only question mark is the offensive line. With its development the Romans are definitely a contender along with Bonita and Sierra Vista.

San Dimas (0-3) has got to be the best winless team in the area having lost to Damien, 9-0, on two mistakes that led to the Spartan scoring; to Nogales, 26-13, on Bob Gallego's two interception returns; and to Gladstone, 7-0, last week.

"We're disappointed but we think we're the best winless team around," said coach Bob Baiz. "We're very satisfied with our defense but we've had a bad time with field possession and haven't had the ball at lucrative times.

We feel we haven't played our best yet and God-willing we'll put it together pretty soon."

In other Friday night contests, Bonita (3-0, 1-0) battles Alta Loma (1-2, 0-1) at Chaffey College while Ontario (1-2, 0-1) hosts Sierra Vista (1-2, 0-1) at Chaffey High. Both games start at 8 p.m.

"We were only down 16-0 at the half but they wore us down in the second half," said Ontario coach Doug Brooks, about last week's loss to Royal Oak.

The Jaguars only had 21 players to suit up for the contest and by the conclusion of the contest had lost starting fullback Doug Brooks and guard Marty McClanahan, both with knee injuries. Brooks is out for at least two weeks while McClanahan is doubtful for the Sierra Vista game.

The Jaguars, who face the three toughest teams in a row — R.O. last week, S.V. this week, and Bonita next week — could have trouble stopping the Dons' big and quick backfield of Steve Lipan (110 yards — 15 carries vs. Bonita), Keith Smith (6-1, 220), who has been out with a sprained ankle, and Jerry Cardenas.

"We don't know if we can stop them or not," said Brooks. "The fact that they don't throw much might help us but we're pretty small. We'll have to bring up some JV's to fill the ranks."

Local prep roundup

More surprises await Montview League

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

Some surprises spiced the opening week of Montview League play, and coach Wayne Fetters of Charter Oak figures that more upsets might be in order throughout the league season.

Fetters' Charter Oak squad rebounded from an 0-2 preleague slate to shutout Bassett 13-0 inlast week's opener, thus sounding a warning to the rest of the league that the Lancer defense is for real.

"We were really happy with the shutout," Fetters said of the win. "We held Bassett to 105 yards in total offense and they had scored 32 opints the week before. There is no question that defense is our strong point."

The Lancers lost their two pre-league games by a total of eight points, but Fetters figures his team has settled down and is ready to challenge for the loop title.

"Rowland has to be the team to beat in the Montview League," Fetters points out, "but we aren't looking ahead to them. We have to beat Azusa this week for the Rowland game to mean anything anyway."

Azusa, a much-improved ballclub, also surprised last week, edging Baldwin Park 20-19. "Asuza will be tough," warned Fetters. "We will have to stop their passing game to beat them."

Star defensive linemen Robbie Ehlenberg, Ken Vannoy, Tom Sims and Mike Pankratz will try to contain Azusa's offense, while Lancer running back Tim Kistler will try to duplicate his 122-yard rushing effort of last week.

In addition to the Charter Oak-Asuza fray, the other M.L. matchups look equally interesting.

League favorite Rowland will entertain Bassett in what might turn out to be a high-scoring duel. Radier quarterback Flavio Garcia was on target in last week's Rowland win, and despite the blanking Bassett suffered against Charter Oak the Olympians can move the ball well on offense.

Rowland will have to contain the likes of speedy fullback Joe Fletcher who gained 792 yards last season as a junior.

Nogales will try to get untracked after last week's shocking 20-8 loss to Workman. The Nobles go against Baldwin Park, another loser last week, and the defeated in Friday's contest can just about write off any title hopes for 1974.

Spirits are high among the two locals in the Arrowhead League, as both La Verne Lutheran and Webb opened the league slate with wins.

La Verne nabbed its first varsity win ever against Sherman, beating them 16-12 behind a big day by tight end Dale Pomo. The Trojans appear to be getting their offense and defense together, but this Friday's opponent, Notre Dame, is rated as one of the stronger entries in the loop.

Webb also opened Arrowhead action with a bang, bopping Lutheran of Orange 62-0. Friday the Gauls go against Sherman, having to guard mainly against overconfidence and a let down from last week;s laugher. Downing Sherman would give Webb a 2-0 league mark and might be the stepping stone the Gauls need towards a league title.

Ontario Christian will try to garner a win in the Olympic League after dropping a heartbreaker last week to Valley Christian, while American Christian opens its Academy League season with a toughie as the Minutemen go against Ambassador Christian.

In a nonleague contest, Chaffey High will try to improve its 2-1 season record Friday as the Tigers travel to Alhambra High.

Montclair hasn't lost its 'threat'

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

Montclair high still has that "break away" threat.

It looked as though the Cavaliers were going to lose a lot of speed out of their offensive backfield when Filbert Conzales graduated last year.

But Jim Donaldson came to the rescue.

Donaldson, a CIF 3-A 100 yard dash Frosh-Soph champion of last year in track, has been converted from a defensive back to a running back.

And for the Montclair fans, it's been a pleasant switch.

The 5-10, 155 pound junior has been running wild for the past three weeks, and now Claremont has to tangle with him this weekend.

Donaldson, who set a CIF Frosh-Soph record with his 9.9 clocking in track, will be looking forward to another big night while hoping to get his Cavalier teammates back on the winning track.

In the season-opener against Alta Loma three weeks ago, Donaldson scored two touchdwons in the Cavs' 20-12 victory. Then the follwoing week he racked up 185 yards on the ground with 26 carries and tallied two more touchdowns. Then last week in the San Antonio League opener against Ganesha, the fleet running back clicked off another 88 yards on 18 carries.

Donaldson may have been an excellent replacement for Gonzales, but he hasn't thought much about it.

"I really haven't thought much about comparing my style with his," he commented. "But now that I think about it, I guess our styles are different. I think he preferred going up the middle, while I like to run on the outside. I think I'm better at open-field running than I am at following blockers."

Donaldson is a little behind Gonzales' scoring pace from last year. Jim has scored four times this season and is currently the valley's third-leading scorer with 24 points.

Last year, Gonzales had six TDs at this point of the season and was in second place in the valley derby.

However, Gonzales only scored one more touchdown for the remainder of the year. That means Donaldson only has three more TDs to go to catch his predecessor.

And the way Montclair has been playing, winning two of its first three games, it looks like he could accomplish that midway through the season.

As for the Claremont game, Donaldson said, "Claremont has a good defensive backfield. I hope I can get by them on the outside, and I hope I can hit my holes quicker up the middle."

The Cavaliers and Wolfpack go at it Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. at Citrus College.

Friday night games which involve SAL teams include Chino vs. Pomona at Mt. San Antonio College, Upland at Damien, and Ganesha vs. Garey at Cal Poly. All games are slated for 7:30 p.m. kickoffs.

There have been some key injuries in the league which may be hazardous to a couple of the teams.

Garey has lost two of its players for the season with injuries. Starting defensive tackle Mike Brown broke his ankle in practice Monday, and running back Rodney Jones will be out of action with torn knee ligaments — which require surgery.

Claremont crossed off one of its running backs for the remainder of the year when Mark Robertson suffered his second concussion of the season.

Pomona will probably be without its starting quarter-

DEFENDING CHAMPION — Tom "The Mongoose" McEwen will be back on the strip at Ontario Speedway this weekend to defend his Funny Car title he won last year.

Rookie of the Year will be decided

The Grand National Rookie of the Year award in NASCAR's Winston Cup Series will be decided in the Times 500, the final race on this year's circuit which will be held Nov. 24 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

With only one race remaining before the finale at Ontario, Earl Ross leads 20-year-old Richie Panch by one point, 363-362, for the $10,000 prize presented by the Carling Brewing Company.

Three other rookies on the Grand National circuit who are also expected at Ontario remain close enough to the leaders to overtake them by the time the checkered flag is given in the Times 500.

They are Jackie Rogers with 340 points, Tony Bettenhausen with 336 and Bob Burcham with 310.

The rookies will be battling such NASCAR superstars as Richard Petty, David Pearson, Bobby Allsion and Cale Yarborough as well as former Indianapolis 500 champions A.J. Foyt and Johnny Rutherford in the $120,000, 500-mile race sponsored by the Los Angeles Times.

Supernationals doubleheader

Something new at OMS

A drag racing doubleheader, combining the best of two types of competition, completes the 1974 National Hot Rod Association major event schedule this weekend at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The Supernationals-World Finals will focus on the nation's premier performers in the heads-up professional competition us well as the recognized stars in handicap-style sportsman racing.

The event was created by combining the Supernationals, a previously all-professional race held each November at Ontario, with the World Finals, the October race which annually determined World championships in three pro and five sportsman brackets.

The result is a special season-ending competition incorporating a modified World Finals format with the crowd-pleasing professional show which has become symbolic of the Supernationals.

For the sportsman racer, the World Finals will exist as in the past with the most successful competitions from each of the NHRA's seven geographic divisions qualifying for the event and the winners in each eliminator category crowned as World Champions.

By contrast, the pros will qualify for an open field as in previous Supernationals events. However, the Ontario race will have added significance in that it is the final race of the season in which points may be earned applying toward driver championships in Top Fuel, Funny Car and Pro Stock eliminators.

As a result, the three-day competition provides added incentives for such drivers as Gary Beck and Dave Settles.

Settles, driving for the Houma, La., team of Candies and Hughes, won the NHRA Gatornationals at Gainesville, Fla., and has twice been runner-up this season. He holds a slight overall lead in season points over Beck, the two-time U.S. Nationals champion from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Similar situations exist in Funny Car and Pro Stock with season points championships hinging on the outcome of the Supernationals.

Every name driver in the sport is expected to participate in the professional phase of the event with Don Prudhomme of Granada Hills, Calif., attracting much of the early pre-race attention.

Prudhomme recently annexed his second consecutive U.S. Nationals championship at Indianapolis, Ind., to continue his almost total domination of funny car racing in 1974. Prudhomme recorded an all-time major event low elapsed time for funny cars at last year's Supernationals at 6.16 seconds. He has since run as quickly as 6.01 seconds in match race competition and will be aiming for the magic five-second bracket at Ontario.

Chris Evert faces Francoise Durr

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert faces Francoise Durr of France and Bille Jean King, the No. 2 seed, meets Betty Stove of the Netherlands Monday in the opening round of the $100,000 Virginia Slims championships.

The draw was conducted Tuesday for some of the first-round matches which will involve 16 of the top players in the Women's Pro Tennis circuit. Miss Durr is the No. 8 seed and Miss Stove is No. 10.

Australia's Evonne Goolagong plays her first match Oct. 15 against a player still to be determined, according to the finish of the Phoenix Virginia Slims Tournament.

Fourth-seeded Viginia Wade of England makes her assault on the $32,000 first prize money, the largest in women's tennis, with a first round match against Julie Heldmen, No. 7. Rosie Casals, No. 6, meets Australia's Karen Krantzcke, No. 11.

Czechoslovakia's Martina Navratilova, No. 12, Lesley Hunt, No. 13, and Helen Gourlay, No. 9, both of Australia, are also in the tourney but their opponents have yet to be dertermined.

Nancy Gunter, who had been seeded third with Miss Goolagong, defaulted in the Phoenix tournament because of illness, which will also keep her out of the championships at the sports arena.

Basketball guide available

College basketball fans may order the 79th edition of the Official Basketball Guide from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

It may be obtained by sending $2 to the NCAA Publishing Service, P.O. box 1906, Shawnee Mission, KS 66222.

Besides articles by some of the nation's top basketball writers, regular features are the 1974-75 schedules of 526 college teams, results and conference standings, team and play statistics, the consensus All-America team, photos and the 'read-easy' basketball rules.

Osborne, driving Pomona entry, wins Western 300

IRWINDALE — Bill Osborne, one of the giants of southland sportsman stock car racing, added to his laurels last weekend with an outstanding win in the "Permatex Western 300" race at Speedway 605 in Irwindale.

Osborne, driving his Pomona Truck Electric Chevelle, had set fast qualifying time for the event on Fiday night and started third in the 33 car line-up.

After leading several times early in the race Osborne took over the lead from Jack Roberts on lap 224, going on to win with Roberts dropping out with mechanical problems shortly thereafter.

The victory was worth $2,500 to Osborne out of a total purse in excess of $8,500 posted for the long 300 lap grind.

San Diego's Larry Esau claimed second place taking the checkered flag only two car lengths behind Osborne and running on the same lap. Finishing third and one lap down on the leaders was Rick Becker followed by George Esau, Ron Esau, Cal Edwards and Whitey Hoenshell.

Only 13 cars out of the original starting field of 33 machines was running at the end of the gruelling 300 laps over the high-banked half-mile asphalt speedway.

Southland racing

SAUGUS — A 100-lap open competition sportman championship race has been scheduled, by promoter Marshall Wilkings, to close the 1974 racing season at Saugus Speedway this Saturday night.

The top Sportmians cars from Craig Road Speedway, Las Vegas, South Bay Speedway, El Calon Speedway, Saugus Speedway and many more from the top race tracks in the Southland will be at Saugus to vie for the large purse and lap money.

IRWINDALE — Speedway motorcycles have long been known as the fastest accelerating machines in their sport — but they can't hold a candle to the monster that will be sharing the show with them Thursday night at Irwindale Raceway.

For this creation can roar down a quarter-mile drag strip and top 300 miles per hour from a standing start.

It's the Armor-All rocket dragster driven by John Paxson, a car that has hit 336 m.p.h. at under five seconds elapsed time on a strip in Amarillo, Tex.

GARDENA — National champion Ken Roberts of Modesto has one more all-time record to accomplish before he calls it an American Motorcycle Association season in the half-mile national at Ascot Saturday night.

Already the highest scorer in AMA history for a single season, Roberts now tries to become the first rider ever to win on all five types of tracks in one season of national competition. He has been victorious this year on the mile, short track, TT, and road courses.

IRWINDALE — United States Racing Club midgets return to Speedway 605 in Irwindale this Friday night with Bill Weingarten considered one of the top challengers in the field.

On September 28 the Laguna Niguel driver placed third in the trophy dash, third in the fast heat race and was moving up fast in the main event when mechanical problems placed him on the sidelines.

IRWINDALE — Ontario claimer stock car racing star, Gary Ebeling, comes to Speedway 605 in Irwindale Saturday night with every intention of winning the 25 lap main event on the flat quarter-mile asphalt racing oval.

The 12-event program will include trophy dashes, heat races, semi and main event for the claimer stock cars along with figure eight and street stock competition. Destruction derby tops off the evening.

Montclair has threat

back this weekend. John Souza suffered a sprained ankle and figures to miss at least one game. Also on the doubtful list for this weekend is linebacker Freddie Turner with a sprained ankle.

Ganesha running back Ricky Sanders will also be doubtful, still trying to recover from the elbow injury he sustained in the first game of the year against Corona.

Damien may also be without the services of two of its defensive players. Defensive back Steve Schiro (arm) and linebacker Mike Fraschetti (knee) will apparently be out for the season. However, the damien staff has not confirmed that yet.

Sports news in brief

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (UPI) Richard Petty, almost assured of capturing this year's NASCAR Winston Cup point championship, heads the field for the American 500 stock car race Oct. 20.

Petty, with a second-place finish last Sunday in Charlotte's National 500, has a 690.620-point lead over Cale Yarborough.

Yarborough, who also will be competing in the American 500, wound up 23rd in the wreck-marred event at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The race here, last of the NASCAR season in the Carolinas, will also feature David Pearson, Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison, his brother, Donnie, and Darrel Waltrip.

PITTSBUSGH (UPI) — Running back Franco Harris and linebacker Ed Bradley will return to the Pittsburgh Steelers' starting lineup when they meet the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday, it was revealed Tuesday by Coach Chuck Noll.

Harris has been sidelined two weeks with an ankle sprain, having been injured in the first series of offensive plays in the 17-0 loss to the Oakland Raiders.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sophomore running back Bill Manley of Eastern New Mexico, was named the NAIA Back of the Week Tuesday after gaining 223 yards in 26 carries Saturday against Ft. Hays State of Kansas.

The 5-foot-11, 190-pounder, who has carried 127 times for 642 yards to spark his team to four consecutive victories keyed Saturday's 14-7 victory.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Former state heavyweight boxing champion Jack O'Halloran was issued a bench warrant with bail set at $15,000 Tuesday after his failure to appear in Superior Court for sentencing on a felony assault charge.

The 30-year old O'Halloran forfeited existing bail of $3,000 after pleading guilty last month to a charge of striking waitress Jonnie Gail Tracy, 32, of Spring Valley, during a March fight at a San Diego bar.

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Emerson Fittipaldi, Brazil's premier race driver, paid his first visit to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Tuesday and drove the 1974 Indy 500-mile race winner's car around the track in tests.

Fittipaldi, who was accompanied by his father to the track, drove a team McLaren but the reason for the testing was not learned.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson, the new player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, will have new coaches for the 1975 season.

General Manager Phil Seghi announced Tuesday that the Tribes' coaching trio of Larry Doby, Clay Bryant and Tony Pacheco would not have their contracts renewed.

Doby left the club when his hope of becoming manager was crushed when the Indians tapped Robinson. Bryant and Pacheco have been offered other jobs in the club's minor league system.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Emile Griffith, winner of five world titles, meets Philadelphian Bennie Briscoe tonight in a fight that could land the winner another shot at the middleweight crown.

The 10-round match between Griffith, 36, and Briscoe, 31, will be for Briscoe's North American middleweight title.

Griffith, a 17-year veteran of the ring, has racked up a 77-16-2 record in winning the middleweight crown three times and the world welterweight title twice.

PRAGUE (UPI) — A rejuvenated Czechoslovak hockey team jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes Tuesday and went on to hand Team Canada a 3-1 defeat in the final game of its European visit.

The Canadians were fresh from a visit to Moscow, where the completed an eight games series against the Soviet Union in which they won one, lost four and drew three games.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association signed veteran guard Wali Jones Tuesday, hoping he'll fill the playmaker role of holdout Jimmy Jones.

"We lack a team quarterback with Jimmy Jones holding out," a team spokesman said. "We're hoping Wali Jones will fill that spot."

TOKYO (UPI) — Cliff Drysdale of South Africa today defeated Bob Rheinberger of Australia 6-2, 6-4 in the second round of the men's singles in the $100,000 1974 Japan Open tennis tournament.

MSAC falls in water polo

FULLERTON — Mt. San Antonio College's water polo team suffered a 13-7 loss to Fullerton Tuesday afternoon in the Hornets' pool to open South Coast Conference action.

The Vargas brothers, Joe and Chris, gave the Mounties all seven of their goals. Joe popped in five points, while Chris contributed the other two.

MSAC, now 9-3 for the season, had three of its players foul out of the contest.

Knox disputes talk that Rams are conservative

LONG BEACH (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams are in first place in the National Football Conference West with a 3-1 record after a 16-13 victory over the winless Detroit Lions.

Coach Chuck Knox doesn't agree with criticism the Rams are playing conservatively this year.

"One reason we didn't score more," Knox said Tuesday, "was so often we had the ball deep in our own territory at the beginning of a drive. We only got the ball nine times to begin with.

"The three times we scored we moved 80 yards to a touchdown, 84 for a field goal and 86 yards for another touchdown. On those three long drives there were several clutch passes to our running backs which kept the drive alive."

Knox, the NFC Coach of the Year in guiding the Rams to a 12-2 record last year as the surprise team of the conference, said a conservative team doesn't throw often enough or doesn't pass on first down.

"To me, that's conservative," he said. "It's misleading to say we're conservative and then use as an example that our longest pass play against the Lions was 18 yards. Actually, that was our longest completion.

"We threw two long ones to Harold Jackson that were incomplete and both those passes were on first down and one was in the fourth quarter. If he had caught one of those ballis, would you then call our offense conservative?

"We certainly weren't sitting on a lead."

Hard to stop

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jimmy Brown, former fullback for the Cleveland Browns (1957 to 65) and now an actor, led the National Football League in rushing in eight of his nine seasons. He's the all-time NFL leader with 12,312 yards.

Kings, Stars enjoy success in PSL play

The Division 2 Peterson Pharmacy Claremont Kings and the Division 4 Claremont Stars both won last Saturday while the Divison 3 Spittin' Image Claremont Knights and the Claremont Lancers lost in Pacific Soccer League action.

The Kings posted a 5-1 victory over the Manhattan Beach Raiders with Mike Hunter accounting for three of the goals and Jerry Van Zee and Mark Hunter each scoring one. Karcsi Kiraly anchored the Kings' defense.

The Stars defeated the Brea Olindas 15-0 in a lop-sided match. Jessi Albert scored four goals, Allen Pitts and Larry Jackson had three apiece, while Henry Gonzalez, Tom Carey, Steve Mason, Dave Ryan, and John Albert each scored one. The Stars defense was led by Bruce Hall.

The Knights lost 4-2 to the South Bay Gunners, last year's PSL Central Division Champion. Larry Ryan scored both goals with the assists going to John Carroll and Greg Eyrich. Lance Folden was a standout on defense.

The Lancers were defeated 7-1 by the Torrance Scandia Vikings with Dave Carey scoring the lone goal.

On Saturday, the Kings and Knights travel to Torrance to play teams from the Fram Soccer Club while the Stars journey to Brea. The Lancers play the Culver City Estudiantes at El Roble Intermediate School at noon.

Tech, A&M game on TV

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M officials announced Monday the Aggies' Southwest Conference football opener with Texas Tech Saturday will be nationally televised by ABC.

The kickoff time depends on the site of the opening game of the World Series.

If the series opens in Los Angeles—and the Dodgers currently lead their playoff with Pittsburgh, 2-0--the kickoff will be at 12 noon CDT. If the series opens in Pittsburgh, the kickoff will be at 2:50 p.m.

The game, originally scheduled for 3 p.m., has been sold out since last Tuesday. Kyle Field's capacity is 48,000.

Sporting News names Virdon

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Sporting News today named Bill Virdon of the New York Yankees 1974 Major League Manager of the Year.

Virdon was selected in a poll of the major league managers conducted by the sports weekly. Billy Martin of the Texas Rangers was a close runner-up.

Virdon, summarily dismissed by the Pittsburgh Pirates in September, 1973 when he had his club in pennant contention, was named Yankee manager last spring only after the management failed to get a release from Oakland owner Charles O. Finley for the services of Dick Williams.

Bucks obtain Steve Kuberski

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks said Tuesday they had obtained forward Steve Kuberski and given up forward Russell Lee in a deal with the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks also gave up their 1975 first round draft pick and an undisclosed amount of cash while New Orleans handed over its right to a 1975 second round pick which the Jazz had obtained earlier from the Phoenix Suns.

Penn State vs. Ohio St. in '78

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Ohio State University officials said Monday an 11th football game, with Penn State as the opposition, has been added to the 1978 Buckeye schedule.

The Buckeyes and Nittany Lions, who have met on four other occasions with Penn State winning all four, will be played Sept. 16, 1978, in Ohio Stadium. It will be the first meeting between the perennial powers since 1964.

'Private Lives'

Noel Coward comedy plays at Ahmanson

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Noel Coward's "Private Lives," which opened Tuesday at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center, should be a crisply nonsensical farce, as frothy as a meringue, but the Center Theater Group production emerges more as a fallen souffle.

Perhaps the changing times and tastss are responsible for the disappointment of the current production. Some five years ago I was enchanted with the Tammy Grimes-Brian Bedford redition, but the Ahmanson offering, starring the elegant Maggie Smith and John Standing, seems thin and exaggerated and not up to what the playwright had in mind—which wasn't much to start with.

Coward's Berty Wooster wit requires strict discipline and the lightest of touches. It gets neither from Miss Smith, who, as Amanda, goes through more gymnastics than Olga Korbut, or from Standing, who lends little interest to his characterization of Elyot Chase.

Remak Ramsay and Niki Flacks handle the thankless roles Victor and Sibye with suitable aplomb.

"Private Lives" is directed with flair by the prestigious Shakespearean, Sir John Gielgud, but even his genius cannot salvage the play. There are many laughs at both the drawing room and burlesque comedic levels, but the comdey seems like a Chinese dinner—an hour after the final curtain, you want to see a real play.

Too few patrolmen to control truckers

DALLAS (UPI) — The Department of Public Safety says it knows about truckers racing at 80 miles an hour along the state's highways and sympathizes with complaints from motorists.

"We don't have enough people to watch everybody," says Lt. Chester Fant. "We'd have to have as many patrolmen as there are motorists in Texas to effectively control them."

ANDREW BOETTNER

Music group to present song recital

Baritone Andrew Boettner, a student at Cal State Fullerton, will present a recital in Pattison Hall, Scrkpps College, at 3 p.m. Sunday under the auspices of the Pomona Valley branch of the Music Teachers' Association of California.

Boettner, 22, will receive his bachelor's degree in January from Cal State, where he is a voice student of Leona Roberts, member of the Garden Grove Branch of MTAC. Boettner is currently beginning work on his master's degree in performance at the univeristy.

Last summer, Boettner attended an opera workshop at Cal State with Michael Kurkjian, and sang with the Lyric Opera at Laguna Beach. At the univeristy, he has sung the baritone leads in "Cabaret," "Die Fledermaus," "The Old Maid and the Thief" and "L'Enfant Prodigue." He is regular soloist at the Santa Ana United Methodist Church.

This past year Boettner was a first-place winner in the Orange County Musical Arts Auditions, and at the MTAC Convention in San Diego, was presented with the Pat Baker Memorial Scholarship at the Young Artists' Guild Program.

Boettner's program will include operatic arias by Handel, Scarlatti, Ravel and Mozart, and Leider by Schumann, Schubert and Brahms. Tickets at $1 may be purchased from any member of MTAC or at the door on Sunday.

MEETIN' & EATIN' at BETSY ROSS

By GENE NEIGHBORS

Hi, Neighbors,

Cub Scouts of Den 1 Pack 130 did so well with their flag ceremonies at the pack meeting and P.T.A. that their den mothers, MRS. BELL and MRS. ANDERSON, took them for a treat at Betsy Ross Pomona Valley Center on October 2nd. Participating were ERIC VAUGHN, MIKE BELL, JERRY ANDERSON, ROGER BUSH, KEVIN MORGAN, DON LEWIS, and JEFF MITTWER.

On October 5, MR. and MRS. NARENDRA DAVE' from Porbander, India, birthplace of Mahatma Gandhi, visited our Claremont Coffee Shoppe with MRS. ELLEN JACOBS of Claremont, and enjoyed their first banana split. They liked it!

The occasion of MR. and MRS. NIXON'S grandson's birthday was reason enough for the gathering at Claremont Betsy Ross for KEVIN RUSSELL'S 15th birthday on October 5th. Helping celebrate were MR. and MRS. HERMAN W. NIXON, MRS. WEBSTER VANNIER, KEVIN, of course, MRS. VIRGINIA N. RUSSELL, CORINNE, and DENISE RUSSELL.

When you go into a place and ask for Brickle Brackle ice cream, you need help! And help him she did, when BETTY MANLEY, night manager of our factory Coffee Shoppe on E. Holt, was faced by A. C. BRADFORD, in this dilemma. She gave him a small taste of Butter Brickle, asking him if that was what he was seeking. That was it, and away walked another satisfied customer. Should she try Bubble Gum or Dill Pickle on him next time? How about that, BRAD?

Now that cooler weather is with us, don't forget our chili or Yankee Beef Stew.

Smile; it's an investment that pays dividends.

Idea: The Land Ferry

Amy Farrell explains,"It brings you and your car downtown so you can use it during the day."

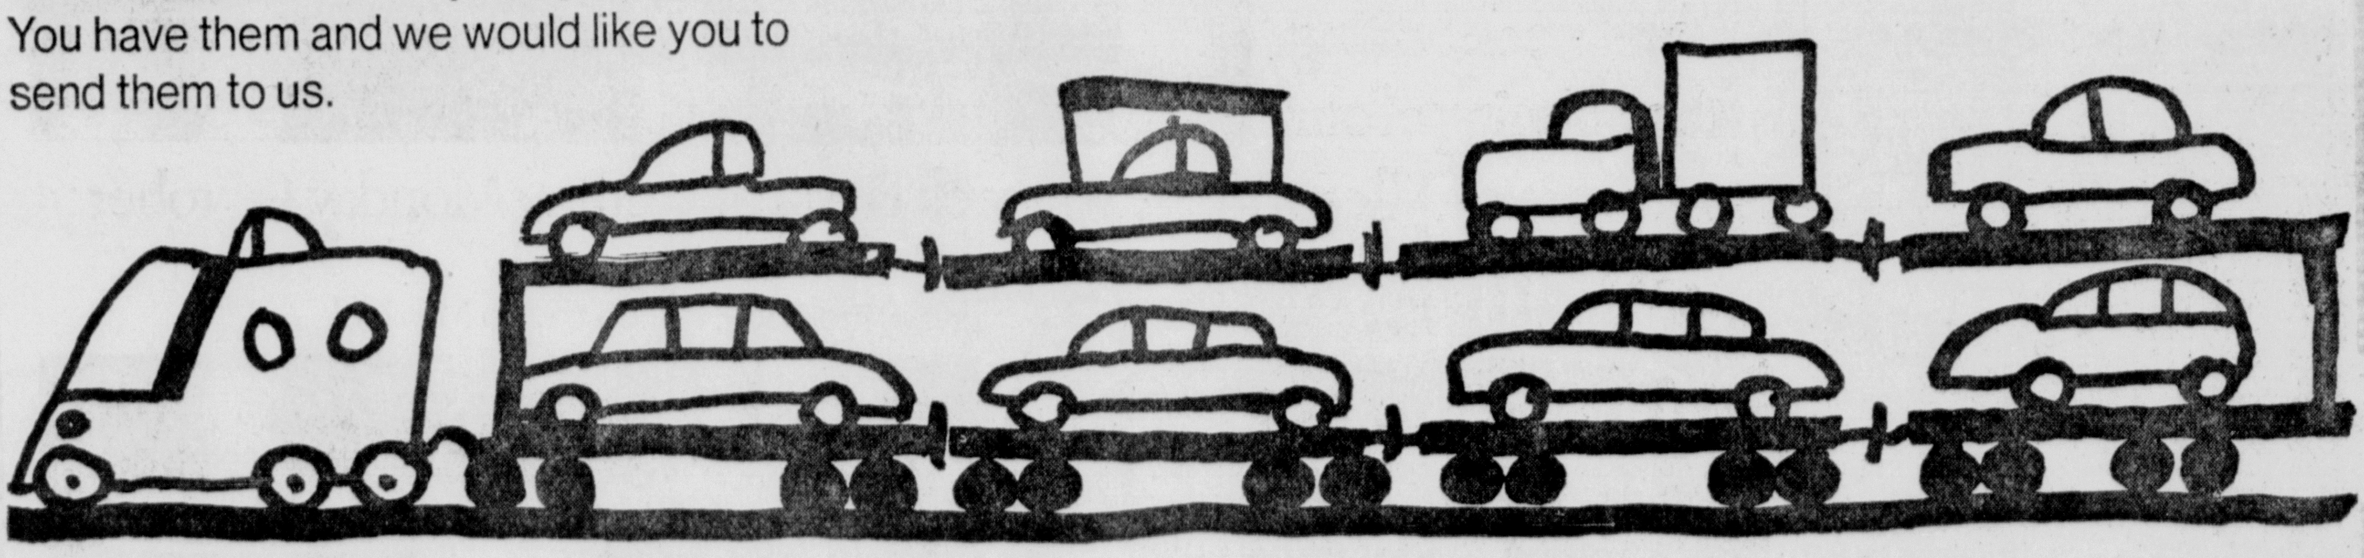
"I got the idea for the Land Ferry watching ferryboats. I thought a ferryboat on land could solve a lot of problems.

"It would be easy. We could use those trailers that carry new cars

"In the morning you drive your car onto the Land Ferry. While it drives downtown you can sit and drink coffee and read the morning paper.

'Another advantage of the Land Ferry is you could put it into operation practically tomorrow morning."

Amy feels her idea would reduce pollution, rush hour congestion, and gas consumption. But there are other ways to go. Other ideas. You have them and we would like you to send them to us.



That's why it is not the intention of Atlantic Richfield to endorse any one idea. Public Transportation to meet everyone's needs, needs everyone's ideas.

Please note that all ideas submitted become public property without compensation and any restriction on use or disclosure. This allows the ideas to be used freely to promote the concept of Public Transportation. Our thinking is that since the subject is Public Transportation the ideas should belong to the public.

Send your ideas directly to: IDEAS

Closed-end fund sound

By Roger Spear and David Sargent

Q — Would you advise purchase of Tri-Continental Corp. (NYSE)? The stock pays $2.70 in dividends, yielding 14 per cent. — J.B.

A — This closed-end fund paid 84 cents a share in income dividends and $1.95 in capital gains in the most recent 12-month period. Sicce capital gains (security profits on portfolio transactions) are not included in figuring yield, the shares yield 4 per cent rather than 14 per cent. Nonetheless, I rate Tri-Continental a buy at its current discount of about 12 per cent from net asset value. Of the more than 100 stocks held by the fund, blue chips predominate, with some representation among the leading cyclicals and emerging growth companies.

Not only has Tri-Continental managed to outperform the averages in most years, but unrealized appreciation of $150 million — 25 per cent of assets — holds the promise that generous capital gains distributions will continue. Because this fund sells at a discount you have $1.12 working for you for each $1 invested.

Women streetwalkers 'zero in' on Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Women streetwalkers in San Francisco have zeroed in on a new target—touring Japanese businessmen.

But, according to police, some are not out to earn money, but to steal it from the Nipponese visitors.

"These girls know their victims aren't going to be in town long," said Capt. Gerald Shaughnessy, head of the police Bureau of special Services.

Shaugnessy estimated that at least three dozen women now specialize in victimizing Japanese tourists. Many of them, he said, have learned to speak Japanese in order to proposition the tourists on the streets.

Two weeks ago, he said, a Japanese businessman was knifed by a prostitute in his downtown hotel room and robbed of 500,000 yen, or about $1,500.

A tourist from Hokkaido told police recently that two young women lifted his wallet, which contained $1,000 cash.

"We have made some arrests, but often the arrests have come to nothing because the victim has gone home," said Shaugnessy.

A special "educational program" is being set up by the Special Services Bureau, Shaugnessy said, to warn Oriental visitors of the problem.

Maddox returning to restaurant business

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, who rose to political fame 11 years ago by turning blacks away from his Pickrick restaurant with a gun, said Wednesday he would open another eating place to serve all comers.

Maddox, who recently lost a primary bid to become governor of Georgia a second time, said he plans to open a cafeteria in Underground Atlanta, a well known tourist attraction near the state capitol.

"This will be a family cafeteria," he said. "It'll be different from anything else in Underground — non-alcoholic. I think the location will be all right. It'll be close to 10,000 government employes — that's the most depression-proof industry in the world."

Maddox ran his fried chicken establishment known as the Pickrick with little recognition and no success as a politician until 1964 when a group of blacks sought to integrate the restaurant.

Maddox drove them off with a waving gun and closed up, shouting, "You are a Communist. You've stolen my job. You've stolen my business. Now get out of my door."

The national attention his actions drew helped Maddox win a term as governor and his present post. He also ran for president in 1968 and has been in frequent demand as a speaker.

Maddox said his turning away blacks in 1964 was "a test of the law at a certain time" but "a customer's race wouldn't have anything to do with it now...that's the way in which we operate today.'

He said he was getting back into the restaurant business because he had campaign and personal debts "in excess of half a million dollars. I don't want to go on welfare."

BART cuts bay car travel 6%

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit system has reduced Bay Bridge auto travel by about six per cent a day since the start of transbay BART service.

The estimate came Thursday from Cater Reaves, senior transportation planner for the state Department of Transportation.

"About 75 per cent of BART's commuters simply transferred from AC Transit and Greyhound," he said.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

SAVE $8!

48-Month Guaranteed High Voltage Battery

Regular $37.95 Trade-in Price 29.95 With Trade-in

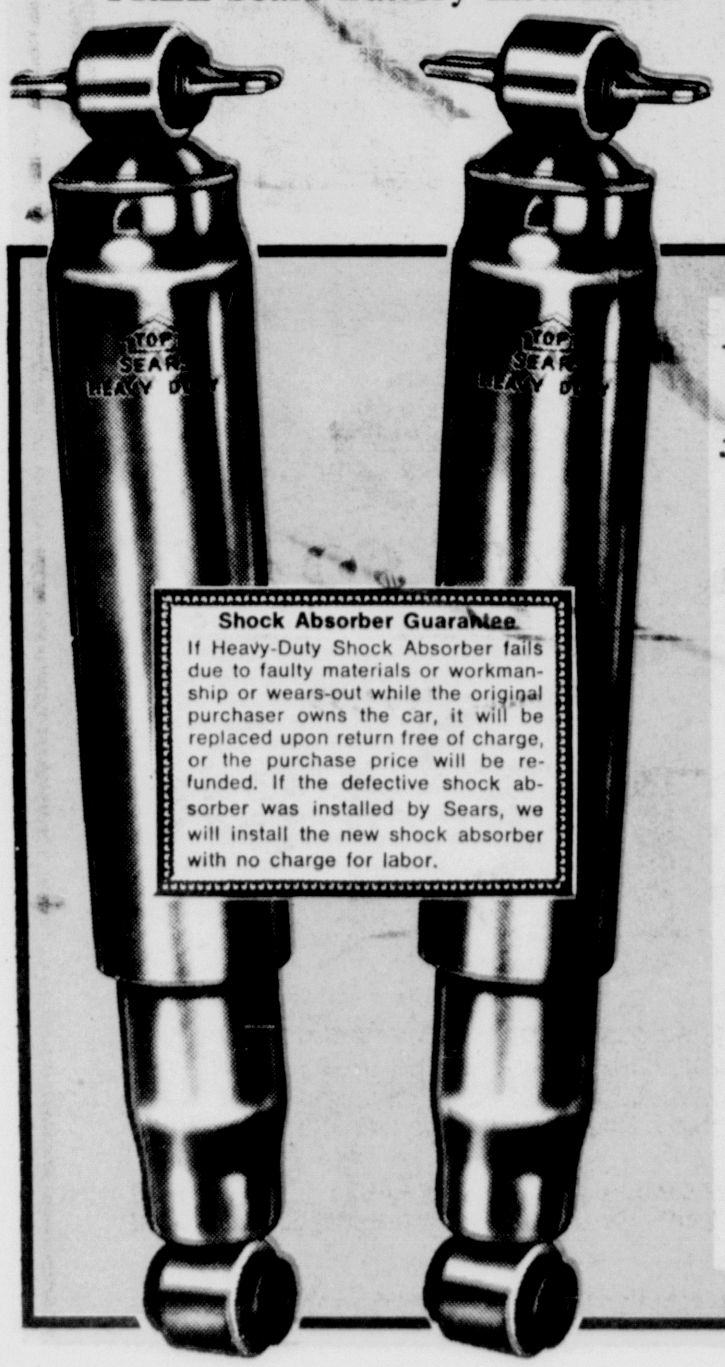
The older your car, the more reserve capacity and cold cranking power your battery needs. This battery has more of both than any Sears battery except the DieHard®. Fits most American-made cars, pickups plus many foreign cars.

FREE Sears Battery Installation

Battery Guarantee
If Battery proves defective due to electrical failure and will not hold a charge, we will replace it free of charge within 90 days of purchase; after 90 days we will replace it with a new battery charging only for the period of ownership. Your monthly charge for ownership will be computed by dividing the current selling price at the time of return, less trade-in, by the number of months of guarantee.

Automotive Needs Also Available at Sears Upland and Santa Ana



Shock Absorber Guarantee
If Heavy-Duty Shock Absorber fails due to faulty materials or workmanship or wears-out while the original purchaser owns the car, it will be replaced upon return free of charge, or the purchase price will be refunded. If the defective shock absorber was installed by Sears, we will install the new shock absorber with no charge for labor.

FREE

INSTALLATION With Purchase of A Heavy Duty Shock Absorber

7.99 each

If your car has over 20,000 miles, it may need new shocks. These heavy-duty shocks have 1 3/16-in. pistions which give a firmer more stable ride than standard 1-in. piston shocks. Sizes to fit most American-made cars, plus many imports.
